MANAGUA TAKEN BY INSURGENTS

City Surrenders Without a Shot Being Fired.

ESTRADA NOW IS PRESIDENT

Madriz Abdicates in Favor of Jose Dolores Estrada, Who Issues a Proclamation Declaring His Brother, the Leader of the Revolutionary Army, "President of the Reunited Republic of Nicaragua."

New Orleans, Aug. 23.—Confirmation of the reported fall of Managua without resistance, following the entry of the insurgent forces, was contained in a cablegram received here by the acting consul of Madriz at New Orleans. The town was surrendered without any conflict, it was stated.

After almost a year of severe fighting the revolution, which was originally launched by several hundred Nicaraguan insurgents at Bluefields, Oct. 10 last, practically closed with the capture by the revolutionists of the capital city of Managua.

Cablegrams received in New Orleans announced that Managua had fallen. When the insurgent army arrived Dr. Madriz had already abdicated in favor of Jose Dolores Estrada, who in turn issued a proclamation declaring his brother, General Juan Estrada, "president of the reunited republic of Nicaragua." General Juan Estrada has been the nominal head of the insurgents. Madriz is said to have left Managua.

AT DOWNFALL OF MADRIZ

Officials at Washington Known to Be Pleased.

Washington, Aug. 23.—While official dispatches are lacking, scarcely any doubt remains in Washington that the Madriz forces have been crushed in Nicaragua and that General Juan Estrada, leader of the "insurgents," has succeeded Madriz as temporary acting president of the Managua government.

Only the staunchest adherents of Madriz hold to the belief that his cause is not yet lost. Dr. Barrios and Sebastian Salinas, the latter until his departure for the United States military governor of Granada, and both Madriz commissioners to Washington, refuse to believe the reports from Managua and Bluefields of the Madriz reverses.

State department officials declined to discuss the developments in Nicaragua. It is well known, however, that they are pleased at the reported downfall of the Madriz power and that they look with favor on General Juan Estrada, whose treatment of Americans and the protection afforded to American interests along the Eastern coast, where he has been recognized as the head of responsible government, has been the subject of repeated praise. The department is expected to recognize Estrada only after satisfactory assurances of an early election, which shall be fair and open to all candidates.

ENCOURAGES THE FARMERS

County Association Gives Prizes for Good Roads.

Lisbon, N. D., Aug. 23.—Because he had the best stretch of road in the country Carl Krueger of Shenford township received a prize of $100 from the Ransom County Good Roads association. Edward Seelig of Casey township won the second prize of $60 and John Creswell of Green township won the third prize of $40. The competition was open to all road overseers in the county, being inaugurated by the association for the purpose of arousing interest in the making of better roads. There were numerous entries this year and next season the same plans will be followed out and it probably will mean that even a greater number will be out for the prizes.

Farmer Killed.

Mitchell, S. D., Aug. 23.—Just as he had finished his harvesting Edward Everson, living near Corsica, was killed. He had filled his last load of grain and tossed his pitchfork on the top of the load, when the fork fell and jabbed the horses. Everson fell in front of the wagon and the wheels passed over his chest and face. He lived only one day after the accident.

Minnesota Boy Drowned.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 23.—In view of several young ladies, with whom he had gone in bathing, Eugene Chase, aged fourteen, a camper at Minneawah, the fashionable summer resort, a few miles below Winona, on the Mississippi, was drowned. He stepped off the end of the dam into deep and treacherous water and was swept to death.

Farmer Accidentally Killed.

Venturia, N. D., Aug. 23.—Fred Sayler, a farmer living near here, was found dead. He was hauling a couple of hogs to market. His team came running into town without a driver. His body was found lying in the road. His head was lying in a pool of blood. It is thought that he fell off the wagon and under the wheels.

Napoleon and Woman.

Napoleon I., who was a great admirer of female talent when its owner did not, like Mme. de Stael, direct it against himself, used to say, "There are women who have only one fault, viz. that they are not men."

The Mississippi of Streets.

A street is like a river, with its human current carrying all manner of drift between its banks of residences or shops on either side. And if this simile be appropriate then New York's Broadway is the Mississippi of streets. Probably no other avenue in the world presents so many contrasts in the flotsam and jetsam it carries from Harlem to the Battery. Every type of humanity—uprooted saplings from farms and orchards, proud hulled craft in silks and satins—may be described in the surging mass. Banker and bootblack, the swaggering swell and the draggled derelict, walk shoulder to shoulder—rush, rather, for Broadway is a maelstrom, the embodiment of New York's hustle and hurry, the place where nothing can stand still. Richard Harding Davis once said that

Wouldn't Deliver.

He was born in Dublin and lived in Ireland until about two months ago, when he came to Cleveland. Then he began to look around for a job. The manager of a furniture house promised to give him a trial.

"Come around in the morning and go to work," he said, "and if you can deliver the goods we'll probably keep you permanently."

The Dublin native went over to tell his cousin about it. He confided to him that he didn't believe he'd go back to take the job, after all.

"They want me to deliver the goods," he said. "Think of going around delivering big, heavy furniture. That's what horses and wagons are for in my country."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FILING CLOSES

Contests On For Auditor, Treasurer, Judge of Probate, Co. Com. and Sheriff.

The filings for the nominations at the Primary election to be held in September 20th closed on Wednesday

There are three republican aspirants for the Auditorship namely N. K. Nelson of Thief River Falls. A A. Latendresse of Red Lake Falls and Andrew Hanson of Lillo.

The treasurership is sought by two republican aspirants samely G. G. Kindseth and H. E. Ipes both of Red Lake Falls.

The iffice of Register of Deeds is sought by Olaf Tande of Garnes, republican and Frank Jeffers of Red Lake Salls, democrat.

The republicans from Thief Rive Falls are seeking the nomination for Judge of Probate namely Ben. Christianson and Ira Richardson. Charles Fellman of St. Hilaire opposes Lewis A. Nelson fir the republican nomination for Sheriff.

County Attorney Wilhelm Michelet has no opposition at the primary he will have as competitor Chas. Boughton democrat if Red Lake Falls.

Clerk of Court C. W Johnson, Superintendent Herman F. Anderson and Court Commissioner Simon Paul have no present prospects of opposition.

The Commissioner proposition in the first district seems to be very attractive as there are two republicans and one democratic aspirant for the place. The twi former are Gust Naplin and C. A. Lindquist and the latter is Herman Schultz. The other commissioner Ed Aubol of the 3d district and Jos. Pigeon of the 5th district have no oppositiin.

Lindquist's neighbors seem to think that he should step out and give some one else a chance to learn some scientific farming, ad how ti prosper thereby.

Insurgent Endorsement For Steenerson.

To the Voters of the Ninth Congressional District of Minnesota:

I have learned from the newspapers that Hon. Halvor Steenerson is a candidate for re-election to Congress, and I desire to assure you and the people of the district that Progressive Republicans throughout the country take a lively interest in his campaign, and desire Mr Steenerson's success.

In the fight for the reformation of the Rules, and to remove the Speaker from the Committee on Rules, he loyally supported the insurgents. By his magnificent fight against the onslaught of the ship subsidy advocates he has earned the grateful thanks of all friends of honest legislation.

I hope that Mr Steenerson will, as he certainly deserves to be, triumphantly re-nominated and re-elected.

Very respectfully,
—John M. Nelson,
Secretary, Insurgent Republicans,
House of Representatives.

Mr Nelson is congressman from the Madison district, in Wisconsin.

Give Editor Free Hand.

The usual form of ownership is by a corporation dominated by an individual. If that individual has any sense at all he will let his editors alone, after indicating in general outline what he thinks the policy of the paper should be. If he is himself an experienced newspaperman, so much the better.

He will know that the men who are worth their salt have always been encouraged to work with a free hand, and having indicated the results he wants, he will leave them to obtain them in their own way. This is the custom on any good newspaper, and the policy is abandoned only at the expense of serious changes in the editorial staff.

There is no workman in the world more independent than the newspaperman who really knows his business. Even if he were disposed to do dirty work for his proprietors, he would be ineffectiue, for the reason that he could not get good men to work under him.

A New Way to make Hay.

As an unusual strange case happened me recently, it may be of interest for the readers of the Pioneer to see how cheap some people can afford to be. While having some hay standing in shocks on Sec 13 (known as the John Busses claim) about one third of a mile from my home (in Wyandotte) I found that some one had been helping themselves to about 30 shocks of hay, using a wide tired wagon and going off north, across Elingsons claim. As I did not come there before a few days after and the track could not be followed up long enough and consequently this had been one very short of hay, and still shorter of any sign of honer and self respect.

I would give a premium to any one there could give me any information about this poor fellow as I could teach him the seventh commandment and some more.

The road to success is paved with good advertisements.

In advertising always say what you believe, if you want people to believe what you say.

It is stated that President Taft is bending some of his energies toward the study of economy. So, has he seen a vision of the coming Presidential election.

"It is generally conceded" says a Stand pat Republican paper, "that the Payne-Aldrich law is a very satisfactory measure". This may be generally conceeded by the Stand patters, but wait till the votes are counted.

This is just the right size town to settle down in and enjoy life. Everything for the comfort of life can be bought here and $10 will go as far as $25 will in the large cities. When you want to leave the farm, come to our town and build a nice comfortable home and be among the best people in the world.

Time was not far back when the boodler was called a statesman, or, at worse, a shrewd politician. It is to the great advantage of this country that he is now known by his right name.

You don't have to go to war to be patriotic. Improve your locality, uphold your town, enlarge its interests, and lend a hand to progress, and you are a patriot—a lover of your country—as truly as the soldier who shoulders his musket.

Next to the wife beater comes the horse beater and it is to be regretted we have one or two in this community. A horse is the most noble and faithful of animals and the man who would abuse his horse has something lacking in his manhood.

A man never realizes the superiority of woman so much as when he is sewing on a button without a thimble, pushing the needle against the wall to get it half way through and pulling it through the other half by hanging on to it with his teeth.

Bro. Krohn of Shevlin in his announcement promises that he will "support all measures looking to the best interests of my constituency". Now there are a lot of us who would like to know what Mr. Krohn considers to the best interest of his constituency. We'd like to know what some of them are and also what his attitude on the question of county option is.

If he knows what is best for us all—and he must in order to vote for it—why not tell us about it now?
—Clearwater Crystal.

BE SOMETHING.

There is a moral grandeur in the thought—"I have made myself." The world may wag their heads, and you may be denounced, but if you are conscious of that integrity of purpose which has always characterized you, and that you now stand on an eminence, placed there by your own rectitude of heart, you have nothing to fear. You had not the influence of wealth, nor the "God speed you" of powerful friends; but you had more—a heart fixed and determined, and this what has made you what you are. Go on—add virtue to virtue—look steadily at the goal before you, and at last your best teachers and artful companions will acknowledge your superiority and feel proud of being among the number of your friends. The man who is resolven to be something in the world have nothing to fear, and when he little dreams of it, honors are gathering about his head and an influence goes out from him, which is exerted silently but surely for the good of thousands.

TRUE CONSERVATION.

If the great conservation congress to be held in St. Paul had been dated two weeks earlier, the delegates would have found it necessary to conduct their proceedings under the glare of the electric light, on account of the pall of smoke carried overfifteen hundred miles from the western forests, and arising from fires which were consuming timber valued at millions of dollars. Think of it! The Representative men of a great nation gatherd to discuss methods of conserving the natural resources for future generations and at the same time consuming coal to obtain light because the sun was obscured by smoke from burning timber, these fires being the result of the wasteful methods employed in denuding the remainder of the most extensive and valuable forest that ever stood in the history of the world. Aside from consideration o fthe loss of life and the destruction of homes the edsstruction of the timber and the demage to soil that has been recorded during the past few days has been such that the thinking men of this country have reason to feel that it is high time to pause inthe rush for the dollar and that action be taken in order that future generatioins may not have further cause to curse the profigacy oftheir forebears. Ex.

And now there is to be a bust-up between Taft and Roosevelt. You remember that big row between Roosevelt and Harriman, don't you—when Roosevelt had recourse to his ever-ready appellation? Well, just while that row was in its height, and Roosevelt was calling "liar" in big letters in the daily papers, he was addressing E. H. Harrimen at New York, in a letter from the White House, "My Dear Harriman: •• Come up and confer with me about that railroad matter". And at about the same time Mr. Roosevelt, president of the United States, ordered the attoreny general to drop certain causes that bid fair if gone on with to being "My Dear Harriman" uncomfortably close to the pentientiary. That worked pretty well—that Roosevelt Harriman row—,and fooled a good many of you, and now there is even more strenuous reason for fooling you so Taft and Roosevelt are seriously considering the expediency of having a falling-out. For some thing has got to be done; the demand is will be "awful, tewlfe a'"garsfifi is urgent. It will be 'awful', Mabel', if we have to foregoe our public hugging and hand holding tableaux; but the people are uneasy and must be soothed, even if we have to resort to such heroic measures as refusing to "speak". Just think of the billions that mihgt be lost to our Grand Aggregation of Thieves for lack of the exercise of a little strenuousity at the proper time.

Are you noticing how formally and fully that impending "break" between Taft and Roosevelt is being intodruced? Its very essential, you know that everybody should know about that row else whats the use if having it?
—Warroad Commonwealth.

Political Announcement

SENATOR

I wish to announce thru the colums of your paper that I will be a candidate for the republican nomination for state senator for this legislative district at the coming primary election. I will make known at some later date the platform upon which I will solicit the support of the voters of the district.

A. L. Hanson

SENATOR

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Senator for the 61st District, unequivocally endorsing the platform adopted by the Republican Convention, June 21. 1910, and pledge my vote and best effort to legislation that will re- apportion the state justly and fairly and effective on or before January 1, 1912, and without regard to the term of office for which I may be elected, should I be the choice of the Republicans of this District and be elected in the General Election in November next.

Albert Berg,
Spooner, Minnesota.

FOR JUDGE OF PROBATE

I hereby announce my Candidacy for nomination for the office of Judge of Probate on the Republican ticket. I earnestly solicet the support of the voters of Red Lake County at the Primary Election to be held Sept. 20th.

Ben Christianson.

SHERIFF.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Red Lake County, and solicit the support and votes of everybody at the primaries.

Charles J. Fellman.

REPRESENTATIVE

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination as a member of the house of representative from th 61st legislative district which comprises the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater and Red Lake. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to use all efforts to secure the redistricting of the state, a one mill tax for good roads, a liberal appropriation to advertise the recources of Minnesota, and a county option law.
D. P. O'Neill.

..I hereby announce my candidacy for the republican nomination for Representative to Congress from the Ninth Congressional District of Minnesota. If nominated and elected I pledge myself to stand by the principals as advocated by the Progressive Republicans.

Yours for a just tariff reform.
H. O. Bjorge.

CURRENT COMMENT

Wm. McFadden—I was up through the northern part of the state a few days ago to see about som hay and I tell you the country up there looks good to me. The big state ditches have done good work and I never saw as much hay anywhere as there is there. The people who think that hay is going to sell for $15 or $20 per ton this winter should go up through that section. I was at Thief River Falls. Red Lake Falls and up through Roseau county and the county in that vicinity is going to be hte finest dairy sectiion to be found anywhere.

The land produces everything that is needed for successful dairying and produces it in abundance. I can see no reason why settlers should go further west or into Canada while the northern part of our own state offers such opportuities as are to be found here.
—Fergus falls Journal.

Frances Eisbrener

Miss Frances Eisbrener of Hickory was brought to this city last week being diseased and demented After a thoro examination by doctors she was committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls by Judge of Probate Ira C. Richardson. The unfortunate girl was of German decent and resided with her parents in the town of Hickory.

We owe it to the community in which we live to do everything we can in every way possible that will be to its advantage. Our neighbor's prosperity means a great deal more to us than someone's who lives elsebuying our goods. We can afford to pay ou rhome man a firm price for his wares rather than send our money away knowing as we do that every dollar our own citizen makes will help in sustaining our schools churches and otherinstitutions. It pays richly to patronize home industry.

The Front End.

A young couple had been married by a Quaker, and after the ceremony he remarked to the husband:

"Friend, thou art at the end of thy troubles."

A few weeks after the man came to the good minister boiling over with rage, having found his wife to be a regular vixen, and said:

"I thought you told me I was at the end of my troubles."

"So I did, friend, but I did not say which end," replied the Quaker.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $ 40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

TWO HUNDRED DIE

Latest Estimate of Victims of Western Forest Fires.

MOST OF THEM RANGERS

Forty Other Fire Fighters Are Missing and the List of Dead May Be Lengthened.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 27.—Latest estimates of the loss of life in the forest fires place the number of dead at more than 200. The Italians and Austrians in the St. Joe valley, of whom many perished, were employes of logging camps. The list of government rangers dead, now 100, will probably be lengthened.

Following is a revised list of the number killed in the Idaho, Montana and Washington forest fires:

| | |
|---|---|
| United States forest employes, Idaho and Montana | 100 |
| Settlers and fire fighters, St. Joe valley, Idaho | 50 |
| At Newport, Wash. | 4 |
| At Wallace, Ida. | 3 |
| At Mullan and Spokane | 3 |
| Total | 160 |

The Missoula forest office's list of seventy-nine dead forest employes omits twenty-one killed at the Bullion mine, Montana, and on the Big fork of the Coeur d'Alene. The missing are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Negro soldiers, near Avery, Ida. | 4 |
| Ranger Halm's party, headwaters of St. Joe | 15 |
| Forest employes in St. Joe valley | 25 |
| Total | 44 |

Death Reports Vary Widely.

Reports received by Supervisor Weigle at Wallace concerning the number of dead forest employes did not agree with that obtained at Missoula. The reports to Wallace say that of Ranger Hollingshead's sixty men on Big creek fourteen bodies have been found and the other men are missing. Of sixty men on Setzer creek forty-eight bodies have been found and five men are missing. These sixty-two deaths of forest employes, added to the twenty-one deaths at the Bullion mine and on the Big fork of the Coeur d'Alene and the deaths in Montana and various Idaho creeks, would bring the total number of deaths in the service up to 100.

There is a dearth of news from the St. Joe valley, where the fires are raging uncontrolled. Circumstantial accounts of the death of 115 men in four parties were brought to Spokane and Tekoa by survivors. The survivors say that 600 men were working on Big creek, whereas the number stated by the forestry service to have been employed there is sixty. Joseph B. Halm is said by the Wallace office to have eighty-four men with him and by the Missoula office to have only fourteen.

FIRES CAN BE PREVENTED

Gifford Pinchot Says Loss Is Price of Unpreparedness.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Gifford Pinchot of the National Conservation association and former head of the government forest service, in a statement, holds that the loss of property and life in the recent and present forest fires was unnecessary.

The disastrous results, he said, are traceable to the unpreparedness to deal with the fire situation. He scores members of congress who have opposed appropriations for the proper equipment of forest rangers and in that connection names Senator Heyburn of Idaho, whose home town, Wallace, Ida., suffered serious loss; Senator Carter of Montana and Representative Mondell of Wyoming.

EIGHT HUNDRED HOMELESS

Damage In Two Washington Counties Placed at $2,000,000.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 27.—The fire situation is one of unrelaxing vigilance.

It is estimated that in Clarke and Cowlitz counties, Wash., $2,000,000 represents the aggregate loss. Eight hundred persons have been rendered homeles and 2,000 men have been thrown out of work.

The town of Flora, Ore., has been destroyed, according to reports which reached Asotin, Wash. The flames came from the forests on the south side of the Blue mountains. The town is in ruins and its 400 inhabitants are homeless. Communication is cut off.

NO REASON MADE PUBLIC

Swedish Minister to the United States Is Recalled.

Stockholm, Aug. 28.—Herman de Lagercrantz, the Swedish minister to the United States has, it was announced here, been recalled. He was appointed in January, 1907.

Washington, Aug. 28.—State department officials profess to be entirely ignorant of the reasons which prompted the Swedish government to recall Mr. Lagercrantz from the Washington mission. As far as known his residence here has been without embarrassing incidents.

REGINALD VANDERBILT ILL

Society Leader Is Stricken With Typhoid Fever.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 30.—That Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who is suffering from typhoid fever at his Sandy Point farm, is a very sick man became known when it was announced that Dr. Austin Flint had been called from New York for consultation with Dr. Henry T. Knapp, Mr. Vanderbilt's family physician.

Mr. Vanderbilt was taken ill more than a week ago. At first it was thought he was suffering from summer grip, but later his temperature began to rise and there were unmistakable signs of typhoid fever. Even then it was believed that he had only a mild attack.

His condition became worse, however, and it was evident that the attack was serious.

TORNADO HITS VILLAGE

Three Persons Killed and Several Others Injured.

Jamestown, N. D., Aug. 30.—The town of Heaton N. D., seventeen miles west of Carrington on the Turtle Lake branch of the Northern Pacific railway, was struck by a tornado which demolished nearly the entire village.

Three are known to have been killed and four are more or less seriously injured. The latter includes Mrs. Hulbert, who sustained a fractured skull. The names of the dead and others injured are not yet known.

The Monarch elevator was blown over on the main track, blocking traffic. Box cars standing on the siding were blown a distance of 200 feet. It is reported that there is not a building in the town that is not more or less damaged, some being unroofed, and others turned around on their foundations.

HIS SUPERB NERVE

It Enabled Him to Loll In Luxury With Not a Cent of Cost.

CRUSHING A HOTEL KEEPER.

The Beau Was Elegant In Dress and Exquisite In His Bearing and Played His Part Well—Never Known to Pay a Bill Under Any Circumstances.

"Misery loves company," quoted Mr. Tabb, an old time Virginia gentleman, the other night. "There's a great deal of truth in that old saying.

"Some forty or fifty years ago there was a celebrated Virginia character, well known in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, whom I shall call Beau Smith, because Smith wasn't his real name. Beau Smith was not only noted for the elegance of his dress, but also for his absolute disregard of all financial obligations. He was never known to pay a bill under any circumstances.

"Beau entered the office of the old Monumental hotel, in Baltimore, one night, registered, and upon being assigned to one of the best suits of rooms in the house, for he would be satisfied only with the best, he proceeded to make himself thoroughly at home and settled down for a long stay. He ordered champagne by the case and cigars by the box for the entertainment of such friends as might visit him in his apartments and, in short, lived as though he had millions behind him. The proprietor of the hotel, Mr. Guyer, had heard of Beau, but he could not believe that he would deliberately run up such a large bill if he had no intention of paying it, and he hesitated about speaking to such an elegant gentleman about such an inelegant thing as money, but after Beau had been a guest at the Monumental for more than a month and had said nothing about paying his bill Mr. Guyer summoned up his courage and had Beau's bill made out and sent up to him. In a few moments Mr. Guyer received a polite but urgent message from Beau, asking him to come to his apartments at once.

"'I sent for you, Mr. Guyer,' said the impecunious beau, 'to show you a most remarkable document which has been sent up to me from your office. I don't wish to complain of your clerks, sir, but I dislike being annoyed in this way. Will you kindly look at that and tell me what it is?'

"'That is a bill, Mr. Smith,' said Guyer as soon as he recovered his breath.

"'So I observe,' responded Beau, 'but, Mr. Guyer, it is made out against me.'

"'Certainly,' replied the hotel man. 'It is our account against you for board and lodging, wines, cigars and other extras for the last month, and I would be glad if you'—

"'Why, my dear sir,' interrupted Beau, laughing, 'you surely never expected me to pay this bill?'

"'I most certainly did and do expect you to pay it,' answered Mr. Guyer firmly.

"'But, dear sir,' said Beau gently, 'you knew who I was when I came to your house.'

"Mr. Guyer admitted that he did.

"'Then, you know,' continued Beau, 'that I have never been known to pay a bill to any one, and no one in his senses ever expected that I would. Now, my dear sir, I beg of you to destroy this ridiculous document and see that I am not annoyed again with such foolishness.'

"'Do you intend to pay this bill or not?' demanded the hotel proprietor sternly.

"'I do not,' replied the Beau quietly.

"'Very well, then, I will sue you, sir.'

"'That is your privilege, sir.'

"'And I will get a judgment, too,' said Guyer angrily.

"'You will get more than that, Mr. Guyer,' responded Beau calmly. 'You will get yourself laughed at by the entire country for being so foolish as to imagine that you could collect a bill from Beau Smith. Pray do not subject yourself to such ridicule.'

"Guyer hesitated; he knew he would be laughed at unmercifully by every one, and, then, too, he could not help but admire the colossal cheek of Smith, so he sat down again and lit a fresh cigar.

"'Mr. Smith,' said he, 'I'll tell you what I will do. If you will move over to the City hotel and play this same game on old man Barnum I'll give you a receipt in full for all that you owe me and say no more about it.'

"'Receipt the bill, Mr. Guyer,' answered Smith coolly. 'I had been stopping with Mr. Barnum for a month prior to coming to your house, and he also promised to give me a receipt in full for what I owed him if I would move over here and play the same trick on you.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

IRONCLAD CASTE.

Its Rule Among the Hindus Absolute and Unchangeable.

THE POWER OF THE BRAHMAN

All the Wealth of the World Would Not Enable a Lower Caste Hindu to Wed Into His Family or Touch His Hand—Tyrannical Social Divisions.

Caste distinction in India is a thing difficult for a foreigner to comprehend. All the racial or religious distinctions which separate European nations from each other and divide them within themselves do not equal the number of classes into which the Hindus are divided by what is known as "caste."

The 200,000,000 Hindus are made up of diverse racial elements and speak about nineteen developed languages and over 100 dialects. They are again divided into over 3,000 castes, most of them with subcastes. One of these castes, the Brahmans, is split up into more than 800 subcastes, of which none will intermarry and few will eat together.

The term "caste" includes so many things that it is difficult to define it. There are, however, two properties essential to a true caste—first, there is no entry except by birth; second, marriage outside the caste is absolutely forbidden. To preserve the purity and maintain the exclusiveness of the society many minute rules of conduct, many restrictions on food and many ceremonial observances are imposed on the members and enforced by penalties which cannot be evaded, against which there is no appeal and which in extreme cases follow the offender beyond the grave.

But that is not all. The relations of castes to each other are as much a matter of religious observance as the rules for their internal regulation. The Brahmans are the highest admittedly and undoubtedly superior to all the rest. After them come those who are acknowledged to be twice born. The less honored follow in a graduated descent until the untouchable and unspeakable are reached at the lowest depth.

It may be urged that the separation between the Brahman and, let us say, the Kurmi market gardener is no wider than that between the peer of the United Kingdom and the coal miner. There is this essential difference—that it is impossible for an Indian to change his caste. The coal miner may be elected to parliament, may become a cabinet minister and if he can make money enough may marry his son to a duke's daughter.

The Kurmi must remain a Kurmi. All the wealth of Croesus will not enable him to make an alliance with a Brahman family or to touch a Brahman's hand. The members of a caste may and in some cases do raise themselves in the sight of other castes by adopting more elaborate ceremonies and more scrupulous observances.

A half civilized Gond, for example, may find himself brought into contact with Hindus as the plow encroaches on the forest. He tries to raise his position and add to his self respect by adopting the exclusiveness of his Hindu neighbors. He will even outdo them if he can, and if the Hindu is scrupulous about his food the convert will wash the very wood with which his dinner is cooked.

No endeavors of this kind, however, will avail to lessen by a hair's breadth the distance between him and the caste Hindu or even to induce the Hindu barber to look upon him as a client whose chin he may shave and whose toe nails he may pare without degradation.

Another point connected with caste which has a very practical bearing and must be taken into account is the power of coercion which it gives to the brotherhood. If a man is excommunicated by his caste fellows nobody in the caste will marry him or will accept water from his hands or will eat with him.

If he is married his wife will not touch him or speak to him. He is dead to his family. The priest will not perform ceremonies for him. The village barber will not shave him, and the washerwoman will not wash his clothes. These are the methods of bringing pressure on the man. The strictest boycott which Irishmen have invented is mild compared to the final sentence of a caste punchayat.

A system like this is a stern fact which has to be faced. There is not a police case or a civil case or a trial at the sessions, there is hardly an appointment to an office in India of whatever degree, in which the matter of caste has not to be considered. It forces itself into every assessment of land revenue, into every adjudication of rent. It affects the administration of justice, the proceedings of municipal and district councils.

The influence and power of the Brahman and the idea that he is above the law and is not to be punished as other people are still alive, although a century of British justice has done something toward eradicating these ideas. On the other hand, the suggestion that a man of a lower caste might rise to an equality or nearer to an equality with members of a caste above him is unthinkable. Where the low caste men are, there they must remain. If they behave themselves it will be made up to them in a future existence.—London Spectator.

Politeness is a locksmith and opens many difficult doors.

BY GREAT CROWD

Colonel Roosevelt Warmly Welcomed at Denver.

STREETS ARE IMPASSABLE

Line of March Through Downtown Section Jammed to Suffocation by Sightseers.

Denver, Aug. 30.—What Cheyenne left undone for Colonel Roosevelt in the way of strenuosity was done for him here, when he spent twenty-four hours within the confines of the Colorado metropolis.

During that period the colonel mingled reminiscences of the Spanish war, when he fraternized with his old comrades in arms, the Spanish War Veterans; of the days when he rode the range, when he was the guest of honor at a "church wagon" dinner, given by the Denver Press club, and of his days in the New York legislature, when he addressed the special session of the Colorado legislature in the house chamber.

By far the largest crowd that has greeted him since he started on his present eventful tour of the West cheered the contributing editor when his train steamed into the Union depot. It was estimated by the police and city authorities that not fewer than 100,000 visitors were in the city and from the noise that greeted the colonel the number appears not to have been overestimated.

They thronged all the downtown streets where Roosevelt was expected to pass and they jammed almost to suffocation the streets adjoining the depot—thousands upon thousands asking only for one glimpse of the familiar physiogonomy of the retired lion hunter.

As early as 7 o'clock the crowds began to gather at the depot and by 10 o'clock it was a hazardous undertaking to attempt to get through a train. Roosevelt had breakfast in his private car en route to Denver from Cheyenne, so he was in fine fettle when he reached here. A salute of twenty-one guns announced his arrival. Governor Shafroth, Mayor Speer and a committee representing the Colorado Live Stock association, one representating the Spanish War Veterans and committees representing other organizations welcomed the distinguished guest.

GREETED AS OLD COMRADE

Roosevelt Given Rousing Reception at Cheyenne, Wyo.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 28.—Colonel Roosevelt got a realistic touch of the fast vanishing "wild and woolly West" when he was the guest of honor at the closing day's exercises of the frontier day celebration, closing a solid week of cowboy excitement such as even Cheyenne never before witnessed.

The thousands who gathered at the station to meet the Roosevelt special train did not come to greet a former president of the United States. They came to cheer Theodore Roosevelt, the cowman who ran a brand on the Little Missouri years ago; the former broncho "peeler" and Dakota deputy sheriff, and to greet him as a comrade of the range and extend him a typical Western welcome.

For twelve hours, with scarcely a break for rest, the colonel was in the hands of several thousand hilarious cowboys—real "punchers," garbed in the silk neckerchiefs, leather chaps and wristlets and all the other picturesque accouterments of the typical plainsmen.

END OF KOREA AS A NATION

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The text of the convention under which Korea is annexed to Japan has been communicated to the representatives of the powers. The document, which, according to now established facts, was signed Aug. 22, will be effective when officially promulgated. This will happen, according to some of the ministers, Aug. 29 or 30, when the independent existence of the Hermit Kingdom, the struggle for whose control started the Russo-Japanese war, will cease.

Sporadic outbursts in protest against the absorption of Korea by Japan are anticipated, but serious rioting, or even widespread objection from the Koreans to the annexation, are not expected.

The Talipot Palm of Ceylon.

The talipot palm of Ceylon has gigantic fanlike leaves, which when fully expanded form a nearly complete circle thirteen feet in diameter. Large fans made of them are carried before people of rank among the Cingalese. They are also commonly used as umbrellas, and tents are made by neatly joining them together. They are used as a substitute for paper, being written upon with a stylus. Four of the sacred books of the Cingalese are composed of strips of them.

O'NEIL MAKES STATEMENT

Is An Honest Farmer; Has Legislative Experience. Some Points in His Record.

In order to acquaint the voters of of the Sixty First legislative district more fully with my career as a citizen of the state of Minnesota and as a member of two legislative sessiions of the legislature of the state, I herewith submit the following statement for their consideration.

The undersigned was born in Ontario, Canada, i 1853 and arrived in Minneaoplis at the age of 18. When of age I entered upon and proved up a homestead in Big Stone county, Minnesota, and have followed up farmig as an occupation ever since, and at the present time am so engaged near Thief River Falls.

In the sessions of the state legislature of the years 1893 and 1899 I served as a member of the House from the districts of the Big Stone County was a part. While in the legislature I gave my active support to some of the most important leg- a pass time as at present., to come of the most important legislation affectiing the farming interesst and the laboring men., which has ever been enacted in this state This, too, at a time when opposition to corporations was not as pleasant a past time as at a presentt.

I aided in the organization of the Farmers! Alliance and was one of to establish the binding twine supthose who had no honor of helping ported are the Jacobson four percent gross earning tax law the aw favoring free text books in public schools; the bill compelling the railway to select swamps lands the election of the railway and warehouse commissioners by popular vote the measure prohibiting the railway from raising rates without the approval of the railway and warehouse commissioners the bill requireing the railroads to stop all erect vestibules on their cars for the protection of the employes the bill providing for the state elevator at Duluth; the creation of the state dairy and food commision and preventing the adulteration of food; establishing a board of appeals for the grain inspection; a bill favoring licensing commmission merchants and requiring that they report returns to consignor within twetny four hours; a bill making it a state prison offense to organize a trust or pool; makin gall elevators public elevators requiring a license; a bill granting an annual appropriiation for the Soldiers Home; a bill favoring liens for labor in certain cases; a measure taxing minerals as real estate; the Gutterson bill granting the cpecial aid to certain rural, graded, and high schools; a biill regulating the sale of binding twine; a bill providing for a permanent university fund; a measure for the redemption from tax salel; the bill authorizing villages to vote for the establishment of lighting plante; the varions intiative and referendum measures introduced; the appropriation for mailing the History of the Minnesota Soldiers in the Civil War to all the veterans; and the first primary election measure introduced in the legislature. I also introduced two score bills, all but three of which I succeeded in passing through the House and many of which finally were placed on the statute books. Among these the one making a promissory note legal payment on an insurance policy. and another known as the Torrens land transfer law.

I believe that my four years of experience as a legislator would be a valuable asset for the House member from the Sixty First district particularly in the approaching session of the legislature and I also feel confident that my official record, as briefly set forth in the above statement definitely places me on the side of the taxpayers. Beleivin that platform, which appears in all the papers of taxpayers. Believing my platform the idstrict, merits the serious consideration of all persons interested in the prosperity of the masses and welfare of the state, respectfully solicit your support and vote at the approching elections.

Very truly yours,

D. P. Oneill.

Early Landholding.

Nothing is clearer than the fact that the system of landholding in the most ancient races was communal. Private right in land was for a long time unknown, the source of life being held in common between the members of the tribe. Not only land, but all property that in any way had to do with the general welfare, was looked upon as belonging to the whole tribe in common, no individual having the right to call it his own. Gradually and after a very long time, under the old regime, the right of private ownership began to creep in, until at last it became the recognized rule pretty nearly everywhere.—New York American.

No Sense of Proportion.

The young man who had spent his efforts for several years without result in studying art was talking with his practical uncle, who had patiently paid the bills.

"Of course," said the young artist, "I know I haven't made much of a go of it, but I don't think you ought to advise me to try something else. You know it's best to put all your eggs in one basket and watch that basket."

"Um! That may be, Charlie; but did you ever think how foolish it is to put so many baskets around one bantam egg?"

Applied History.

LABOR MAY TAKE A HAND

Proposes to Fight for Beveridge In Indiana.

Indianapolis, Aug. 30.—The statement by Jefferson Claypool, a well known Republican politician, that 40 per cent of the Republican candidates for the legislature are opposed to the re-election of Senator Albert J. Beveridge is under an investigation by a committee of organized labor. The committee proposes that the 40 per cent shall come into the open and declare themselves publicly. With this in view it is preparing a letter to be sent to every Republican candidate for the legislature, asking him if he will support the senator for re-election. The committee will set out the fact that Beveridge proved himself a friend of labor in the senate.

A Scapegoat

By ALBERT TUCKER KENYON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

There is a body of troops in France called the foreign legion. It is composed of men of all nationalities, most of them fugitives from justice. That a man is in it is prima facie evidence that he has an object for losing himself to the rest of the world.

A soldier in the foreign legion conspicuous for his refined appearance passed under the name of Franz Ludwig. He would not admit the country from which he hailed, and since he spoke several languages equally well it was impossible for any one to fix upon the land of his nativity.

This is the story of the so called Franz Ludwig:

His real name was Count Joseph Zadsky. He had been honored by the intimate friendship of the crown prince of his native land. The prince and he rode together, hunted together—in short, all their amusements were in common. The count was engaged to marry the Baroness Sophia, daughter of a prominent member of the sovereign's household.

The crown prince was possessed by a passion for gambling. He did not attend the public gambling places so plentiful in Europe. His habit was to play either in his own palace or wherever he was invited. One afternoon he was playing in the home of a nobleman where a house party had been invited to meet him. The prince was playing with bad luck and was drinking heavily. Several of the guests were also under the influence of liquor. Count Zadsky was present and, fearing that something would occur to create a scandal, begged his royal highness to retire from the game. The prince refused, and the game went on. The excitement increased, both with the increase of stakes and spirits consumed. But now the prince was winning.

"These cards are marked," suddenly shouted one of the party. "There are little protuberances on their backs."

"If you can feel them," said Zadsky, "you must have cut down the skin of one of your fingers for the purpose. And if you have done that you have introduced the cards into the game."

Amid a hubbub the cards were examined and were found to have been made for the purpose of swindling. Then Zadsky said:

"All show the tips of your fingers."

Every man present made the display except the crown prince. His expression betrayed him, but his tongue came to his defense.

"Gentlemen," he said, "do you ask the heir apparent to the throne to exonerate himself from cheating at cards?"

Zadsky was dumfounded. There was a silence. Then the party arose from the table and separated.

The story got out, and the privy council was convened to consider what action should be taken. Some way of exonerating the prince must be devised. The people were loyal to the crown, but it would never do for one who must soon sit upon the throne to

ARGUMENT GROWS HEATED

Governors Stubbs and Hay Get Into Controversy.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—Governor Stubbs of Kansas "jumped on" Secretary Ballinger and scored the "Alaskan coal thieves" in a short speech at the conference of governors at the afternoon session of the conservation congress.

After the meeting Governor Hay of Washington engaged in a heated controversy with the Kansas executive, shaking his finger threateningly in the latter's face.

Governor Stubbs walked away laughing scornfully.

States' rights or federal control was the main theme of discussion.

torney Ritsher by Mrs. Clementina Wirth, Mrs. Emma F. Weizenberg, Mrs. Agnes P. Schuler, Mrs. Amelia Baehner and three of their friends total almost $200,000.

Although none of the money said to have been lost by Ritsher on the racetrack has been traced it is declared that if it can be found through whom this money was lost the estate could recover three times the amount lost. Should this prove possible Attorney Rosen declared he would see to it that the executor took the necessary steps for the recovery of the money.

D. P. O'Neill's Record

In order to acquaint the voters of the Sixty-First Legislative District more fully with my career as a citizen of the State of Minnesota and as a member of two legislative sessions of the legislature of the state, I herewith submit the following statement for their consideration:

A Farmer.

I was born in Ontario, Canada, in 1853, and arrived in Stillwater at the age of 18. When of age, I entered upon and proved up a homestead in Big Stone County, Minnesota, and have followed up farming as an occupation ever since, being at present so engaged near Thief River Falls.

In The Legislature.

In the sessions of the state legislature of the years 1893 and 1899, I served as a member of the House from the district of which Big Stone County was a part. While in the legislature, I gave my active support to some of the most important legislation affecting the farming interests, and the laboring men that has ever been enacted in this state; this, too, at a time when opposition to corporations was not as pleasant a pastime as it now is.

Did Good Work.

I aided in the organization of the Farmers' Alliance, and was one of those who had the honor of helping to establish the binding twine industry. Other bills I supported, are: the Jacobson four per cent gross earning tax law; the law compelling railways to select swamp lands; the election of the railway and warehouse commissioners by popular vote: the measure prohibiting railways from raising rates without the approval of the railway and warehouse commissioners; the bill for the protection of railway employees; the bill providing for the state elevator at Duluth; the creation of the state dairy and food commission and preventing the adulteration of food; establishing a oard of appeals in matters of grain inspection; a bill favoring licensing commission merchants and requiring that they report returns to consignor within twenty-four hours; forcing all elevators to become public elevators requiring a license; a bill granting an annual appropriation for the Soldiers' Home; the Gutterson bill granting the special aid to certain rural, graded and high schools; a bill regulating the sale of binding twine; a measure for the redemption rom Foreclosure sale on chattel mortgage the bill authorzing villages to vote on the establishment of lighting plants; the various initiative and referendum measures introduced; the appropriation for mailing "The History of the Minnesota Soldiers in the Civil War" to all the veterans; and the first primary election measure introduced in the legislature. I also introduded two score bills, all but three of which I succeeded in passing through the House,—many of which finally were placed on the statute books. Among these is one making a promissory not legal payment on an insurance policy, and another known as the Torrens Land Transfer law, this latter failing to pass in the senate.

Experience Valuable.

I believe that my four years experience as a legislator would be a valuable asset for the House member from he Sixty-First District, particularly at this session of the legislature, and I feel confident that my official record, as briefly set forth in the above statement, definitely places me on the side of the tax-payer. Believing my platform which appears in all the papers of the district merits the serious consideration of all persons interested in the masses and welfare of the state, I respectfully solicit your support and vote at the approaching primary election.

Very truly yours,
D. P. O'Neill.

PROTECTION, LOCAL AND NATIONAL.

When, you want any article of merchandise buy it of a reputable home dealer, that the profit may remain to enrich the community. Send your money abroad only for what you cannot purchase at home. Home talent, home labor, home industry, home capital, and home pleasures are things to be fostered, encouraged and patronized.

That is Protection pure and simple. It is as good doctrine for Arkansas as for Rhode Island. It fits every section, every community, large or small. If it is good for Harrison it is good for the whole country. All over the South sensible people are beginning to see it that way.

Don't Be A Knocker!

To whom it may concern:

If there is any chance to boom business, boom it. Don't pull a long face and hope as though you had a sour stomach. Hold up your head, smile and look for better things. Hide your little hammer and try to speak well of others, no matter how small you may really know yourself to be. When a stranger drops in, Jolly him, Tell him this is the greatest town on earth—and it is. Don't discourage him by speaking ill of your neighbors. Lead him to believe he has at last struck a place where white people live.

Help yourself along by becoming popular, and push your friends with you. It's easy, be a good fellow and soon you'll have a procession of followers. No man ever helped himself by knocking other people down in character and business. No man ever got rich by trying to make others believe he was the only man in town or the only man in town who knows anything. You can't climb the ladder of success by treading on others's corns. Keep of the corns and don't knock!. You're not the only, there are others! And they have brains and know something as well as you. There is no end of fun minding your own business, it makes other people like you. Nobody gets stuck on a knocker.

An Explanation.

Editor of the Pioneer. I'll ask for space to reverce my report in the last issue of the pioneer, about losing some hay, It was a peculier circumstance about this hay deal. The hay was taken by a friend of mine, and with no bad intention, as he had a right to it but owing to mistake and neglect I was brought to think it was stole.

I cut some hay on a fractional piece of land in sec. 13 along the res. line and on the ground that I was not familar with the fact that it cuts a fractitn of 7 acres, in the N E ¼ of same sec. That fraction is partly hayland and in one body with the rest. I made the hay on the whole piece in the good faith that it belonged to the same claim and as my friend was using the farm it belongs to. he was entitled to the item of hay ground on those 7 acres on which he took the load, but as I knew nothing of my mistake of cutting over. Neither what become of the hay and by inquiring some neighbors nothing had been seen. I was faced to think that some stranger accidently had stole this hay and in justice to my northy neighbors and myself. I gave this explantion and I am glad to come in line with my farmers experience and opinion that this part of the country are settled with only honest people.

O. Juberg.

The Widow.

"In a town," said a life insurance official, "where life insurance was a rare thing a schoolteacher said to a little boy pupil:

"'Tommy, define the word widow.'

"'A widow,' Tommy answered, 'is a poor woman with a large family of children who takes boarders.'"

Painfully Frank.

Wedderly—They say that a man and his wife grow to look alike after they have been married a few years. Now, my wife and I have been married ten years. Do you think we look alike? Singleton—Yes, indeed. You both seem to have the same sad expression.

Might Have Been Worse.

Rheumatic Patient—Oh, doctor, I do suffer so with my hands and feet! Cheery Doctor—My dear woman, only think what inconvenience you would have to suffer without them.

THE CROOKSTON MEDICAL INSTITUTE DOCTORS CURED ME

Hundreds of men, women and children in all the walks of life, whom other doctors failed to cure, have repeated the above words since the opening of this institute 8 months ago.

We have the newest methods in restoring to health all those who are afflicted with chronic diseases. The latest electrical appliances are used for those who do not receive relief from drugs.

We especially want those apparently hopeless cases where other physicians failed to cure; no matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, our method is an absolute cure, regardless of your age or occupation.

You have the opinion of four of the best physicians in the states, Dr. C. Lewis Schneider, who was associated with the Mayo Bros. of Rochester, Minn.; Dr. J. L. prentice, staff physician of the Hot Springs Red Cross Hospital; Dr. James Davidson, 24 years with the Quaker Doctors, and Dr. William Grant, 43 years in the service of the U S Goverment.

Our hospital and offices are open from 8 a. m. to 8 p m., and any person can obtain free consultation at any time by calling, writing or phoning 874. Crookston Medical Institute. Corner Main and Fletcher Street.

We are fortunate to have Dr. J. Davidson the manager of the Crookston Medical Institute, here all next week consultation to all those afflicted with old Chronic deseases. The lame are made to walk, The blind are made to see. The deaf are made to hear. Come to see him

Value of Long Service.

The eastern and particularly the New England States have in the past had much more influence in congress than is warranted by their representation there. The reason for this is that they keep their representatives in service until they get to be leaders. A congressman in his first term has very little influence on the course of legislation In his second term he has a little more, and after he has served two terms he begins to be a power. The only way the west can overcome this control of congress largely by eastern influence is to pursue the same course. When they have a man in congress who is able and in accord with the people on the principle issues keep him there. If we want to be without any influence in congress elect a new man each term.

His Peers.

"Pa, what does it mean to be tried by a jury of one's peers?"

"It means, my son, that a man is to be tried by a jury composed of men who are his equals or on an equality with him, so that they will have no prejudice against him."

"Then, pa, I s'pose you'd have to be tried by a jury of baldheaded men."

One hundred and nine actions have been begun for the government to quiet titles to as many tracts of land on the White Earth Reservation. Titles certainly should quiet down some at this rate.

Colonel Roosevelt is now kept on the defensive and has been forced to come out of the dark woods as a progressive republican. The queerest part is that he at the same time wishes to retain his close relations with Taft and the interests. Even the mighty Colonel will find it hard to carry water on both shoulders.

The investigation committee really dared to report that Ballinger should be discharged. Just think, Public Opinion has become strong enough so that it can really secure the discharge of one of the smartest grafters of our age. Why not have an investigation of some of the affairs of Vice President Sherman? The country could stand a few more vacancies without suffering very much.

The farmer who owns a farm is the particular person who is fixed. Banks may fail and factories close, workmen strike and mines suspend, merchants fail and towns burn, times may be panicky and even crops may be short- but the farmer who owns his acres will get along. He will live in comfort and quiet, with plenty to eat and wear. He is the most independent man on earth. Yet there are lots of them who do not appreciate their situation.

Probably the best statement in Ex President Roosevelt's "Political Creed" as given by the Minneapolis Journal is — "No man should make a promise before election that he does not intend to keep after election, and if he does not keep it hunt him out." —Our Ex President might have added-But first inspect carefully the promises your candidates make before election :mere generalities count for absolutely nothing. See that his pledges are clear, concise and to the point.

Remember A.L.

Hanson is one of the squarest senators that ever served in the Minnesota State Senate. He should be honored with fair treatment and a re-election that would look like a grateful endorsement and yet some would-be cute politicians have induced one G. L. Hanson to file for this office with evidently no other purpose than to detract votes from Senator Hanson The editor of this paper called on G. L. Hanson last Tuesday and was told straight to his face by that gentlemen that he did not care what people considered his candidacy.

When you vote be sure you vote for A. L. Hanson the man with the the first letter of the alphabet.

Dividing a Long Sermon.

Dr. Samuel Buell of the last half of the eighteenth century, who used to preach two or three hours, like Isaac Barrows, was ingenious in detaining his congregation. On one occasion, after preaching nearly two hours as long as he could feel secure in the presence of all his hearers—he remarked that he was done preaching to sinners and that they were at liberty to go; the rest of his discourse would be addressed to good people.

A gentleman who once went to hear him stated that when the hourglass was nearly ready to be turned a second time from the commencement of his sermon he said, much to the relief of the person who related it, "Once more." After going on some eight or ten minutes longer he said, "To conclude," and after another about equal interval he said, "Lastly."

The gentleman added that he expected every moment to hear him say "Everlastingly."

This Is Roosevelt's Warning In Speech at St. Paul.

WE ARE RECKLESS SPENDERS

Deals With State and Federal Control of Waterways—Explains How Great Conservation Fight Has Been Won. Special Interests Must Be Controlled.

St. Paul, Sept. 6.—America's reputation for efficiency stands deservedly high throughout the world. We are efficient probably to the full limit that any nation can attain by the methods hitherto used. There is great reason to be proud of our achievements and yet no reason to believe that we cannot excel our past. Through a practically unrestrained individualism we have reached a pitch of literally unexampled material prosperity, although the distribution of this prosperity leaves much to be desired from the standpoint of justice and fair dealing.

But we have not only allowed the individual a free hand, which was in the main right; we have also allowed great corporations to act as though they were individuals and to exercise the rights of individuals, in addition to using the vast combined power of high organization and enormous wealth for their own advantage.

This development of corporate action, it is true, is doubtless in large part responsible for the gigantic development of our natural resources, but it is not less responsible for waste, destruction and monopoly on an equally gigantic scale.

The method of reckless and uncontrolled private use and waste has done for us all the good it ever can, and it is time to put an end to it before it does all the evil it easily may. We have passed the time when heedless waste and destruction and arrogant monopoly are any longer permissible.

Henceforth we must seek national efficiency by a new and a better way, by the way of the orderly development and use, coupled with the preservation of our natural resources, by making the most of what we have for the benefit of all of us, instead of leaving the sources of material prosperity open to indiscriminate exploitation.

These are some of the reasons why it is wise that we should abandon the old point of view and why conservation has become a patriotic duty.

Waterways.

One of the greatest of our conservation problems is the wise and prompt development and use of the waterways of this nation.

The Twin Cities, lying as they do at the headwaters of the Mississippi, are not upon the direct line of the proposed lakes to the gulf deep waterway. Yet they are deeply interested in its prompt completion, as well as in the deepening and regulation of the Mississippi to the mouth of the Missouri and to the gulf.

The project for a great trunk waterway, an arm of the sea, extending from the gulf of Mexico to the great lakes, should not be abandoned. The lakes to the gulf deep waterway and the development of the rivers which flow into it should be pushed to completion vigorously and without delay. But we must recognize at the outset that there are certain conditions without which the people cannot hope to derive from it the benefits they have a right to expect.

In nearly every river city from St. Paul to the gulf the water front is controlled by the railways. Nearly every artificial waterway in the United States, either directly or indirectly, is under the same control.

It goes without saying that unless the people prevent it in advance the railways will attempt to take control of our waterways as fast as they are improved and completed, nor would I blame them if we, the people, are supine in the matter.

We must see to it that adequate terminals are provided in every city and town on every improved waterway, terminals open under reasonable conditions to the use of every citizen and rigidly protected against monopoly. And we must compel the railways to co-operate with the waterways continuously, effectively and under reasonable conditions.

Unless we do so the railway lines will refuse to deliver freight to the boat lines, either openly or by imposing prohibitory conditions, and the waterways once improved will do comparatively little for the benefit of the people who pay the bill.

The National Forests.

The people of the United States believe in the complete and rounded development of inland waterways for all the useful purposes they can be made to serve. They believe also in forest protection and forest extension.

The fight for our national forests in the west has been won. After a campaign in which the women of Minnesota did work which should secure to them the perpetual gratitude of their state Minnesota won her national forest and will keep it, but the fight to create the southern Appalachian and White mountain forests in the east is not yet over.

The bill has passed the house and will come before the senate for a vote next February. The people of the United States regardless of party or section should stand solidly behind it and see that their representatives do likewise.

If any proof were needed that forest protection is a national duty the recent destruction of forests in the west by fire would supply it. Even with the aid of the army added to that of the forest service the loss has been severe. Without either it would have been vastly greater.

But the forest service does more than protect the national forests against fire. It makes them practically and increasingly useful as well. During the last year for which I have the figures the national forests were used by 22,000 cattlemen with their herds, 5,000 sheepmen with their flocks, 5,000 timbermen with their crews and 45,000 miners. More than 5,000 persons used them for other special industries. Nearly 34,000 settlers had the free use of wood.

The total resident population of the national forests is about a quarter of a million, which is larger than the population of certain states.

More than 700,000 acres of agricultural land have been patented or listed for patent within the forests, and the reports of the forest officers show that more than 400,000 people a year use the forests for recreation, camping, hunting, fishing and similar purposes. All this is done, of course, without injury to the timber, which has a value of at least $1,000,000,000.

Moreover, the national forests protect the water supply of a thousand cities and towns, about 800 irrigation projects and more than 300 power projects, not counting the use of water for these and other purposes by individual settlers.

I think that hereafter we may safely disregard any statements that the national forests are withdrawn from settlement and use.

A Country Life Institute.

The investigations of the country life commission have led the farmers of this country to realize that they have not been getting their fair share of progress and all that it brings. Some of our farming communities in the Mississippi valley and in the middle west have made marvelous progress, yet even the best of them, like communities of every other kind, are not beyond improvement, while much needs to be done in some other sections to improve country life.

As yet we know comparatively little of the basic facts of rural civilization. The means for better farming we have studied with care, but to better living on the farm and to better business on the farm the farmers themselves have given scant attention.

Last spring while visiting the capital of Hungary, Budapest, I was immensely impressed by the Museum of Country Life, containing an extraordinary series of studies in agriculture, in stock raising, in forestry, in mining. The exhibits were of the utmost practical importance and were also intensely interesting and instructive.

I greatly wish we had such a museum in Washington, and some of your farmer congressmen ought to get a full and detailed report of this Budapest museum to be printed for distribution in a public document.

Human Efficiency.

As a people we have not yet learned to economize. One of the virtues we Americans most need is thrift. It is a mere truism to say that luxury and extravagance are not good for a nation. So far as they affect character, the loss they cause may be beyond computation. But in the material sense there is a loss greater than is caused by both extravagance and luxury put together.

I mean the needless, useless and excessive loss to our people from premature death and avoidable diseases. Wholly apart from the grief, the suffering and the wretchedness which they cause, the material loss each year has been calculated at nearly twice what it costs to run the federal government.

In addition to the state and city health officers and organizations, there is urgently needed a federal bureau of health, to act, so far as the national government properly may, to relieve our people from this dreadful burden.

The National Conservation Commission.

One of the most important meetings in our recent history was that of the governors in the White House in May, 1908, to consider the conservation question. By the advice of the governors the meeting was followed by the appointment of a national conservation commission. The meeting of the governors directed the attention of the country to conservation as nothing else could have done, while the work of the commission gave the movement definiteness and supplied it with a practical program. But at the moment when the commission was ready to begin the campaign for putting its program into effect an amendment to the sundry civil service bill was introduced by a congressman from Minnesota with the purpose of putting a stop to the work so admirably begun. Congress passed the amendment.

It deserves the confidence and support of every citizen interested in the wise development and preservation of our natural resources and in preventing them from passing into the hands of uncontrolled monopolies. It joins with the national conservation congress in holding this meeting. I am here by the joint invitation of both.

State and Federal Control.

But, while we of the United States are anxious as I believe we are able to be of assistance to others, there are problems of our own which we must not overlook. One of the most important conservation questions of the moment relates to the control of water power monopoly in the public interest.

There is apparent to the judicious observer a distinct tendency on the part of our opponents to cloud the issue by raising the question of state as against federal jurisdiction. We are ready to meet that issue it if is forced upon us. But there is no hope for the plain people in such conflicts of jurisdiction.

The essential question is not one of hair splitting legal technicalities. It is simply this: Who can best regulate the special interests for the public good?

Most of the predatory corporations are interstate or have interstate affiliations; therefore they are largely out of reach of effective state control and fall of necessity within the federal jurisdiction. One of the prime objects of those among them that are grasping and greedy is to avoid any effective control either by state or nation, and they advocate at this time state control simply because they believe it to be the least effective.

In the great fight of the people to drive the special interests from the domination of our government the nation is stronger and its jurisdiction is more effective than that of any state. The most effective weapon against these great corporations, most of which are financed and owned on the Atlantic coast, will be federal laws and the federal executive.

That is why I so strongly oppose the demand to turn these matters over to the states. It is fundamentally a demand against the interest of the plain people, of the people of small means, against the interest of our children and our children's children, and it is primarily in the interest of the great corporations, which desire to escape all government control.

The Conservation Fight.

One of the difficulties in putting into practice the conservation idea is that the field to which it applies is constantly growing in the public mind. It has been no slight task to bring before 100,000,000 people a great conception like that of conservation and convince them that it is right.

This much we have accomplished. But there remain much to be cleared up and many misunderstandings to be removed. These misunderstandings are due in part at least to direct misrepresentation by the men to whose interest it is that conservation should not prosper.

For example, we find it constantly said by men who should know better that temporary withdrawals, such as the withdrawals of coal lands, will permanently check development.

Yet the fact is that these withdrawals have no purpose except to prevent the coal lands from passing into private ownership until congress can pass laws to open them to development under conditions just alike to the public and to the men who will do the developing.

If there is delay the responsibility for it rests not on the men who made the withdrawals to protect the public interest, but on those who prevent congress from passing wise legislation and so putting an end to the need for withdrawals.

We have a right to congratulate ourselves on this marvelous progress. But there is no reason for believing that the fight is won. In the beginning the special interests, who are our chief opponents in the conservation fight, paid little heed to the movement, because they neither understood it nor saw that if it won they might lose. But with the progress of conservation in the minds of our people the fight is getting sharper.

The nearer we approach to victory the bitterer the opposition that we must meet and the greater the need for caution and watchfulness. Open opposition we can overcome, but I warn you especially against the men who come to congresses such as this, ostensibly as disinterested citizens, but actually as the paid agents of the special interests.

I heartily approve the attitude of any corporation, interested in the deliberations of a meeting such as this, which comes hither to advocate by its openly accredited agents views which it believes the meeting should have in mind. But I condemn with equal readiness the appearance of a corporate agent before any convention who does not declare himself frankly as such.

This congress is a direct appeal to the patriotism of our whole people. The nation wisely looks to such gatherings for counsel and leadership. Let that leadership be sound, definite, practical and on the side of all the people. It would be no small misfortune if a meeting such as this should ever fall into the hands of the open enemies or false friends of the great movement which it represents.

What this country needs is what every free country must set before it as the great goal toward which it works—an equal opportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for every one of its citizens. To achieve this end we must put a stop to the improper political dominion no less than the improper economic dominion of the great special interests.

This country, its natural resources, its natural advantages, its opportunities and its institutions belong to all its citizens.

They cannot be enjoyed fully and freely under any government in which the special interests as such have a voice. The supreme political task of our day, the indispensable condition of national efficiency and national welfare is to drive the special interests out of our public life.

MISS ELKINS.

Rumor Says She Will Be Married in February.

RUMOR SETS WEDDING DATE

Elkins-Abruzzi Nuptials Reported Arranged for Next February.

Paris, Sept. 4.—Miss Katherine Elkins and Mrs. R. S. R. Hitt have returned to Paris from London. Circumstantial stories published here, as well as in Rome, are to the effect that Miss Elkins and the Duke of the Abruzzi will be married in February, the opposition of Dowager Queen Margherita having been abandoned.

According to those reports the announcement of the engagement will be made in October. The Duchess of Aosta is represented as still opposing the union.

INCREASE IN IMPORTS

Past Year a Record Breaker Under New Tariff Law.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Uncle Sam's import trade, under the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, during the past year was a record breaker, according to the government's statistical experts. Under this law, during the twelve months ending July 31 last, imports aggregating $1,562,600,000 came into the United States. Of this vast total $794,600,000 was listed as dutiable, while $768,000,000 entered free of duty. Although it was the first year of the Payne-Aldrich law it eclipsed all former records under the Dingley, Wilson and McKinley laws.

Until the Payne-Aldrich law became effective, Aug. 1, 1909, the banner year of the previous eighteen years had been 1907, when under the Dingley act an aggregate of $1,456,500,000 of imports was recorded.

NEW YORK CITY IS GROWING

Now the Second Largest City in the World.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Greater New York has a population of 4,766,883 under the thirteenth decennial census, according to figures issued by Director of the Census Durand. This makes New York the second largest city in the world, and as large as any two foreign cities, excepting London.

Since 1900 the population of the metropolis has increased by 1,329,681, or 38.7 per cent, as compared with 3,437,202 under the last census.

Albani and Gye.

The story of Mme. Albani's first London engagement is as follows: Colonel Mapleson heard of her singing at a theater at Malta, and, thinking that she would be successful, he made her an offer through an agent of a contract to sing in Her Majesty's theater. She agreed to it and went to London, but on arriving there she told the cabman to drive her to the Italian opera house. He, instead of going to Her Majesty's, took her to Covent Garden, which was also devoted to Italian opera. She was shown up to the manager's office and stated that she had come to sign the contract which Mr. Mapleson had offered her. Mr. Gye, thinking to play a joke on his rival, Mapleson, made out a contract, and Albani signed it. Mr. Gye then told her that he was not Colonel Mapleson, but that he could do much better by her. He offered to tear up the contract if she liked, but told her that Nilsson was singing at Her Majesty's and would brook no rival. Albani decided to let the contract stand and thus became one of the stars of Covent Gardens, eventually marrying the son of Mr. Gye.

His Final Plea.

A Chicago man appeared at the White House one day during the McKinley administration with a petition containing 7,000 names recommending him for appointment as Brazilian minister. He was a picture framer, and when he was canvassing for orders he took along his petition and asked everybody in the picture frame business to sign it. Almost everybody did.

The man was insistent and finally reached the president. Always gentle and considerate, President McKinley explained to the candidate that he would have to consult the Illinois senators and representatives about the matter before making the appointment.

"You know," said the president, "we have to select big men for these big places."

"Well," asked the picture framer, "won't I be just as big as any of them if I get the job?"—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

The Lost Umbrella.

"I have been coming here for my lunch for years, but never again," said a man to the head waiter of a downtown restaurant recently. "Sorry," began the waiter. "Sorry, nothing. I left the umbrella here not five minutes ago, there was no one near our table, and the waiter must have seen it." "If we find it"— "Find it? It is found, I tell you, and I'll have it now or you'll never see me here again."

The man, flushed with excitement, was walking away when he was hailed by a man who had entered by the rear door: "Say, Frank, is this your umbrella? I picked it up when we finished lunch. Glad you were still here." "Here, but not still," the head waiter whispered. "The umbrella has been found, but our customer has been lost for a few days. He'll be ashamed to come in for a little while."—New York Tribune.

Gone For Good.

Some folks in foreign lands have their own way of determining whether their relatives who have migrated to this land of ours have become hopelessly Americanized. One old lady in Germany reached her conclusion in a way that can be appreciated only by those who know the type of the German butter dish, deep as a bowl, and the German reverence therefor. Last week her granddaughter in New York received this sad lament:

"You will never come back. You are lost to us. Hans (a cousin) arrived here from New York on Monday and reports that you have even given up our deep German butter dishes and are using those shallow little plates that Americans like."—New York Times.

Modern Kids.

"So you love your new little brother?" asked the visitor. "Well, dearie, will you sell him to me? I'll give you $1 for every ounce he weighs."

"No, I won't!" answered the angel child.

"Dear, loyal little sister!" beamed the visitor. "And why not?"

"Because," answered the tiny tot, with a quivering lip—"because he only weighs six pounds. Come back next month an' I'll see if we can't make a deal."—Cleveland Leader.

His Weak Point.

A man who takes a business view of things when recently asked his opinion of a person of quite a poetic temperament replied:

"Oh, he's one of those men who have soarings after the infinite and divings after the unfathomable, but who never pay cash."

The Case Altered.

Brown—Is it correct to speak of a man as "of the male persuasion?"

Jones—Yes, if the subject is not married.

"What has that to do with the matter?"

"Why, when he is married his wife persuades him."

Recipe For Longevity.

People live longer in North Carolina than anywhere else in the world, chiefly because they lead the simple life, drink buttermilk and eat blackberries fresh in summer and dried in winter.—Raleigh News and Observer.

No Profit In It.

"What are you kicking about? She returned all your presents, didn't she?"

"Yes, but the expressage amounted to more than the presents were worth!"

DEFEATS ALL OF THE AMERICANS

English Aviator Is First In Five Classes.

ON AN EXHIBITION FLIGHT

Claude Grahame-White Carries a New York Woman With Him and Encircles the Course Twice on the Trip. Englishman Makes Fastest Time and Gets Distance Record at Harvard-Boston Meet.

Boston, Sept. 6.—Claude Grahame-White of England proved himself the superior of all the aviators taking part in the second day's events of the Harvard-Boston aero meet at Atlantic, when he took first place in all five classes contested.

In addition, White gained plaudits repeatedly when, in exhibition flights, he demonstrated the hazardous feats of the men of the air in dipping and swooping and making short turns. He did this not only alone, but in one of his flights took up Miss Mary Campbell of New York, and after twice circling the course in an easy manner gave her a thrill with a 200-foot slide down the wind to within ten feet of the ground from which elevation he dropped lightly onto the turf.

The best time of the day, made by White, was 5¼ miles in six minutes, one second, with a Bleriot.

White's distance record of the day was 45 miles, 617 feet, on which trip he was 1 hour, 16 minutes and 7 seconds in the air.

White in a Bleriot, Curtiss in his own machine, and Willard in another Curtis competed in the speed contest of three laps of the mile and three-quarters course. White did it in 6 minutes, 1 second; Curtis in 6 minutes, 31 seconds, and Willard in 7 minutes, 38 4-5 seconds.

There were eight entries in the duration contest, White winning out by remaining up 1 hour, 16 minutes and 7 seconds, while Johnstone was in the air 48 minutes, 54 2-5 seconds.

The five contestants in the distance event were obliged to allow first place to White, who made 45 miles, 617 feet, Johnstone being second with 26 miles, 3,107 feet.

In the bomb-dropping contest White proved himself the star performer of the day, dropping two of his ten bombs directly into the funnel of the battleship, while all of his other shots hit some part of the deck.

On points to date Claude Grahame-White has 68, Glenn H. Curtis 27, Charles F. Willard 13, Ralph Johnstone 6 and Walter Brookins 2.

TRIES TO KILL HERSELF

Wisconsin Woman Endeavors to End Her Life in New York.

New York, Sept. 6.—In sight of thousands of pleasure seekers hurrying to the steamboats at the Battery or lounging on benches, Mrs. Anna Richter, fifty-nine years old, of Wausau, Wis., attempted to kill herself in Battery park.

With a sharp penknife she made three slashes at her left wrist, inflicting deep wounds from which the blood gushed in streams. Policeman Duffy was within a few feet of the woman and took the knife away from her before she had succeeded in severing the arteries in her arm. She fought desperately with the policeman and he was compelled to ask the assistance of two park attendants in order to fix a tourniquet on her arm. Dr. Wesson took her to Hudson street hospital, where it was said that she has about an even chance of recovery.

Mrs. Richter is the wife of a well to do florist of Wausau. She spent the summer at her old home in Vienna, returning Sunday on the Red Star liner Lapland. She traveled with Phillip Michaels and his family, also of Wausau.

The Michaels say that Mrs. Richter had been acting strangely for a week. She continually spoke of fears of being arrested on arriving in Chicago. Watch was kept over her, but she eluded her friends.

GETS POPULAR DECISION

Al Kaufman Defeats Bill Lang of Australia.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—Al Kaufman, the heavyweight of California, got the popular decision over Bill Lang, the Australian heavyweight. In only one round, the second, did the Australian show to advantage. From this round to the close of the fight Kaufman had all the advantage. The fight, as a spectacular exhibition, was disappointing.

In the fifth round Kaufman drove Lang to the ropes and had him in evident distress, but the Australian grabbed his heavy opponent and hung on long enough to save himself from a probable knockout.

The bout between Kaufman and Lang was scheduled for six rounds. When the principals appeared in the ring there were between 7,000 and 8,000 persons in the ball park. Seated in the boxes and through the big grand stand there were many women who had been admitted to a public boxing bout for the first time in the history of boxing in this city.

STRIKE IS ENDED

Great Industrial Struggle Is at Last Terminated.

WILL ALL RETURN TO WORK

Seventy Thousand New York Garment Workers Have Been Idle for Nine Weeks.

New York, Sept. 3.—The cloakmakers' strike, one of the greatest industrial disturbances in the history of American labor, has been settled. Seventy thousand garment workers who have been idle for nine weeks will shortly return to work. Ten thousand of them and those dependent on them, 50,000 in all, were on the point of eviction. Hundreds have already been forced to the streets.

The industrial loss to employers and employes has run high into the millions. In loss of wages alone the total is more than $10,000,000. while the loss to manufacturers, jobbers and retailers the country over has been computed at ten times that amount.

In spite of the stupendous readjustment involved, the strike has been, in the main, notable for its peacefulness. There were numerous cases of petty disorder, and a petition of the manufacturers brought forth from Justice Goff of the state supreme court an injunction in which he ruled that any strike called to demand the closed shop was in restraint of trade.

Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the manufacturers' association, describes the agreement signed by him and representatives of the strikers in this sentence:

Unions Win a Victory.

"No principle has been surrendered by the manufacturers, yet the union may truly assert it has won a great victory for its people. The manufacturers believe in the union and in the principle that all who desire its benefits should share in its burdens."

One essential to this victory, and one important not only to the strikers but to the nation at large which wears their output, is the abolition of all contract work at home. Hereafter garments made in New York will be manufactured under sanitary conditions.

There will be no more sweat shops. The rock on which all previous efforts at mutual conciliation have split has been the closed shop. That rock has now been avoided by the adoption of the "preferential union shop" idea, for which Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, formerly counsel for Glavis, in the Pinchot and Ballinger hearing, is given full credit.

Fall Tillage.

There has seldom been a year in Minnesota when good tillage has proven of great an advantage as it has been during the past growing season. As never before, Minnesota farmers have seen the advisability of storing in the soil as much moisture as possible before a crop is sown.

Now is the time to save moisture for next year's crops. Discing the stubble fields at once will check the evaporation of any moisture that may be in the soil, and will loosen up the surface so that rain will more readily penetrate the soil.

Discing will cost not to exceed 35 cents per acre, and may be the means of helping to carry the crop over a dry period text season, when the ture would mean a seriots loos.

Such tillage is not only valuable in conserving moisture, but it aids greatly in destroying weeds and liberating plant food. The Minnesota Experiment Station uages the practice sf discing stubble fields wherever it is practicable to do so.

Political Announcement.

Representative

I hereby announce myself as a Republican Candidate for Representative of the 61st district which comprises the counties of Beltrami, Clearwater and Red Lake.

If nominated and elected to this honerable position, I pledge the people of Northern Minnesota to heartily support their demands as expressed by the people's representatives at the conventions recently held in Bemidje and Crookston. Re-apportionment and good roads the most vital points.

I will appreciate your support and promise to serve you faithfully if nominated and elected.

Your Respectfully;
IVER A. KROHN.
SHEVLIN, MINN.

The settlement of the strike averts a crisis on the crowded East Side. With thousands out of work and unable to pay rent, the courts were literally swamped with eviction proceedings and there arose the protest of thousands of mothers and children being rendered shelterless.

Apologies only account for the evil which they cannot alter.—Cuyler.

Law and Geography.

From the half timers' papers written at a recent term examination: "Some of the chief inventions of the last 150 years are having an act so that no person under fourteen years must go into the public house. Another act was so that no person under the age of sixteen years must smoke cigars, pipes and cigarettes, and no person under that age can be served with any. My brother Bill is now all right for this invention. He was sixteen last week." Here is a geography answer: "The river system of Canada is what you might call very good, but sometimes they shoot the rapids, and unless you are a red Indian this is very troublesome at times, especially when you get sucked under like Captain Webb."—Manchester Guardian.

School Opened Monday.

The opening of the school in Plummer on Monday was evident by the rush of children along the walks that morning. Full of life and vim the pupils joyously hastened along toward the school house greeting each other in cheerful words.

The teachers were busy all day assigning the pupils to classes.

The teachers are Miss Halseth and Miss Swanson from Thief River Falls.

Tracklaying Soon Finished.

It is now announced that tracklaying on the new Thief River Falls-Duluth line of the Soo will be completed Sept. 24. Less than 20 miles remain to be laid, and the construction crew is averaging over two miles a day.

It is not likely that there will be a passanger service within the next two months, but placing it conservatively it is safe to say that a service will be in operation by Dec. 1.

The roadmaster says that it will take him six weeks to ballast up the new line and while ballast trains are at work it would be difficult to run regular trains. Freight trains carrying building material to the new townsites will be the first to be run. —T. R. News.

An Insult to Voters.

G. L. Hanson is the name of the last man who filed for the republican nomination for senator from this district. He is said to live up in Red Lake county. As the name of the present senator is A. L. Hanson, the intent of the new filing, to get the voters mixed up as to which is the right Hanson, is evident. The promoters of the scheme evidently go on the assumption that the voters are very ignorant and can be easily led astray by tricks of that kind. When the ballots are counted we predict there will be very few votes for G. L. Hanson.—Waubun Forum.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Mayor of Columbus Wants to Have One Called.

MAKES DEMAND ON HARMON

Desires That the Governor of Ohio Summon the State Solons to Enact a Compulsory Arbitration Law and One Aimed to Prevent the Overcapitalization of Corporations.

Columbus, O., Sept. 13.—Mayor Marshall, by formal letter, called on Governor Harmon to summon the general assembly in special session to enact a compulsory arbitration law and one aimed to prevent overcapitalization of corporations. In part his letter reads:

"I respectfully request that the general assembly of Ohio be called into special session to enact laws relating to public service corporations.

"First—Providing for compulsory arbitration and protection of the public in the event of strikes and lockouts.

"Second—Defining distinctly the relation between such corporations and their employes and the obligations of one to the other.

"Third—Preventing overcapitalization. If the Columbus Railway and Light company had had no obligations except that relating to the true value in money of the property it operates—that is, had it not been obliged to pay dividends on "watered" stock—no doubt a reasonable increase of wages would have been made on demand of employes.

"Then there would have been no strike, no violence, no interference with street car service and no disgrace of the city.

"The problem is so difficult that the general assembly ought to have nothing else before it when it comes to consider it."

Governor Harmon's Reply.

Governor Harmon, replying to the mayor, said in part:

"Certainly, in view of the expense which the state has already been put to to maintain order in Columbus, you are the last who should suggest putting it to the further great expense of a special session.

"You assume that I have only to call the legislature and tell them what to do. At both sessions the Republican majority which controls both branches took special pains to treat my recommendations with little or no respect and sometimes, as in the case of the one directed against lobbyists, with studied discourtesy. Now, with the presiding officer of each house and many of the members candidates at the pending election, you seem to think that this majority would come to me and eat out of my hand, as it were.

"Under the circumstances I certainly would not be justified in calling a special session, even if I were prepared to recommend the various measures you mention.

"I am bound in frankness to say that your sending such a letter at this time and promptly giving it to the press suggests a desire to make up by fertility in recommending new laws for the lack of efficiency in enforcing existing laws with which you are charged by the public in general."

THREE FACE GRAND CHARGES

Grand Jury Returns First Indictments. Thirteen Are Made Citizens.

Bemidji, Sept. 15.—Three persons will be required to answer to serious charges as the result of indictments returned today by the Beltrami county grand jury, now in session here.

Frank VanTassel, who is alleged to have attacked John Lehner with an ax was indicted on a charge of assault in the first degree. Conviction carries with it a possible penitentiary sentence of ten years.

John Carlton, arrested on the charge of having held up and robbed John Ingbert on the lake shore in Bemidji last April, was indicted on a highway robbery charge. The case attracted much attention at the time of the alleged crime. Carlton is presumed to have taken about $400 from Ingbert at the point of a revolver.

John Davis, of the town of Liberty was indicted of intimacy with a girl under 14 years of age.

The grand jury is hard at work and is transacting its business with much rapidity. However aside from the three indictments above mentioned the labor of the grand jurymen is secret.

Raymond H. Schumaker, cashier of the First National bank, is foreman of the grand jury. It is thought that the body will have finished its labors within the next few days.

In the district court before Judge C. W. Stanton, thirteen persons were granted their naturalization papers yesterday and today. R. K. Doe, United States naturalization agent of St. Paul, examined the candidates for citizenship, who are required to show their fitness for such an honor. They must be able to read and write and know something about the government and current affairs.

ONLY SIX WILL BE PRESENT

Ballinger Committee Meeting Will Not Have Quorum.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Failure to count a quorum when the Republican members of the Ballinger congressional committee investigating Secretary Ballinger meets here will prevent the adoption of a committee report, according to Elihu Root, United States senator from New York, who is here to attend the meeting. Six committeemen will attend the meeting. They are Senator Root and Sutherland of Utah and Representatives Olmsted of Pennsylvania, Denby of Michigan, McCall of Massachusetts and Senator Nelson of Minnesota, chairman of the committee.

It will require seven members to constitute a quorum and the absence of Senator Flint of California will place any action taken at the meeting in the same position as the report adopted by five members at Minneapolis last week.

DEATH OF MAN IS A MYSTERY

Saddle and Bones Found Near Williston, N. D.

Williston, N. D., Sept. 13.—Only a saddle is left by which the identity of a man whose bleached bones were found on a rocky tract in far western McKenzie county may be established. The mane and tail of a horse, the bones of which are also lying on the prairie, show that the man was riding through the country. It is believed that both the human body and that of the horse were devoured by wolves.

RIOT OCCURS AT PORTLAND, ORE.

Police Have a Lively Fight With Paraders.

TEAMSTERS ARE ON STRIKE

And at Conclusion of Parade They Endeavor to Overturn a Dray and a Fierce Fight Follows—Over Seventy Thousand Persons in Line in New York—Labor Temple Dedicated at Pittsburg.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 6.—A riot in which 2,000 men were involved and as a result of which twelve arrests were made occurred at the conclusion of the Labor day parade.

The Teamsters' union is on strike and as the procession passed the office of a transfer company a few men ran out and tried to overturn a dray.

A score of bystanders joined them. Policemen rushed to the scene and fought the crowd for three blocks to land their prisoners in jail. Charges of inciting a riot were placed against the ringleaders.

LA FOLLETTE AGAIN VICTOR

Secures Renomination for Senator by Large Plurality.

Milwaukee, Sept. 8.—Returns, received by the Evening Wisconsin indicate United States Senator La Follette's plurality for renomination at 40,000 votes over his opponent, Samuel A. Cook.

La Follette ran at least 20,000 votes ahead of the state ticket, which is accounted for by reason of the several candidates running for the gubernatorial nomination.

The pluralities of McGovern and the other members of the La Follette state ticket, with the exception of Tucker, the dead man, are estimated at 20,000. Tucker's plurality, presumably because of his demise, was cut to 10,000.

TOWNSEND AN EASY WINNER

Has Large Plurality Over Burrows in Michigan.

Detroit, Sept. 8.—In the primary elections in Michigan Congressman Charles E. Townsend is conceded by supporters of Senator Burrows to have swept the state in the fight for the Republican endorsement for United States senator. Townsend's plurality is admitted to be in excess of 17,000. Charles S. Osborn of Sault Ste. Marie has a lead almost equally as good in the contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

In the Third congressional district Representative Washington Gardner, a standpatter and Cannon supporter, is defeated by over 2,000 majority by J. M. C. Smith of Charlotte.

Pinchot's Friend Named.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 4.—President Taft announced the appointment of Joseph Austin Holmes of the geological survey, as director of the new bureau of mines at Washington. Mr. Holmes is the intimate personal friend of Gifford Pinchot, James R. Garfield and F. H. Newell, director of the reclamation service.

"Pins and Needles."

After being for a long time in a constrained attitude a peculiar numbness and pricking are often felt in the arm, leg or foot. This is caused by some interruption to the circulation and can usually be removed by rubbing or exercise. The reason of the sensation, which is decidedly uncomfortable while it lasts, is that pressure for a certain length of time deadens the sensibility of a nerve. When this pressure is suddenly removed, as straightening out the leg after sitting with it doubled underneath the body, sensibility gradually returns to the nerve, and as each nerve fiber composing the trunk regains its normal condition of sensibility a pricking sensation is felt, and these successive prickings from the successive awakenings of the numerous fibers have not inaptly been called "pins and needles."

The Prayer That Hurt.

A member of a certain Massachusetts parish prominent for his thrift and personal consequence was also notorious for his overbearing assumptions and pompous airs. Under the distress and fright of a dangerous illness he "put up notes" on several successive Sundays, and after his recovery, according to usage, he offered a note to be read by the minister expressive of his thanks. The minister was somewhat "large" in this part of his prayer, recalling the danger and the previous petitions of the "squire" and returning his grateful acknowledgments with the prayer that the experience might be blessed to the spiritual welfare of the restored man. He closed with these words:

"And we pray, O Lord, that thy servant may be cured of that ungodly strut, so offensive in the sanctuary."

Remember A.L.

Hanson is one of the squarest senators that ever served in the Minnesota State Senate. He should be honored with fair treatment and a re-election that would look like a grateful endorsement and yet some would-be cute politicians have induced one G. L. Hanson to file for this office, with evidently no other purpose than to detract votes from Senator Hanson The editor of this paper called on G. L. Hanson last Tuesday and was told straight to his face by that gentlemen that he did not care what people considered his candidacy. When you vote be sure you vote for A. L. Hanson the man with the the first letter of the alphabet.

Twain and the Rivermen.

Mark Twain once told to a party of friends the following story on himself:

On one occasion when he started on a trip down the Mississippi river on a flatboat he was advised never to answer the questions asked by rivermen on other boats and never to bandy words with them, as he would be sure always to come out second best. He followed the advice religiously for a time, but one day he thought he saw a chance to get the better of a riverman who called out:

"Hey, thar, what yer loaded with?"

"Jackasses. Don't you want to come aboard?" yelled back Twain.

"That's what I reckoned seein' as how they let ther biggest donkey hev ther run of the deck!" came back. Twain made a dive below as all the rivermen in the neighborhood set up a derisive laugh at his expense.

Lots of alleged golden opportunities wouldn't stand the acid test.

Rotten Politics and Deceit of Albert Berg

In 1904 ALBERT BERG apparently made an effort to deceive the voters of the 63rd district with a rail-road survey.

Indeed, a crew was actually at work surveying and Berg announced through the county that the Canadian Northern was interested in the undertaking.

It was surmised that BERG HAD THESE MEN SURVEYING TO STRENGTHEN HIMSELF with the people of Roseau county in his campaign for the Legislature. Accordingly two of the leading business men of Roseau went to Winnipeg the head-quarters of the Canadian Northern to inquire if they were interested in the survey.

When told that a crew was at work and pretending to be in the employ of the Canadian Northern, the head office expressed great surprise and declared that THEY HAD NO SUCH CREW IN ROSEAU COUNTY. They further stated they had no intention of surveying a road through that section.

The facts of Berg's deceptive scheme were made known at once and when the voters learned the survey was a fake, their anger arose and the result was Albert Berg was elected to stay at home.

The following is an editorial from the Badger Herald-Rustler by G. J. Brenden under date, Sept. 10, 1910.

ALBERT BERG is making his campaign for the senatorial nomination over in the 61st district on good roads and reapportionment. This is all good and well but he studiously AVOIDS ALL REFERENCE TO COUNTY OPTION in his platform and talks before the public. That was to be expected. He makes reapportionment and good roads an issue in order TO DIVERT ATTENTION FROM THE REAL ISSUE NAMELY, COUNTY OPTION. He is an "interest" man and can be depended upon in an emergency. He should be sat down on by the people of the 61st district as effectually as he was in this district the last time he wanted to MISREPRESENT US in the legislature. Mr. Berg is able and all that, but by what experience we have had with him he is also FAMOUSLY CORRUPT and in that respect is a DANGEROUS MAN.

In 1904 in Roseau Count thr regular Republican County Committee failed on the proper date to call the County Convention for the purpose of electing delegates to the District Convention. (This was under the old Caucus and Convention system)

Though one day late they issued the call for the convention to be held at Badger.

Albert Berg took it upon himself TO DECLARE THE OFFICIAL CALL ILLEGAL or as he called it "defunct" He accordingly issued a call for a convention to be held at Warroad and appointed himself chairman.

The voters of Roseau County responded to his call by going into his caucases and controlling them as well as controlling the Caucuses for the official convention called for Badger.

Delegates to the number of 54 drove over roads quite like those leading to the infernal regions, to reach Warroad, a distance of thirty to fifty miles.

Arriving at Warroad THEY WERE MET AT THE CONVENTION HALL BY AN ARMED FORCE. One man having a rifle and two men with revolvers and billies. THE CREDENTIALS OF THE DELEGATION WERE PRESENTED but were refused and THE DELEGATES WERE REFUSED ADMISSION.

Berg had packed the Convention with 21 men favorable to himself. After excluding the fifty four farmers as Berg called them, they conducted THE CONVENTION TO SUIT BERG.

They elected delegates and THESE AND BERG IMMEDIABLY BOARDED A SPECIAL TRAIN going to St Paul by way of Winnepeg reaching St. Paul 24 hours ahead of the official delegation from Badger. The state credential committee gave BERG AND HIS DELEGATES THEIR DUES. They were excluded from the convention.

These are facts the public should know and are given because such methods are being used in the present campaign. We believe the placing of the name of G. L. Hanson on the ticket for Senator is a subtle, deceptive scheme to defeat A. L. HANSON the County Option Candidate.

Editorial, Roseau Region Friday, July 1, 1904. R. H. Medecraft, Editor:

The action of the Berg-Moody county committee Tuesday, in excluding by an armed force legally elected delegates to the republican county convention, IS AN OUTRAGE WITH FEW PRECEDENTS. All through the state the campaign this year has been a heated one, but in no locality have men been found unscrupulous enough to carry things on in such a high-handed manner. IT REMAINED FOR ALBERT BERG, ex-secretary of state and ex-representative, with the aid of C. A. Moody, collector of customs at Warroad, TO DEMONSTRATE TO WHAT LENGTH PARTY BITTERNESS CAN BE CARRIED. As a sequel to the disgraceful proceeding, Mr. Berg in the vilest language, announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the legislature. WITH BERG IT IS NOW THREE TIMES AND OUT. Twice before have the voters of Roseau County retired the big man to peddle milk, and IN HIS HOPELESS STRUGGLE TO GAIN POLITICAL RECOGNITION. the ex-secretary became desperate and committed the—shall we say indiscretion—of Tuesday. But the last writhings of the political corpse are over and Berg will be heard of no more. As Frank Larrabee said about the Minneapolis congressman, "he couldn't be elected dog-catcher".

Pursuaut to call of Albert Berg, the County Convention of the Republicans of Roseau County was called to be held in Selvog's hall Warroad. Primaries were held throughout the county on Saturday evening of ast week. The result of the primaries was a decided set-back to the anti-Dunn people. The sentiment for Dunn was very pronounced, and when the west end delegates began to arrive at Roseau Sunday, it was seen at once that Albert Berg and the Eddy-Collins people were beaten three to one. Early Monday morning the start to Warroad was made, eight teams taking along fifty-four (54) delegates from Roseau and the west end towns, representing 84 votes out of 104 under the call of 20 townships out of the 28 recognized under Berg's call. The result was a fore-gone conclusion.

Without any mishap the 54 men arrived at Warroad at 10 P. M., and after much difficulty succeeded in finding accommodations for the night. Early next morning they were astir prepared to transact business. Near the convention hall the delegates gathered about 9 o'clock. One of them entered and was requested by a policeman to withdraw. Upon protesting he was informed he would be locked in if he remained, so he retired. Soon it was noticed that several policemen were on guard upon the steps leading to the hall, and R. J. Bell hunted up Albert Berg to find out why the delegates were not permitted to enter the hall. He was informed by Berg that none of the delegates who had come from Roseau and the West would be permitted to enter the hall and he further asserted that if they forced their way into the hall he would not recognize them. It was next learned that the hurriedly called meeting of the village council had been ordered and eight special policemen sworn in to guard the entrance to the hall and a man with a rifle sat on the steps with them. This fact aroused the delegates' anger but every one restrained himself and it was determined to wait until Boss Berg had got thru with a farce of a convention. In a short time Berg and a few followers, numbering 21 men entered the hall. Some of them were not delegates it was ascertained, but they had been ordered in to stuff the result. In about half an hour they left the hall. Whereupon the 54 accredited delegates at once entered the proceeded to business.

Considerable feeling was manifested among the delegates by the insults offered them by the swearing in of the extra policemen to guard the entrance to the hall and the refusal of Berg to permit them to participate in the convention. Among the guards was a man with a rifle in his hands and this created such a roar that the gun was taken away by a policeman after an outspoken protest by R. J. Bell.

While no blame attackes to the good people of Warroad, who evidently understood little or nothing of what was going on, the expressions regarding the high-handed Tammany methods employ with the assistance of Deputy Collector of Customs Moody and others, were anything but complimentary. Their conduct was certainly un-republican and un-American, It was as insulting as it could be and entirely unwarranted. Mr. Berg saw his defeat by a vote of three to one and there was no hope for him if the delegates entered the hall. He killed himself politically in this county and the message he sent to the delegates from the west end thru R. J. Bell was so disgusting and indecent that we dare not publish it, The delegates remember it however.

The Collins crowd consisting of Berg, Moody, Jones, McCagherty, Lundpohm. Roundy, and Book left about noon on a special for Winnipeg and would reach St. Paul Wednesday morning "24 hours ahead of the Roseau gang" as they put it. The Dunn delegation is content with the ordinary train service, but Collins men must ride in specials.

"A Pair of Country Kids"

"A Pair of Country kids," a rural comedy drama in four acts is the play announced at the Auditorium for Sept. 27th 1910 and from all reports the country kids are a lively pair and seem to be making a large number of friends everywhere. The play is highly spoken of as a clean, up-to-date rural comedy drama, true to nature and with all those lovable folks "Down on the Farm" that we all remember after we have moved to the city. or that we meet every day where we have been content to remain close to nature with the homespun folks.

This company is made up of real actors who can act, sing and dance and will give you an evening of genuine of genuine amusement and you will surely laugh at the Kids for they are busy constantly getting in and out of mischief.

O'NEILL TO THE VOTERS.

Thief River Falls, Minn.
Sept. 14, 1910.

To the Voters of the Sixty First Legislative District:

On account of the enormous size of the Sixty First District it is an impossibility for me to see each voter personally, so I take this method of soliciting your vote and support in the approaching primaries.

This is one of the greatest agricultural districts in the state and also one of the largest in the employment of labor. As I am the only candidate in the field who represents the actual toilers, I feel that I am entitled particularly to their support. I may not be perfect, but to err is human and to forgive divine, and were I the acme of perfection it is likely that I would find this good old world of ours rather a lonesome place. However, my acquaintances will vouch for me, that, if elected, my utmost power will be exerted for the best interests of the Sixty First legislative district.

Thanking you for your assistance in this election, I remain.

Respectfully yours,
D. P. O'Neill.

LLOYD W. BOWERS IS DEAD

Solicitor General Passes Away Rather Unexpectedly.

Boston, Sept. 10.—Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers died here of complications arising from an attack of bronchitis. The solicitor general had been ill about two weeks.

Death came suddenly while Mr. Bowers was talking with his family. A blood clot in the heart caused almost instantaneous death. Mrs. Bowers, a son and the nurse were present. The family had been staying at the Hotel Touraine in this city for a fortnight. The solicitor general was fifty-one years of age.

A cold attacked Mr. Bowers at Gloucester, whence Mr. Bowers had come from Chicago, his home city, to spend the summer. Tonsilitis developed and to secure expert medical assistance Mr. Bowers was brought to Boston.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 30.—A disaster nearly as appalling as that which swept the region of Wallace and Avery a week ago threatens the whole valley of the upper St. Mary's river, in Northern Idaho.

Seven hundred men, employes of the Coeur d'Alene Timber Protective association, are fighting fires that are eating into the heart of the timber.

These forests are probably the finest in the world and are all patented.

Rains greatly assisted the men who have been fighting the fires west of Spokane.

DARING WORK IN A FOG.

Clever Seamanship of a Captain In a Landlocked Harbor.

"The greatest piece of seamanship I ever saw," said a traveler, "was on a trip to Halifax. It was a marvel, and this is how it happened.

"We were steaming along about twelve hours out from our destination one summer afternoon. It had been clear all day, and the sea was beautifully blue, but about 4 o'clock the fog began to shut down—one of those swift, dense fogs that come on that coast and shroud a boat from sight in less time than it takes to tell of it. Of course the fog whistles began to blow, and many of the passengers got nervous under the strain of its continued bellowing.

"After dinner I went up on the bridge and was permitted to stay. The captain would not enter into any conversation—that is, I could not talk to him, but in his restless pacing up and down the bridge he would frequently make a remark to me. It went on that way for hours, the fog as thick as steam and the whistle reiterating its mournful warning.

"At length the captain gave a sharp order. 'Two points, northwest by north,' he said. 'No, a little more—that's right,' he finished as his command was executed. I was bewildered, and my face must have shown it as he passed me, for he vouchsafed the explanation that he wanted to pass within a few hundred feet of a certain whistling buoy near the harbor. I said nothing, but I did not understand. Why, the night was so thick that it was hard work to see from the bridge to the rail, and what could he mean by making a buoy?

"On and on we went, and always the fog seemed to me thicker. I could not sleep, and most of the night I was on the bridge. When it must have been nearly morning a new whistling began to sound on our starboard bow, as nearly as I could judge. It was a fearful fog siren, and kept getting nearer and nearer. We had stopped whistling, and the passengers were terribly frightened. I looked at one ex-naval officer who stood with me on the bridge, and his face was like a dead man's. Mine must have been also.

"Then, just as it seemed that some giant steamship must strike us, so close was the whistling, the fog lifted like a veil, and there, not 150 feet away, was the buoy that the captain had mentioned.

"Almost at once the fog closed down again; but, do you know, he took us past two warships, into the landlocked harbor and up to the dock in it. It was magnificent, and, though we really could not put our admiration in tangible form, we got together and gave him a gold watch on the return voyage as a little souvenir."—New York Post.

Warren, Pa., Sept. 9.—The special grand jury, which since last Monday has been investigating charges against former Representative Joseph C. Sibley and four co-defendants in connection with Sibley's nomination as the Republican candidate for congress at the June primaries, returned true bills against each of the defendants. All are charged with conspiracy to bribe, debauch and corrupt voters.

FERRY SINKS IN LAKE

Thirty Persons Lose Their Lives in Disaster.

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 10.—Thirty lives were lost when Pere Marquette car Ferry No. 18, bound from Ludington to Milwaukee, went to the bottom of Lake Michigan half way across the lake. The dead include Captain Peter Kilty of Ludington, S. F. Sezpanek of Chicago, purser and wireless operator, whose signals of distress brought assistance to the sinking steamer, and two members of the crew of car ferry No. 17, who lost their lives in an effort to rescue the crew of No. 18. Eli Colbeau of Saginaw, Mich., a member of the crew of No. 18, would make a thirty-first victim, but it is believed that he was not on board when No. 18 set out from here on her fatal trip.

The cause of the disaster is enveloped in mystery. F. F. Polvin, cabin watch, said that the boat was very low at the stern when the first alarm was given. He said they pushed twenty-nine railroad cars into the lake to ease the vessel, but without avail.

The sum total of the catastrophe is told in the figures, twenty-nine lives lost and a financial loss exceeding $500,000.

COMMITTEE IN BAD TANGLE

Chairman Nelson Adjourns Meeting of Ballinger Probers.

Minneapolis, Sept. 10.—Using his power as chairman of the Ballinger-Pinchot committee, called to meet at the West hotel, Senator Knute Nelson adjourned the committee meeting until Tuesday, Sept. 13, when the members are directed to meet in Chicago at the Auditorium Annex hotel at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Senator Nelson was the only majority member present when the committee met. He presented a statement saying that Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania would not be able to attend. He said that Senator Root could not reach Minneapolis before Tuesday. He therefore asked that the committee adjourn until next Tuesday.

The Democratic members replied that they were there to do business and a quorum was present and that they saw no reason for further delay.

Then Senator Nelson suggested that they adjourn to meet in Chicago next Monday, where they might meet Senator Root. This proposition was also declined by the Democratic members.

Shortly before noon Senator Nelson left the committee room and half an hour later the notice of the Chicago meeting was served on all the members at present in the city.

Following this action the minority members held another session, decided not to attend the Chicago meeting and made public their findings in the case.

ROOSEVELT BARS LORIMER

Refuses to Dine With Senator at Chicago Banquet.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Prior to the banquet of the Hamilton club, given in his honor, Colonel Roosevelt refused flatly to attend unless United States Senator Lorimer was excluded.

Later it was announced that the club committee in charge of the banquet had recalled Lorimer's invitation.

TEN PACKERS INDICTED

Combination, Conspiracy and Illegal Monopoly Charged.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The federal grand jury which has been investigating Chicago packers returned indictments against ten high officials of Swift, Armour and Morris concerns. There are three indictments against each, charging combination, conspiracy and illegal monopoly.

The men indicted are L. F. Swift, president of Swift & Co.; Edward Swift, vice president of Swift & Co.; Charles H. Swift, director of Swift & Co.; Francis A. Fowler, director of Swift & Co.; Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing company; J. Ogden Armour, president of Armour & Co.; Arthur Meeker, general manager of Armour & Co.; Thomas J. Conners, superintendent of Armour & Co.; Edward Morris, president of Morris & Co., and Louis H. Heyman, manager of Morris & Co.

The first indictment in detail charges all defendants with engaging in a combination in restraint of interstate trade in fresh meats.

The second charges conspiracy.

The third charges the defendants with monopolizing the trade in fresh meats by unlawful means.

Firearms In Russia.

As an illustration of how closely everything is watched in Russia, take its system or registering firearms. When a weapon of any kind is purchased a permit must be secured from the local authorities. The name of the man who makes the purchase, with the number of the weapon, is recorded. If the purchaser ever wants to dispose of the weapon be must notify the authorities and cause the transfer to be recorded on the books of the firm which sold it.

"Niggering" Logs.

The question was asked me as a native of Maine if I could find out what "niggering" logs meant in the statement "We niggered the logs." I found that to "nigger" logs was to save the labor of chopping them into lengths by piling them up crossed at points where it was desired to separate them. By building fires under these crossings several logs could be burned into sections at once. Because "a nigger" was supposed to be lazy this lazy man's way of cutting logs into lengths was, naturally enough, called "niggering."—Appleton Morgan in New Shakespeareana.

LAST RAIL TO BE LAID.

Sept, 24, the last rail will be laid on the Thief River Falls extension of the Soo road thirty miles west of Bemidji and it will be the last link in the completion of a road connecting Duluth with the great Northwest and the Pacific coast.

The Thief River Falls branch leaves the main line, which was built to Superior a year ago, at Moose Lake and runs in a generally northwesterly direction. It runs through a rich farming country, and gives access to Duluth to the farmers of that district, who may ship their produce here for sale.

The Cuyuna Iron Range railroad was constructed by private parties and later purchased by the Soo, which will operate it as an ore carrying road and it is expected to be in the same class with the Duluth Messabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range railroad within a very short time.

The new Soo depot in Duluth is almost ready for occupancy and it will be completed by the time the road is ready for the operation of trains. It is a beautiful building, architecturally and in finish, and will attract attention from travelers coming into the city.—Duluth Herald.

This will give us direct connection to Duluth as soon asthe ballasting crews will have completed their work of making the road bed solid enough to permit of general freight and passenger service. It is confidently expected that thru trains from Duluth to the coast will be put in operation sometime this fall.

Timber Sold

According to previously annouced plans the officers of the Cass Lake Land office opened the bids for government timber at that place last Thursday. The J. Neils Lumber Co. secured about 90000 000 feet adjacent to Cass Lake; The Shilvin Mathien Company secured 50,000 000 feet: while the Thief River Falls Lumber Company secured practically all the timber sold in the vicinity of Red Lake, and when interviewed at Bemidji D. K. Winton made a statement that together with other recent deals they had secured about 300,000,000 feet of timber in addition to their previous holding. When asked if they intended to saw some of it at Bemidji he said "no, the wood business in Thief River Falls from edgings, trimming and other waste will pay the cost of transportation by water while to get them to Bemidji or any other point would necessitate the loading of the logs onto cars and transportation by rail".

This means that the life of the local saw mill will be extended from six to eight years beyond what it otherwise would have been. It seems safe to say that the mill will do business here for fifteen or Twenty years more and in all probability it will be the last Saw mill in the state to close down.

The highest bid put in was $14 00 per thousand for White Pine and $12 00 per thousand for Norway Pine. These were bids of the Leech Lake Lumber Company on some 30,000,000 feet.

Besides these a large number of smaller companies and individuals put in bids on small quantities.

An Industrial Contest

Will be held at the Plummer school house on Monday, Oct. 10th.

When the pupils of the Plummer and neighboring schools will hold an exhibit consisting of specimens of grains, vegetables, sewing and cooking. It is hoped that the parents and pupils throughout the community will give this contest their hearty support.

AS TO GRAY AND EBERHART.

Mr James Gray, of the editorial staff of Minneapolis Journal, has been selected by the Democratic State Committee to run for Governor in place of John Lind, who declined the nomination. At the meeting of the Committee yesterday there appeared to be but one dissenting voice, that of Major J. M. Bowler, of the city.

In the course of his protest against the selection of Mr. Gray, Mr, Bowler used substantially this language:

I have been reading the lashings in the Tribune and The Journal of Gifford Pinchot and other clean men who are working for the people, and I fear that we are paying too high a price for this indirect support.

This gives opportunity and occasion to say that The Journal will give no support, direct or indirect, to the candidacy of Mr. Gray. It has the highest respect for his character and ability, and it has no slightest word of disparagement for him. It parts from him with regret and bids him Godspeed.

But The Journal declares anew and without reservation its belief that Adolph O. Eberhart ought to be re-elected Governor of Minnesotta.

He is the duly and unanimously nominated candidate of the Republicans of Minnesota. He was named on a platform on which all Republicans of every shade can stand without scruple. It declares the policies, State and National, in which The Journal believes. The Journal is for him.

It seems probable that Mr. Gray, ignoring the record and the platform of his party, will declare for county option. But those Republicans who believe in county option, equally with those who do not, need have no hesitancy in standing by the nominee of their own party. Governor Eberhart has frankly declared that if the Legislature adopts a county option law, he will sign it. He will do this, because the measure will come to him as a concrete expression of the peoples' will. The Legislature is the body charged with the function of making laws. If, after a campaign in which county option was an issue, it shall pass such a law, Governor Eberhart, if re-elected, will sign it. That puts the whole question where it belongs—up to the people and to the Legislature.

Major Bowler had absolutely no warrant for his insinuation before the Committee. But perhaps it was just as well he made the charge at the very outset of the campaign, since he has given The Journal an early opportunity to declare itself with entire frankness.

Two Division Fights

Two county division propositions will be voted on in the approaching election in Northwestern Minnesota. One of these is in Polk county. In this county the eastern part, known as the dry territory, seeks to be set off in a new county from the western end, which has as its centers the cities of East Grand Forks and Crookston. Both of these places are known as opposed to the dry proposition, and likely will aid the eastern end to sever relations with the mother organization. In the event that the question carries, the county seat of the new county will be the village of Erskine, on the crossing of the Soo and Great Northern. The settlement of the matter rests on the dry and wet influence.

The second and more bitter fight for county divison is in Red Lake, which has been the seat of a long drawn contest for the possession of the county seat. The north half of the county, having the city of Thief River Falls as its railway and commercial center, seeks to be organized into a county to be named Pennington in honor of the general manager of the Soo railway. The seat of the proposed new county will be Thief River Falls.

This division fight is the culmination of one of the longest drawn out and fiercest battles ever waged in Minnesota for the control of county government.

In case of division each section will have ample territory and assessed valuation to maintain a liberal county government. Each part will be as large, if not much larger than several of the small counties in central and southern Minnesota. The whole of Red Lake county is well settled and is a rich dairy and agricultural territory.—St. Paul Dispatch.

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy.

Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement.

The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision R. R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinnati, O., Portland, Ore, or Memphis, Tenn.

The Symbolism Didn't Appeal.

"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house on Washington avenue. "it is nearly 12 o'clock.

"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is chimed the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued as he literally simulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"

She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles Henry Smith," she retorted angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will divorce itself and go on its way alone. No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't stick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"—Chicago News.

St. Paul, Minn. Sept 22—James J. Hill, the "Empire Builder," the "Father of the Northwest". cannot see why the business men of the country should at present fear to engage in new enterprises, nor can he see any reason whatever for the semi-paralysis which is gradually creeping over the United States.

"It's only a senseless lack of confidence", said Mr. Hill, in an interview just given out.

"And why this lack of confidence? Rome man, somewhere, has grown timid over something or other, and has cried 'boo' at his neighbor. His neighbor probably jumped and the next fellow took fright without knowing why he was frightened. And so on.

"It's just like a flock of sheep. If one starts to run, every sheep in the flock will follow, even if they die for it.

"During this big National conservation congress we have talked about conserving water and conserving land: conserving coal and conserving iron; its too bad somebody didn't say a word about conserving common sense.

That's what this country needs right now to conserve common sense. There's an article by Col. Geoge Harvey in the September North American Review dealing with the Conservation of Common Sense that well illustrates the business condition of this country right now and gives as the panacea for the business paralysis. the suggestion that our business men us e a little common sense, just ordinary sound common sense. I wish business men everywhere would take that advice.

"I can see no reason for the fears which seem to possess our business men. I have preached a return to the farm policy for years and expect to continue to do so; but thats no reason for fear on the part of business,

"Money and business are, of course, very careful and it is right that they should be, but not to the extent of cutting off their noses to spite their faces. Especially when it is so unnecessary and they need the noses, too.

Here's a little excerpt which, to my mind, bears down hard and strikesat the core of our present ills.

In the distablishment of credit we find the most obvious cause of the prevailing depression. The link that connects labor with capital is not broken, but we may not deny it is less cohesive then it should be or thanconditions warrant. Financially, the country is stronger than ever before in its history. Recovery from from a? so severe as that of three years ago was never before so promptand comparatively complete. The masses are practically free from dept. Money is held by the banks in abundance and rates are low.

Why then does the Capital pause upon the threshold of investment? The answer we believe to be plain. It awaits adjustment of the relations of goverment to business. Such, at any rate, is the plea, and pressure is constantly brought to bear upon executives and courts to make haste haste which, in our judgment would result in less speed. Great complications growing out of mightily changed conditions call for the most serious consideration. To settle agrave question offhand is only to invite disaster. Better not settle it at all until a reasonable certainty can be felt that it can be settled right. Stability is ever Capital's primary requirement. But the adjustment which it now demands cannot be effectedin a month or a year and never can or should be complete. Elasticity is the prime requisite of changes essential to development.

But Capital is notoriously timid. In the present instance, too, it is absolutely foolish. No decision of any court can permanently impair any so-called vested interest. Confiscation is undreamed of, as compared with only a few years ago. The disintegration of properties does not involve their destruction. Moreover, the sharp revolt aganist all combination—those that achieve great good no less than those that work injury—is clearly yeilding to study and reason. No sane person now maintains that business — —especially manufacturing - - can or should be done as it was done half a century ago In a broadsense, the day of the individual competitor is past, but the opportunity, of the individual remains even wider within the corporation. The sole problem consists of determining how goverment can maintain an even balance between aggregations of interest, on the one hand, and the whole people, on the other protecting the latter aganist extortion and saying the former from assaults.

The solution is not easy to find for the simple reason that the situation is without precedent. But is not progress being made along sane and cautious lines? Surely no menace to property or to human rights lies in the striving for such a solution. Both will be safe guarded by its certain finding.

Sheriffs Held Responsible.

Minnesota sheriffs are responsible for law violations in the different counties. Under an opinion submitted to Governor Eberhart by Attorney General Simpson the sheriffs of the state must not be content with serving processes. They must investigate complaints of nonenforcements of the law and must take the initiative in seeing that the laws of the state are enforced.

Governor Eberhart, to whom many complaints of violations of the liquor laws have been made, wished to know what local officers he could hold responsible for law violations. The shireff is directly responsible to the governor and for this reason the governor wrote the attorney general and asked for an opinion not only as to the duties and obligations of the sheriff, but also as to the penalties provided in case the sheriff neglects or refuses to porform his duties.

According to Mr. Simpson the sheriff is the chief peace officer of the county and is answerable directly to the governor. If he is derelict in his duty the governor may dismiss him. There is no appeal from the action of the executive.

It is more honor for a man to be honorably defeated then to be elected by unscrupulous methods of campaigning and political trickery.

Senator A. L. Hanson was nominated by a majority of over 500 votes in spite of trickery, Now say he is not the people's choice.

One more battle toward the final victory of rignt and truth is won.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT IS FATAL.

William Smith Was Caught In Shafting While Working In Flour Mill.

This community was shocked last Saturday morning on hearing that Willie Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Smith of the East side, had been killed in the Hanson—Barzen flour mills of this city. The young man had entered the employ of this firm as an oiler but a day or two prior to the accident, and while engaged in the performance of his duties was caught by a swiftly revolving shaft and instantly killed,

The deceased, William Roy Smith, was born on Februrary 8, 1892 at Draton, N. D. and removed to this city with his parents while a mere child. He attended the public schools until last year, when completed the studies qualifying him to enter highschool. He was always an industrious hardworking boy and never failed to find employment during his holiday terms. More than once he had acceptably filled positions beyond his years, and though but eighteen when he met his untimely end, was performing a man's duties and doing it satisfactorily. His relations with his schoolmates and co-laborers were always the most cordial and no young man in the city was held in higher esteem by his acqaintances than was Willie.

He was buried from the Presbyterian church, of which he and his immediate relatives were devoted members, on Monday afternoon. The church could not contain the large crowd of people who were present at the sad obsequies. A profusion of flowers covered the casket and Rev. Gilchrist, the pastor, delivered a touching tribute to the memory of the deceased. A long procession of acquaintances followed the body to Greenwood cemetery, where loving friends performed the last sad rites for one whom they had learned to regard so highly.

The Press joins with the many friends of the bereaved family in extending sympathy and condolences to them in their great sorrow.

Nation Must Take Action.

That the Federal Government must lead in public health work was the main thesis of Dr. F. F. Wesbrook at the conservation Congress in discussing "Life and health as National Assets". The work of the Federal Government will no more supersede or interfere with the work of the states and cities in protecting the health of the people than the work of the Federal Bureau of Education now conflicts with our local public schools. The proposed Federal Bureau of Health will serve the local health officers as does the educational bureau by furnishing a clearing house for information, facilities for re search and publication nationwide, and a standard of sanitary work for the states copy. That the Nation is capable of setting the pace was shown said the speaker, by the splendid work of the Federal Government in checking yellow fever in Cuba and Panama.

The following sixteen reasons in detail why we should havea National Bureau or Department of Health were given:

Sixteen Reasons.

"First—To stop the spread of typhoid fever thru drinding sewage poluted water of interstate streams.

"Second—To enforce adequate quarantine regulations so as to keep out of the country plague and other similar pestilence.

"Third—supervise interstate common carriers, in so far as without such supervision they prove a menace to the health of the traveling public.

"Fourth—To have a central organization of such dignity and importance that departments of health of states and cities will seek its cooperation and will pay heed to its advice.

"Fifth—To influence health authorities, state and municipal, to enact reform legislation in relation to health matters,

"Sixth—To act as a clearing house of state and local health regulations and to codify such regulations.

"Seventh—To draw up a model scheme of sanitary legislation for the assistance of state and municipal health officers.

"Eighth—To gather accurate data on all questions of sanitation thruout the United States.

"Ninth—To establish the chief causes of preventable disease and unnecessary ill-health.

"Tenth—To study conditions and causes of disease recurring in different parts of the United States.

"Eleventh—To correlate and assist investigations carried on in many separate an unrelated biological and pathological federal, state and private laboratories.

"Twelfth—To consolidate and coordinate the many separate government bureaus now engaged in independent health work.

"Thirteenth—To effect economies in the administration of these bureaus.

"Fourteenth—publish and distribute thruout the country bulletins in relation to human health.

"Fifteenth—To apply our existing knowledge of hygiene to our living conditions.

"Sixteenth—To reduce the death rate",

A National Health service is Needed To Act in Co-operation With similar Agencies Within the States for the purpose of lengthening Life, Decreasing suffering and promoting the vigor and efficiency of our people.

The Waiting Championship.

An Atchison woman who looks for good in everything is glad she married. "It has taught me patience," she said. When a girl she flew into a temper if she had to wait five minutes for something she wanted, but now she waits and waits and waits and says nothing. She waited nine years for her new front porch, six years for her husband to take her to the theater and eleven years for him voluntarily, when there was no company around, to offer her a rocking chair. "This," she said recently to a friend who heard she was sitting up half the night waiting for her husband to come home, "is nothing. I can wait longer and say less about it than any woman who ever lived. I am glad I married; otherwise I could never claim the waiting championship belt."—Atchison Globe.

Work of the Beavers.

The formation of the plateau on which Dubois is built is a matter of great curiosity. Beavers are responsible for it. Long before the white men saw that section of Pennsylvania beavers built a huge dam in a well set valley. Year by year the stream washed rich mud into the dam, and when the body of water was destroyed 640 acres of land flat as a table top were left. On this stands Dubois.—Altoona Tribune.

MEETING HELD AT NEW HAVEN

President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt Confer.

NEW YORK STATE SITUATION

Cause of Some Concern to the Former President and His Political Advisers—Roosevelt Seeks and Obtains Further Evidence of the Moral Support of the Chief Executive.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 20.—President Taft and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt met at New Haven, Conn., for the second time since the former president's return from Africa. It was plain from all that transpired before and after the meeting that the colonel and his close political advisers are not a little worried over the situation in New York state and went to the president for further evidence of his moral support.

This the president was glad to give He declared his position in the New York state fight had been clear from the very first. He said he sympathized heartily with the fight against "bossism" being waged by the people of the state. Mr. Taft reiterated the statements he made in his letter to Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York county Republican committee, at the time of the Sherman-Roosevelt controversy over the temporary chairmanship. This letter, he added, stated his position fully and accurately and he was standing on it absolutely.

Mr. Taft announced to his callers anew what he had said in the Griscom letter—that he favored direct primaries for the nomination of congressmen and state legislators. He understands this to be the purport of the Cobb bill as amended by the Seth Low and Joseph Choate memorial. He said he hoped that a declaration for such a primary law would be written into the Republican state platform, and that a candidate for governor in sympathy with this movement would be nominated.

Both Agree With Taft.

President Taft is not ready as yet to admit the advisability of doing away wth conventions for the nomination of state officers from governor down. Mr. Taft understands that both Governor Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt are now practically in accord with his own position, although the governor fought at first for direct primaries for all offices.

President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt did not discuss the question of the presidency in 1912. The president has not been advised as to what Mr. Roosevelt's attitude is toward that campaign.

It can be stated that the meeting at New Haven, while it may have been successful in its "scenic effect," and of moral advantage to the Roosevelt leaders in New York state, was absolutely barren of results as to any better understanding between the president and Colonel Roosevelt as to national issues or their personal relations in view of many recent events.

Something of the nature of a truce seems to have been arranged regarding the New York state situation. After that is over events will shape themselves. Colonel Roosevelt himself is said to have let drop the hint that, as to his side of the matter, "something would be doing" after the elections. Mr. Taft is letting 1912 look out for itself. He declares he has other matters of concern at the moment.

It came out at the conference that the Taft administration is to be endorsed at Saratoga. No mention of Mr. Taft as a candidate in 1912 will be made.

Deprecated Action in Ohio.

In this connection it became known that President Taft deprecated the action of the Ohio Republicans in declaring for him in 1912. He did not think he should be made an issue. The Ohio leaders were anxious, however, that the Taft administration and the legislative record should be made a part of the state campaign and took this means of bringing it about.

The New Haven conference, it is believed, was a source of much gratification to Mr. Taft and his friends. That his aid should be sought at this time and in the manner that it was, following a somewhat recent attitude of an almost complete ignoring of his administration or existence, probably gave the president considerable satisfaction.

The conference had its inception on Saturday last, though it had been kept a close secret until within a short time of Colonel Roosevelt's arrival in New Haven.

Mr. Bannard, who accompanied the president to Albany, explained that he and Mr. Griscom thought it would be a good thing to get the president and Mr. Roosevelt together again "to smooth over any apparent differences between them."

This applied, however, only to the New York state situation. As to the fight in 1912 there is a disposition on the part of the leaders to cross that bridge when they come to it and to steer a long ways off in the meantime. Mr. Bannard said that he did not believe Mr. Roosevelt would be a candidate.

Veterans Discuss Plan for a Permanent Camp.

MORE WOULD ATTEND REUNION

Old Soldiers Would Not Have to Pay So Much Railroad Fare—Considerable Grumbling Over What the Grand Army Men Term Unjust Discrimination With Reference to Railroad Rates.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 20.—Veterans attending the national encampment of the G. A. R. here discussed unofficially the proposition for a permanent camp to be established in some city geographically near the center of the country. Advocates of the plan say that this would make it possible for more to attend the encampment because of the curtailment in railroad fare.

There is considerable grumbling over what the veterans term "unjust discrimination" with reference to railroad rates. An effort is to be made to have a resolution adopted asking federal regulation of traffic rates to all subsequent encampments.

"The railroads of this country will grant a rate of 1 cent a mile for our next national encampment, or there will be no encampment," is the prediction of Edward Watson, commander of U. S. Grant post, Chicago.

The proposal to change the present schedule of an encampment every year to a meeting every two or four years met with opposition.

"We will hold an encampment every year as long as we can rally a corporal's guard," said Colonel Jack Maynard, the old member from Washington.

The commander-in-chief and his men were given a big reception on the steel pier, at which there were fully 10,000 of the boys in blue. The affair was given by the women's citizen committee. Later the Sons of Veterans gave a similar function at the Hotel Rudolph, assisted by their auxiliary.

LIVES MAY HAVE BEEN LOST

Fire Destroys a Livery Stable at Shakopee, Minn.

Shakopee, Minn., Sept. 20.—Human life may have been lost in a fire which destroyed Steelman's livery and feed stable here. Four horses were burned to death and at least a dozen men had narrow escapes. It is believed all the men in the barn escaped, although it will not be positively known that such is the case until the ruins cool sufficiently to investigate.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week the Scott county fair was held at Shakopee. The town was filled with visitors and accommodations were not to be had at the hotels. So a number of men slept in the haymow of the livery.

A farmer came to the barn and took out his team. Immediately after he left the barn was found to be on fire. It is supposed he dropped a lighted match or a cigar stump in the manger, where the hay took fire and spread through the hay chute into the mow.

The men who were sleeping in the mow had barely time to jump out the window. They do not know whether or not all who were sleeping there were able to escape.

DEITZ AGAIN VISITS WINTER

Defender of Cameron Dam Is Not Molested.

Winter, Wis., Sept. 20.—John F. Deitz, the redoubtable defender of Cameron dam, and his two sons, Clarence and Leslie, visited Winter again.

They were armed for trouble, and when it was possible to avoid it, did not turn their backs upon a knot of citizens, or even a single citizen. Apparently they were prepared to draw and fire at the least show of the authorities or anyone else to attempt to arest them. They watched everybody closely to see that no movement of any kind was made against them.

The trio, as was the case when Deitz and Clarence visited the town soon after the shooting of Horel, were not molested, and left for their fortress on the Thornapple. Sheriff Madden was at his home at Hayward and no one in Winter, even if he had had the courage, wanted to take the initiative.

Valuable Furs Stolen.

Minneapolis, Sept. 20.—Six thousand dollars' worth of fine furs were missing when the manager and employes of R. W. Munzer & Sons, wholesale furriers, opened the door of their quarters on the second floor of the new Reid building. Subsequently $2,500 worth of the missing goods were found on the third floor. There is no clue to the robbers.

Train Kills Indian.

Black River Falls, Wis., Sept. 20.—William Bellew, an Indian boy, sixteen years old, who had run away from the Indian school at Tomah, was killed by a train on the Omaha road near Millston. The remains will be brought here for burial.

TREAT ALL ALIKE

Taft Will Recognize Both Regulars and Progressives.

POSITION STATED IN LETTER

Declares Attitude of Withholding Federal Patronage Ended With Recent Primary Elections.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 16.—No difference between so called "progressives" and "regulars" will be recognized by President Taft hereafter, but all party leaders will be treated alike as Republicans in the matter of federal support.

The president's views to this effect are given in a letter from Secretary Norton to a Republican leader of Iowa, whose name is not disclosed.

In the letter Secretary Norton stated that while important Republican legislation pending in congress was opposed by certain Republican leaders the president felt that his duty required him to withhold federal patronage from senators and representatives who seemed to occupy a position hostile to efforts to fulfill the pledges of the party platform.

That attitude on the part of the president ended, however, with the more recent primary elections and nominating conventions in which the people have declared themselves and the president now looks upon "progressives" and "regulars" alike as Republicans, and as such entitled to his support and the support of the party, and the fall elections, Secretary Norton's letter says, must settle the question whether the differences of the last session of congress shall be perpetuated or forgotten.

CHARGED WITH BIG THEFT

Former Teller of Chicago Subtreasury Under Arrest.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—George W. Fitzgerald, a former assorting teller in the chicago subtreasury, is under arrest charged with the mysterious theft of $173,000 from the subtreasury on Feb. 19, 1907.

Fitzgerald was arrested on a bench warrant based on an indictment returned secretly by a federal grand jury Feb. 17, 1910, and the existence of which was suppressed by the federal authorities.

Three days after the indictment was secretly returned and suppressed, on Feb. 20, it was announced that the statute of limitations had operated to stop possible criminal action in the peculiar case.

Coincident with this ruse by the authorities secret service men were detailed to watch Fitzgerald constantly and make a rigid investigation of the former teller's financial interests and affairs.

Discoveries made by these secret service operatives resulted in the order for Fitzgerald's arrest.

STANDPATTERS IN CONTROL

Montana Republican Convention Renominates Pray.

Missoula, Mont., Sept. 16.—The state Republican convention renominated Charles N. Pray for congress, E. A. Morley for railroad commisioner and John T. Athey for supreme court clerk. Several futile efforts were made by the progressives to stampede the convention, but standpatter adherents of Senators Thomas H. Carter and Joseph M. Dixon had the gathering under absolute control.

The resolutions compliment Colonel Roosevelt for his services to the party and the nation. After considerable discussion, it was decided to ignore mention of the constitutional tax amendment in the resolutions.

President Taft's efforts to regulate the tariff through a commission are commended.

LARGER THAN LAST YEAR

Exports of Flour, Meat, Cotton and Mineral Oil.

Washington, Sept. 16.—August exports of flour, corn, meats, cotton and mineral oil show a marked improvement when compared with August of last year. The usual monthly statement of "exports of domestic breadstuffs, meats and dairy products, food animals, cotton and mineral oil," issued by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, shows the total value of the exports of these articles in August, 1910, $45,667,000, against $36,000,000 in August of last year.

WOODROW WILSON IS NAMED

Choice of New Jersey Democrats for Governor.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 16.—Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, was nominated for governor by the Democrats of New Jersey. The vote was as follows: Wilson, 747½; Frank S. Katzenbach, 373; George S. Silzer, 206; H. Otto Wittpenn, 74½; William Harrigan, 6; John Hinchcliff, 4.

The nomination was made on the first ballot and was made unanimous on motion of Silzer and Katzenbach delegates.

DISCUSS POLITICS

Taft and Roosevelt Confer at New Haven, Conn.

NEW YORK STATE SITUATION

Cause of Some Concern to the Former President and His Political Advisers.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 20.—President Taft and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt met at New Haven, Conn., for the second time since the former president's return from Africa. It was plain from all that transpired before and after the meeting that the colonel and his close political advisers are not a little worried over the situation in New York state and went to the president for further evidence of his moral support.

This the president was glad to give He declared his position in the New York state fight had been clear from the very first. He said he sympathized heartily with the fight against "bossism" being waged by the people of the state. Mr. Taft reiterated the statements he made in his letter to Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York county Republican committee, at the time of the Sherman-Roosevelt controversy over the temporary chairmanship. This letter, he added, stated his position fully and accurately and he was standing on it absolutely.

Mr. Taft announced to his callers anew what he had said in the Griscom letter—that he favored direct primaries for the nomination of congressmen and state legislators. He understands this to be the purport of the Cobb bill as amended by the Seth Low and Joseph Choate memorial. He said he hoped that a declaration for such a primary law would be written into the Republican state platform, and that a candidate for governor in sympathy with this movement would be nominated.

Both Agree With Taft.

President Taft is not ready as yet to admit the advisability of doing away wth conventions for the nomination of state officers from governor down. Mr. Taft understands that both Governor Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt are now practically in accord with his own position, although the governor fought at first for direct primaries for all offices.

President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt did not discuss the question of the presidency in 1912. The president has not been advised as to what Mr. Roosevelt's attitude is toward that campaign.

It can be stated that the meeting at New Haven, while it may have been successful in its "scenic effect," and of moral advantage to the Roosevelt leaders in New York state, was absolutely barren of results as to any better understanding between the president and Colonel Roosevelt as to national issues or their personal relations in view of many recent events.

Something of the nature of a truce seems to have been arranged regarding the New York state situation. After that is over events will shape themselves. Colonel Roosevelt himself is said to have let drop the hint that, as to his side of the matter, "something would be doing" after the elections. Mr. Taft is letting 1912 look out for itself. He declares he has other matters of concern at the moment.

It came out at the conference that the Taft administration is to be endorsed at Saratoga. No mention of Mr. Taft as a candidate in 1912 will be made.

NO APPEAL TO MOB RULE

Roosevelt Explains Doctrine of "New Nationalism."

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Theodore Roosevelt, in his speech at Riverhead, L. I., said that he is not talking revolution in declaring his new political creed. Neither is he making an appeal to mob rule. In a stanch defense of his doctrine of the "New Nationalism" he declared that he was merely urging the application of old moralities to modern conditions. He said:

"I don't intend to rely only on the big corporations' good nature to see that the corporation does not do harm against us. I want to see such control of the wealth now gathered for business uses as to favor the honest man who uses the wealth genuinely for the service of the public and to make the dishonest man feel that he has to do what is right, and if he doesn't feel it we shall see to it that he does.

"This is my whole creed. That is all there is in it. There is no revolution in it. There is no appeal to mob rule."

Dirigible Flies Over Armies.

Grandvilliers, France, Sept. 17.—The dirigible balloon Clement Bayard made a successful night flight without lights over the position of the bivouacked armies which are participating in the French maneuvers.

Four Killed in Collision.

Cairo, Ill., Sept. 20.—Four men were killed and two injured in a head-on collision between Mobile and Ohio and Iron Mountain freight trains seven miles north of here, near Beech Ridge, Ill.

JAMES GRAY.

Democratic nominee for governor of Minnesota. Mr. Gray served one term as mayor of Minneapolis.

James Gray is forty-eight years old. He was born in Scotland in 1862 and came to America with his parents when four years old, the Grays settling in Iowa, then in Wisconsin. In 1880 Mr. Gray came to Minnesota. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1885 and at once entered newspaper work.

Mr. Gray worked on the Minneapolis Tribune and the old Minneapolis Times and it was while city editor of the latter paper in 1898 that he was nominated for mayor of Minneapolis by the Democrats and elected.

Leaving office Mr. Gray resumed newspaper work, first on the Minneapolis Tribune, then on the Minneapolis Journal. He resigned from the Journal on accepting the Democratic nomination for governor.

His One Mistake

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Do you wish to see any one here?"

"Savin' yer prisince, Oi come to get a squint at the ex-prisidint."

"Why do you wish to see the ex-president?"

"Because ivery one wants to see 'im, to be sure—because he's the greatest man on airth."

"Why is he great?"

"Isn't he the friend of the workin'man, besides countin' among his acquaintances the crowned heads of Urup?"

A sturdy gentleman in glasses smiled. "Pat," he said, "you are right in placing the ex-president's friendship for the workingman ahead of his acquaintance with the crowned heads. Come with me. I'll show you around the ex-president's place, and perhaps you may get a sight of him."

Pat accepted the invitation, and the two strolled about the grounds.

"Oi'm wonderin'," said Pat, "where he kapes the wild animals he brought from Africa."

"He didn't bring any wild animals alive from Africa. He brought their skins. They are to be stuffed for different museums. But tell me more about why you admire him."

"Well, O'im thinkin'," Pat replied, scratching his head, "that—that, as I told ye, he's the friend o' the workin'man, and Oi loike him because he don't moind tellin' thim furryners what he thinks of 'em. But he made wan mistake in talkin' to the Britishers."

"What's that?"

"He tould 'em to get out o' Egypt. It would 'a' been all roight if he'd made it Oirland."

The gentleman smiled.

"What's the valy o' them Egyptian nagers anyway? And Oi'm hearin' their country's nothin' but sand and hot enough to roast eggs in, savin' the spalpeens haven't got the eggs. But Oirland! The beautiful land that it is, and the foine population of intelligent men and women. And them havin' the feet o' England on their necks. If the ex-prisident had said, 'Either govern Oirland roight or git out,' it 'ud 'a' been loike sayin' 'git out o' Oirland,' 'caze an Englishman can't govern any one but nagers."

"You've a good head on you, Pat," said the gentleman. "What other fault have you to find with the ex-president?"

"Well, sor, I was lookin' while he was in the White House for 'em to take off the duty on tay. Tay's a foine dhrink, and the only people that gits it free are the Chaney nagers."

"But the president doesn't put the duty on tea; congress does that, and the president has no power to take it off."

Pat thought a moment, then said: "Thin what's the use o' makin' such a fuss at electin' 'em?"

"Tell me some more faults of the ex-president."

"Well, sorr, Oi'm thinkin' he wasn't born in the roight country."

"What country should he have been born in?"

"Oirland. Oi niver think of 'im but Oi see in me moind a beautiful pictur' of 'im at an Oirish fair, brandishin' a shillalah over his head, jumpin' up and' crackin' his heels together, swearin' he kin whip the biggest man in the crowd. He's mighty—what d'y' call it—stren'us—that's the worrd, stren'-us.

"Another way I loike to pictur' 'im is stirrin' up all them kings, tellin' the spalpeens how to govern their people just loike an American prisident 'ud do it. Oi can see 'im if he had the power jumpin' around among 'em, knockin' off their crowns and givin' the poor devils they've oppressed a chance to live in their palaces awhile."

The gentleman led the way to the house on the top of the hill and motioned Pat to go in. "I'll introduce you to the ex-president," he said.

But Pat demurred.

"It isn't for the loikes o' me in these dirthy clothes to go into the house of the great man. Besides, I don't need an introduction."

"You don't?"

"No; I've been talkin' to 'im."

"How did you know me?"

"By the windy glass over yer ois and yer beautiful white teeth I seen in the newspaper pictures."

"Good for you! You Irish are a clever race!"

"Not so clever as you Amerykins."

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, sorr, when I seen y' walkin' about here, the cock o' the walk, I had enough pictur's of ye in me moind to cover the ceilin' of a church. It was no credit to me to know ye. But didn't ye call me by me name without iver havin' seen even a photograph o' me? Ye called me Pat at onct. Now, Oi wonder, sorr, if ye kin guess me ole woman's name.'

"Bridget."

"Roight ye are! Ony man as smart as yees should be elected prisident for loife."

"Tell me, Pat, did you come in here from curiosity, or had you a purpose?"

"A purpose is it? An' yer askin' me me purpose? Had ye a purpose whin ye was prisident in not rememberin' the office saykers?"

"I couldn't remember them all, Pat."

"Well, sorr, I had a purpose in comin' in here. It was to tell ye ye made a misthake in tellin' 'em to git out o' Egypt instead o' Oirland."

Pat had another, an inferior purpose; he wanted something to buy "tay" with. and he got it.

Twice Declined.

The invitation list of the governor general of Canada is made out strictly in accordance with precedent, but is not kept up to date always, the aid who has to send the invitations out—generally an Englishman or a Scotchman—not always being au courant with changes on the list. The late Sir Antoine Dorion, chief justice of Quebec, was once invited to some function, as was proper, but Lady Dorion, who was dead, was invited likewise. Sir Antoine accepted for himself, but declined for her ladyship, on the ground that she was in the cemetery. The next year, however, the same mistake was made, so the old judge wrote back to the aid-de-camp in waiting:

"Sir Antoine Dorion accepts, etc., but, her ladyship being still in St. Anne's cemetery, Sir Anteine is compelled again to decline the invitation for her."

FEDERAL CONTROL

Endorsed by Delegates to Conservation Congress.

TEXT OF THE RESOLUTIONS

Platform Follows Closely Recommendations of Colonel Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot.

St. Paul, Sept. 10.—The second National Conservation congress, one of the most notable gatherings ever held in the United States, which was addressed by the president of the United States, a former president and many other distinguished persons, has ended. At its closing session the congress elected Henry Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer of Des Moines, president, to succeed Bernard N. Baker of Baltimore. Gifford Pinchot declined the office, which was offered him unanimously.

The resolutions adopted advocate federal control of natural resources and follow closely the ideas of Roosevelt and Pinchot. They are in part:

"Recognizing the natural resources of the country as the prime bases of property and opportunity, we hold the rights of the people in these resources to be natural and inherent, and justly inalienable and indefeasible; and we insist that the resources should and shall be developed, used and conserved in ways consistent both with current welfare and with the perpetuity of our people.

"Recognizing the waters of the country as a great national resource we approve and endorse the opinion of Theodore Roosevelt that all the waters belong to all the people and hold that they should be administered in the interest of all the people.

Federal Control of Water Power.

"Recognizing the vast economic benefit to the people of water power derived largely from interstate and source streams no less than from navigable rivers, we favor federal control of water power development; we deny the right of state or federal governments to continue alienating or conveying water by granting franchises for the use thereof in perpetuity; and we demand that the use of water rights be permitted only for limited periods, with just compensation in the interests of the people.

"Approving the withdrawal of public lands pending classification, and the separation of surface rights from mineral, we recommend legislation for the classification and leasing for grazing purposes on unreserved public lands suitable chiefly for this purpose. subject to the rights of homesteaders and settlers, or the acquisition thereof under the land laws of the United States; and we hold that arid and nonirrigable public grazing lands should be administered by the government in the interest of small stockmen and homeseekers until they have passed into the possession of actual settlers.

"We hold that the deposits of important minerals, underlying public lands, particularly mineral fuels, iron ores and phosphate deposits, should be leased for limited periods not exceeding fifty years but subject to renewal, the royalty to be adjusted at more frequent intervals, such leases to be in amounts and subject to such regulations as to prevent monopoly and unnecessary waste.

Lease Alaskan Coal Fields.

"We hold that phosphate deposits underlying the public lands should be safeguarded for the American people by appropriate legislation; and we recommend the early opening of the Alaskan and other coal fields belonging to the people of the United States for commercial purposes on a system of leasing, national ownership to be retained.

"We approve of the continuance of the control of the national forests by the federal government and approve the policy of restoring to settlement such public lands as are more valuable for agriculture.

"We earnestly recommend that the states and federal government acquire for reforestration lands not more valuable for other purposes and that all existing forests publicly and privately owned be carefully protected by state and federal governments. We recognize the invaluable services of the forest service to the people and earnestly recommend that it be more generously supported by the federal government and that state, federal and private fire patrols be more generously provided for the preservation of forests and human life; and we appreciate and approve of the continuance of the services of the United States army in fire control in emergencies.

"We favor the repeal of the timber and stone law.

"We endorse the proposition for the preservation by the federal government of the Southern Appalachian and White mountain forest."

GREAT SALT LAKE.

An Immense Fresh Water Sea Some Thousands of Years Ago.

In glacial times Great Salt lake was a magnificent fresh water lake the size of Lake Huron—that is, about 18,000 square miles—and had its outlet into the Port Neuf, the Snake and the Columbia rivers. This was at least 10,000 years ago, but since that time the climate has become arid, and not enough water has fallen over the Great basin to supply that lost by evaporation. Consequently the lake has ceased to flow from its outlet and gradually dried up from over a thousand feet deep to fifteen feet and from 18,000 square miles in area to less than 1,700.

It is now seventy miles long and about thirty wide, but is beautiful still and is the home of myriads of sea birds and other waterfowl. It is the great resort of the people of Utah, for from 3,000 to 5,000 visit its shores daily in the summer, and many bathe in its waters. The lake contains about 7,000,000,000 tons of salt.

When the lake is high the salt is so diluted that it has gone down to 11 per cent. When it is low, as it was not many years ago, it reached saturation which for the mixed ingredients of the water is 36 per cent.

There is nothing mysterious about it any more than there would be about a teacup with a teaspoonful of salt in the bottom. If a tablespoonful of water were put in the cup on the salt it would taste very salty, but if the cup were filled to the brim with water it would not.

The salt has come from the water of the rivers flowing into it since it ceased to flow from its outlet. All river water contains salt, and the annual evaporation of from two to five cubic miles of this water leaves large quantities of salt behind, and so it has accumulated for thousands of years.

AN EASY WINNER.

Poindexter Ran Away With Washington Senatorial Race.

POINDEXTER FOR SENATOR

Progressive Wins Out at Primaries in Washington.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 15.—In the progressive storm that swept over the state of Washington the old guard of the Republican party lost nearly every thing.

Miles Poindexter of Spokane, a progressive leader in the present house was nominated for United States senator by 40,000 plurality, carrying every county in the state, defeating his leading opponent, Judge Thomas Burke of Seattle, in Burke's own precinct and carrying Pierce county, the home of the other regular candidate, James M. Ashton.

Two and probably three progressives were nominated for congress.

LOSES AT PRIMARIES

Congressman Boutell Defeated by a Progressive.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Progressives were victorious in three out of the twenty-five congressional districts of Illinois in the primary election.

Henry S. Boutell, standpatter Republican, who has represented the Ninth, a Chicago district, in congress for twelve years, was defeated by Frederick H. Gansbergen, who conducted his campaign on an out-and-out progressive platform. Gansbergen was supported by the regular Republican organization.

George Edmund Foss, standpatter and head of the naval affairs committee of the house, won the Republican nomination in the Tenth district by about 500 votes after a hard contest in which he was opposed by George P Englehard and Frederick C. De Lang progressives.

Speaker Joseph G. Cannon was renominated in the Eighteenth district by a majority close to 6,000. He was opposed by Henry B. Downs, a progressive of his own city.

Lee O'Neil Browne, the minority leader in the lower house of the Illinois legislature, who was recently acquitted of a charge of bribery in connection with the election of United States Senator William Lorimer, was renominated for representative in La Salle county by a large majority.

POPULATION OF CLEVELAND

Ohio City Among First Ten Cities of the Country.

Washington, Sept. 16.—The population of Cleveland is 560,663, an increase of 178,985, or 46.9 per cent, as compared with 381,768 in 1900.

The returns for Cleveland establish that city as one of the large centers of population of the country, lifting it to a point above Pittsburg and comparatively close behind St. Louis and Boston. Cincinnati, which in 1890 contained about 35,000 more persons than Cleveland, is now distanced to the extent of almost 20,000. The Northern Ohio city hereafter will take rank among the first ten cities of the country.

Stokes Claims Safe Majority.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 17.—Former Governor E. C. Stokes said that his advices from all sections of the state gave him a lead of 5,000 to 7,000 in the United States senatorship primary of last Tuesday. Governor Stokes said he was confident that these figures would not be materially changed by the official returns.

Fifteen of Crew Missing.

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 20.—The British ship Carnarvon Bay, from Liverpool June 20 for Sydney, has been wrecked on King's island. The captain and seventeen men have been picked up, but a second boat with fifteen men aboard is missing.

CHARLES R. HEIKE.

Sugar Trust Official Given Eight Months in Penitentiary.

HEIKE IS SENTENCED

Man Higher Up in Sugar Trust Case Must Go to Jail.

New York, Sept. 20.—Charles R. Heike, former secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining company, who has been called "the man higher up" in the sugar trust, was sentenced by Judge Martin in the United States circuit court to serve eight months in the New York penitentiary on Blackwells island and pay a fine of $5,000 on conviction of conspiring to defraud the United States government by the underweighing of sugar.

Judge Martin granted a stay of execution of the sentence pending an appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals. The court also reduced Heike's bail, which had been $25,000 pending sentence since his conviction last June, to $15,000.

Heike's sentence is the culminating point in the federal government's prosecution of the American Sugar Refining company officials and employes, growing out of the extensive underweighing frauds on the Williamsburg docks of the trust, brought to light by Richard Parr's famous raid on the docks in 1907.

SECOND IN UNITED STATES

And Chicago Is Fourth Largest City in the World.

Washington, Sept. 20.—The population of Chicago is 2,185,283, an increase of 486,708, or 28.7 per cent, as compared with 1,698,575 in 1900.

This announcement leaves Chicago ranking in population as the second city of the United States and the fourth in the world.

Chicago has almost doubled its population since 1890, when the figures were 1,099,850. Its greatest growth during that period was between 1890 and 1900, when there was an increase of 54.4 per cent.

A DREAM JOURNEY.

It Was a Very Long One, but It Took Only a Few Minutes.

"Dreams are curious things," remarked the amateur psychologist. "Time does not seem to enter into their composition at all. For instance, the other day I was sitting on the porch of a hotel with a friend of mine smoking after lunch. It was a drowsy day, and conversation lagged. Presently I saw my friend nodding in his chair. He had dozed off, holding his lighted cigar in his left hand, which was folded over his right. His left hand relaxed, and the end of the cigar came in gentle contact with the right hand, inflicting a slight burn.

"'The devil it won't!' exclaimed my friend, waking with a start.

"The sentence sounded so incongruous that I burst out laughing. 'Won't what?' I asked.

"'How long have I been asleep?' he asked.

"'Not more than a couple of minutes,' I replied.

"'It doesn't seem possible,' he said. 'During that time I had a dream that pretty nearly took me around the world. I sailed for Southampton, did England, France, Switzerland and a part of Italy, then through the orient to India. It was in India that I became much interested in one of the native snake charmers. He had the snakes crawling all over him and offered me one to fondle. I told him I was afraid it would bite me. He assured me that it wouldn't, and I took the reptile in my hand. It promptly fastened its fangs in me. I said, "The devil it won't!" and dropped it, and then I woke up.'

"I explained the episode of the lighted cigar," concluded the amateur psychologist, "and we both laughed."—New York Sun.

A Spurned Gift.

A charity expert was discussing promiscuous almsgiving.

"Promiscuous giving," he said, "is money thrown away. Nothing should be given to beggars except work. A friend of mine said the other day to a beggar:

"'I can't give you any money, my poor fellow, but if you call at my house I'll give you plenty of work.'

"'Thanks,' the beggar answered. 'I've got plenty of that at home.'"

INDUSTRIAL CONTEST

FOR BOYS & GIRLS OF RED LAKE COUNTY.

The Industrial Contest for Boys and Girls of Red Lake County, will be held at the following places:

Brooks, Sat. Oct. 8th.
Plummer, Monday Oct 10th.
St. Hilaire, Sat. Oct 15th.
Red Lake Falls, Sat. Oct 22nd.
Thief River Falls, Sat. Oct 29th.

The Industrial Contest is a contest in the production or selection of corn, grains, fruit, vegetables and in sewing and cooking by boys and girls under eighteen years of age. This is the first year that a contest of this kind has been held in this county, but it has been conducted in the state very successfully for the past three or four years. Last year over forty counties held these contests or school fairs as they may well be called, and met with so much success that they are taking up the work again this year with the assurance that nothing can do more to interest the boys and girls in the general duties about the farm and Home.

The object of this movement is not primarily to strengthen or develop county fairs, but to interest the boys and girls in the practical things of life; to bring them more closely in touch with the home, and lead them to take such vital interest in agriculture and farm life that they will have no desire to leave the farm. The city schools can have courses in Agriculture, Domestic Science, and Manual Training. The country schools however, are not able on account of the expense to establish such courses, but this is a way to get some of this practical work done among the rural school children.

The contest work was begun here in the month of May when Supt. T. A. Erickson of Douglas County came here to help me begin it. The largest schools in the county were visited and many evening meetings were held. These meetings were well attended by school officers, teachers and others who all manifested so much interest and enthusiasm that I have felt that it is bound to prove a great success. Many teachers and children, at once began the work of sewing and agriculture before the schools closed last spring and the work has been continued since that time. The boys have worked hard in helping care for the potatoe fields and gardens and have studied and selected corn and grains that they may be able to bring the best of these products to the fairs and obtain prizes. The girls also have done their part in sewing work aprons, shirt waists etc. and have done darning, patching and cooking. It is however optional with the boys and girls as to which of this work they wish to do; the girls as well as the boys can select clean and prepare the agricultural products and the boys can learn patching, darning etc if they wish.

The contest has been pretty well advertised by Extension Bulletin No 3, from the Agricultural Department of the University of Minnesota. This bulletin explains the contest thoroly and should any be in need of them they can be furnished from the office of the county superintendent on request. Letters have also been sent to a great many children about this work and I earnestly hope that parents are encouraging their children to take active parts in the work at home and at school and that there may be a cooperation with the teachers in every district to come to one of the places where a contest is held with many nice exhibits. It is expected that the days of contests be made a kind of a holiday and that teachers and children make it a point to come in a body from each school.

For the sake of convenience a contest will be held at the above named places and I trust that the people in these places, are willing to help it along in any way they can. Some money for prizes has been obtained already, but business men and others will, I am sure, further contribute merchandise or money. Prizes will be announced later.

H. F. Anderson,
Co. Supt. of Schools.

LABOR MAY TAKE A HAND

Proposes to Fight for Beveridge in Indiana.

Indianapolis, 30.—The statement by Jefferson Claypool, a well known Republican politician, that 40 per cent of the Republican candidates for the legislature are opposed to the re-election of Senator Albert J. Beveridge is under an investigation by a committee of organized labor. The committee proposes that the 40 per cent shall come into the open and declare themselves publicly. With this in view it is preparing a letter to be sent to every Republican candidate for the legislature, asking him if he will support the senator for re-election. The committee will set out the fact that Beveridge proved himself a friend of labor in the senate.

EMPEROR WILLIAM.

His Speech at Koenigsberg Causes Sensation in Berlin.

BIG SENSATION IN GERMANY

Caused by Latest Speech of Emperor William.

Berlin, 27.—The speech delivered by Emperor William of Germany before the provincial banquet at Koenigsberg, in which he reiterated and emphasized his belief in the divine mandate by which he rules, referred to the Prussian crown as bestowed by God's grace and not by parliament's or people's assemblies, and laid a lance against the present movement for woman suffrage, is the political sensation of the hour.

The leading organs of the German press devote extended comment to it, generally criticising the emperor's utterances, and there are indications that the discourse will have a deep political effect upon the country, nearly all the Berlin papers discussing the subject in connection with the political crisis of November, 1908, when the publication by the London Daily Telegraph of an interview with the emperor aroused a storm against the uncontrolled public speaking of the emperor.

"One Is Quick to Suspect Where One Has Suffered Harm Before."

Perhaps there are some business men in this town who have tried advertising and found the results unsatisfactory.

If so, something was the trouble. Contracting for space in a newspaper is not enough. When secured the space must be used to advantage. A convincing story should be told. A plant will not grow unless it is tended. An impression cannot be made upon the purchasing public except by careful, persistent work.

Many merchants err grievously in believing that time spent upon their ads is time wasted. No time can be made more profitable.

We believe the advertising columns of this paper can be used profitably by any one who seeks to reach the buyers of this community. We will gladly aid any one who desires to try it or who is trying it and is not satisfied.

Whatever the man or whatever his party, we want our candidate to be first of all a man.

"County Option" does not mean no saloons. It means let all the people affected decide.

It is curious to see how some men are put up to be elected and others to be slaughtered as meat for their neighbors. In politics at least some of us are canabals.

After a merry fight in New York Roosevelt was elected chairman of the Republican convention with over 100 votes majority over Vice-President Sherman. Even old New York is beginning to insurge.

Congress is not yet elected but the nominations are such strong handwritings on the wall that they are even of more importance in influencing the character of our next congress than the election itself will be.

Men who do not believe in giving all people equal rights before the law are not thoro believers in oure national consitution and should move to Russia where their views would be in accord with the rule of the land rather than to run for office in this country.

The Twin City papers have at various times made statements to the effect that the "County optionists have lost in numbers and yet the figures they give show a certain increase among the optionists." Why do not their writers study the figures before they do their writing?

More people are made miserable by reason of their own ignorance than by any other one fact. If they would study their surroundings they might learn the art of happiness and then having learned the art if they would put their knowledge into practice they might be happy indeed.

The farmers of this locality ar certainly in better shape than they have ever been to face a cold and blustering winter and this seems the more consoling since in a very large number of sections even of our own country many of the farmers are almost destitute. We are simply fortunate.

James Gray, the Democratic Candidate for Governor in his initial address at Fergus Falls came out flat footed for "County Option." For this he was severely criticized by the Minneapolis Journal and other Twin City papers; but what of that? These papers have been misstating and misrepresenting the "County Option" strength all the time and it is not to be expected that they should favor anyone who dared to stand for right or justice or truthful representation of deplorable facts. Now that they have lost all control of Mr. Gray the only thing they can do for him is to slam him. Well such has been the treatment meted out to all indepenbent thinkers at all times. You need have no fear Mr. Gray even the Twin City papers will come around to your way of thinking before this war is over and the leader in the frontrankswill not be forgotten.

Philanthropists have been urged to endow great newspapers as they endow libraries and museums, the idea being that only an "endowed" paper could be absolutely free, candid and fearless. In Oregon, where pure and absolute democracy, we are assured, has finally been established, where the people rule and officials tremble and obey, they have different notions about journalism. Millionaire aid is not wanted. Dissatisfaction with the "commercial press" has led to the submission to he electorate of a proposal for the publication by the state of an official gazette and its free distribution among the people.

The plan as carefully thought out is ingenious and interesting. A board of three "inspectors of government" representing labor, the farmers and the great commercial bodies;is to edit the paper, with expert help. The papers would publish not merely state news, state documents and reports on county and municipal affairs, but also "news of progress and governmental experiments all over the world. Criticiam and complaints of official acts from citizens are to have a place in the paper though no communication must exceed 200 words—a blow to the verbose correspondent or enthusiastic convert.

The referred measure limits the mexium cost of the paper to $1 for registered voter, but if more money should be needed the editoral board would have to ask not the legislature but the people for it, the intention being to make the board independent of politicians and to discourage all intrigue and pull. Advertisements are barred; to this rule there are to be no exceptions under any disguise.

Oregon is our most advanced "sociological laboratory." Even Kansas has to borrow from it. It is not unlikely that the voters will approve the bill in question and make the state the publisher of a "live" journal of the higher political and social thought, But why not charge a reasonable price? Papers given away are not valued anywhere, and human nature is still human nature even in radical Oregon.

—Chicago Record Herald.

New York and the Surf.

Few New Yorkers ever stop to think that one of that city's chief attractions is the surf. Philadelphians must go fifty-six miles to the ocean. Though the folk of Baltimore and Washington live on tidewater, they must travel for surf bathing to the capes. Boston is the only other large town on the Atlantic seaboard besides New York that has the ocean at its back door. San Francisco and Los Angeles are the only Pacific coast cities within trolley ride of ocean beach. None of the Mexican gulf cities can be compared to New York as a seaside resort, and as to New Orleans, another Mecca of the pleasure seekers, that lies more than 100 miles above the mouth of the Mississippi. But, including Coney Island and Rockaway, a good many miles of Greater New York are bounded by the ocean. This fact, just to consider the money making side of it, means an enormous revenue to the metropolis from the inland parts of the country. It is an advantage other great world centers, such as London, Paris and Berlin, do not enjoy.—Argonaut.

The Short Step Between.

"I was on an ocean liner when she ran on the rocks off the English coast some years ago," said a traveling man, "and in the panic that ensued there is one incident that stands out in my memory, illustrating the slender thread between the tragic and the ridiculous. We had a fellow on board who had managed to keep pretty well loaded all the way across, and when we struck the rocks he was in his usual condition. When everybody thought for sure we were going to the bottom he sat down at the piano in the saloon, and what do you suppose he began playing? 'Home, Sweet Home.' Somebody went to him and begged him to stop. Immediately he switched off from the doleful strains of the old song to the rollicking melody of 'Down Went McGinty.' The absurdity of the thing seemed to strike everybody at once, and a general laugh followed. The tension was relieved, and there was good order after that."

The Restaurant Piccolo.

Writing from Dresden, an American says: "There is at least one thing in a German restaurant for which one would look in vain in our country. That is the piccolo. You may think that I mean a musical instrument and that any orchestra in any country might have one of these, but you are wrong. My piccolo, the one at the restaurant, is a human being. He is a boy twelve to fifteen years old, who assists the regular waiters. He wears the regulation waiter's costume and looks funny in his spiketail coat. He is as solemn as a funeral, knows how to extract a tip and for the high privilege of retaining his place and taking his first degree as a waiter must endure much abuse at the hands of the head waiter and his underlings. He is a funny little fellow, this piccolo, who because of his appearance could never prosper in our country."—New York Tribune.

Decline of the Mustache.

Permission to wear a mustache was eagerly sought after in the middle of the last century. But now the virile decoration is discarded. Why? In those old days the Bank of England would not allow its employees to wear it and issued an order which might have come more appropriately from a bank of Ireland. It was to the effect that the mustache was not to be worn in business hours! A large drapery firm in London objected not only to the mustache, but to hair parted down the middle. There is more tolerance now. Men look younger when clean shaved. They are also more readable without the protection given by the mustache to the upper lip. If hearts can be worn on sleeves thoughts can be read on upper lips. But is it always wise to leave the legend unhidden? Men seldom like to be divined, as La Rochefoucauld remarked once and for all time.—London Express.

THE NEW WOMAN OF 1955

By AMANDA V. NICHOLS.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

His mother said I should not have him, his father was on my side, but with the change that has been coming on during the past half century in the transfer of the government of the family from the man to the woman his father's wishes counted for nothing. Even formerly, when the woman was supposed to be obedient to her husband, she ruled him, some said by tact; it was really by persistence. But now that she has got him under there is no need of either tact or persistence. She rules him because she is his superior.

Well, as I was saying, Charlie had accepted me, and there was nothing to be desired but his mother's consent, when his father, as ill luck would have it, made a dash to recover the family management, asserting that Charlie should be mine. This spoiled everything. "We shall see," said Mrs. Spangler. The result was that Charlie and I lost the support of the head of the family, while the support of the foot was of no benefit to us. Mr. Spangler sulked, but said nothing. Mrs. Spangler threatened him with divorce, and since the new law gives the woman in such cases not only the property, but the children, Charlie's father asked forgiveness.

However, I was better satisfied to have a foe worthy of a woman's opposition than a delicate man, whose heart was in the right place, but was that of a chicken. I went at once to Mrs. Spangler and said to her:

"Madam, I love your son. When I told him so I knew before he spoke by his blushes that my love was returned. 'But,' he said, 'alas, mother will not consent.' Madam, I have come to tell you that whether you consent or not your son shall be mine."

There came o'er her lips one of those steely smiles betokening that will power which has made women dominant despite their inferiority of muscular power, and she said, drawing a hatpin—not one of the little spikes of forty years ago, but an elongated stiletto:

"Take him!"

The words were few, but they outweighed the pyramids. I recoiled. But love put new vigor into me. At the same time I remembered that she was the mother of the man I loved. To kill her would be to raise an impassable barrier between me and Charlie. I resolved to discover if in this stern woman there was a trace left of the grandmothers as they were before our new birth.

"Consider your own love," I said, "for him who is now your husband."

She tapped the table nervously with the hilt of her hatpin. I saw that I had touched memories now unpleasant to her. I tried another tack.

"Do you know, madam," I said, "that in the reconstruction of the English house of lords which occurred some twenty years ago titles are now given direct to women?"

"I do."

"Well, I have influence with her majesty to secure a title."

"But you will expect some millions with Charlie."

"Not a cent."

"Charlie is bound up in what he loves," she said meditatively. "It would break that tender heart of his to oppose him."

I saw my advantage. "I can be Earl of Ballymore for the asking," I said.

"Charlie under a coronet!" she mused dreamily.

"And think how happy our union will make his father."

Fool! To spoil all by this reference to the man who had said our wish should be granted despite his wife's opposition! The cold, steely smile returned. Fingering the hatpin as if hungry for blood, she hissed:

"Three lives shall be sacrificed rather than that my son shall ever be yours!"

"Very well, madam," I said, drawing one of the new belt dagger ornaments with a mother-of-pearl handle and shaking it under her nose—"very well, madam, since you wish it let it be war to the knife!" Then I withdrew.

When I told Charlie what had happened he put his head on my shoulder and cried as if his heart would break.

"Steady, darling," I said. "It becomes us to act with decision."

"What do you mean?"

"We will walk out and be married."

"I could never do it!" he moaned.

"Be brave."

"I will ask papa what he would do if he were I. You women don't understand how much we young men need a father's love and sympathy."

"Charlie," I said, "if putting the necessary pluck into you depends upon your father you will never be mine."

"I am but a man. I dare not disobey my mother."

"Charles," I said, giving vent to the scorn I was beginning to feel for this fragile creature, "it is all over between us. Either I will marry a man in whom there is some independence, one who has not always been and always will be his mother's slave, or I will never marry at all."

"What can I do? Once we men took the lead. Did we tyrannize over women? No; we loved them so well, gave them so much of their own way, that they subjected us. And being subject to them is very different from their former subjection to us. They are crushing us."

I left him in disgust.

Caught.

A shopwalker in a large business, noted for his severity to the assistants under him, one day stepped up to a counter from which a ladylike person had just left unserved.

"You let that lady leave without making any purchase?" he asked angrily of the meek looking young man responsible for the handkerchief department sales.

"Yes, sir, I"—

"And she was at your counter fully ten minutes?"

"Doubtless; but, then, you see"—

"Exactly. I saw that, in spite of all the questions she put to you, you rarely answered her and never attempted to get what she wanted."

"Well, but"—

"You need not make any excuse. I shall report you for carelessness."

"Well, I hadn't what she wanted?"

"What was that?"

"Five shillings. She was canvassing for subscriptions to an encyclopedia."—London Globe.

An Aquatic Tragedy.

When visitors came, Bobby was often turned out of his room and into the garret for a night or two. He did not object to this, but he felt that it endangered certain cherished possessions. When his uncle, the clergyman, arrived unexpectedly one night Bobby was transferred to his garret quarters in haste and with small ceremony, and neglected to take any precautions to guard his treasures.

"I have to thank the thoughtful person who placed a glass of water on the table near the bed last night," said the clergyman the next morning. "I awoke in the night and found it refreshing—most refreshing."

"Oh!" said Bobby, in a tone of sorrow and reproach. "You've drinked up my nice new 'quarium, and all"—

But here Bobby's revelation was suppressed by his mother.—Youth's Companion.

Maternal Instinct.

"Children that yell like that ought either to be gagged or kept at home," remarked the irascible gentleman with the white beard to the bus conductor.

"And faces like the one wot you're scarin' people with," chipped in the mother of the noisy infant, "oughter be made into door knockers or sent ter the chamber o' 'orrors."

The gentleman with the patriarchal face fungus took a brick red complexion. "I know it's awkward at times"—he commenced.

"It's more'n awkward; it's nothin' short o' 'orrible," snapped the lady, as she once more glanced at the sorry elderly man's set of features.

When the rest of the passengers tittered audibly the old gentleman came to the conclusion that it behooved him to speak to the point.

"I mean the child"— he tried once more.

"And you didn't mean it no good," returned the lady, "else you wouldn't a looked at it."—London Ideas.

The Expense of a Wife.

A wife is a decided addition to the demands upon one's purse. In that sense, however sensible and managing she may be, she is expensive. But everything worth having has its price of one sort or another, and there are some things which cost much without which life is hardly worth living.

Said Thiers: "Most men contemplate making some self denial when they marry. They think they will give up such and such expensive pleasures. Later on, when they discover that they cannot do so, and at the same time they lack the means to indulge, they complain that it is the extravagance of their wives which causes the inconvenience."

Which wise saying is applicable to men in other countries besides that of France.—New York American.

The Sixth Sense.

In a primary school examination over which I once had the pleasure to preside one of the questions was with regard to the five senses. One of the bright pupils handled the subject thus:

"The five senses are sneezing, sobbing, crying, yawning and coughing. By the sixth sense is meant an extra one which some folks have. This is snoring." — Woman's Home Companion.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $ 40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

JAMES GRAY A SELF-MADE MAN

Secured College Education by His Own Endeavors.

STANDS HIGH IN JOURNALISM

Twenty-five Years of His Life Spent in All Branches of the Newspaper Business.

James Gray, the Democratic nominee for governor, was born at Falkirk, Scotland, the site of Wallace's last great battle, Feb. 18, 1862, his father being a master miller and his mother the daughter of a sturdy farmer. In 1866 his parents emigrated to America and he was brought, as he expresses it, "together with other valuables," to Bellevue, a little milling town in Iowa, where they resided, save three years in Grant county, Wis., until 1880. At Bellevue he finished his common school education, his scholarship being uniformly marked "excellent," while his deportment was only "fair," owing to his penchant for seeing the humorous side of things.

Full of enterprise, he began his newspaper career when eight years old by delivering papers and incidentally heralding the news, and his peculiar bent began to assert itself. He took an eager interest in current history and became well informed on what was going on in the world, discussing weighty matters with a gravity and sagacity at once amusing and significant—a training of great value to him throughout his subsequent career.

Experience in Manual Labor.

As he grew older he spent his vacations in the village sawmill, piling lumber and, waist-deep in the water, pushing and shoving the logs to the "slip." During one summer he worked on a macadamized road on a plan of his own—contracting to work out the poll-tax of citizens and getting enough days' work together to do the whole job. Thus he was a practical exponent of good roads before the present crusade for better highways was born.

In 1879, during his last year in school, he acted as a supply teacher, and at the age of seventeen received a full-grade certificate and taught school the following year.

JAMES GRAY.

In the spring of 1880 his father concluded to learn the new process of milling and the family removed to Minneapolis, subsequently returning to Iowa. James remained, working in a sash and door factory, and traveled daily on the Milwaukee tracks to and from his work, a full-fledged member of the dinner-pail brigade.

Secures a College Education.

During the summer of this year (1880) an incident occurred which influenced his entire career. He attended a celebration of the anniversary of the discovery of St. Anthony falls at the University of Minnesota campus, where General Sherman advised young men not to leave Minnesota in quest of gold, because there was more gold in the soil than in all the known mines. James Gray then and there determined upon a college education, and the following September he was enrolled as a university student for a five-year course. He made the most of his opportunities, working his way through college and supporting himself by various kinds of employment. One summer he was a level-man on the Great Northern, another found him at hotel work, and one at Fergus Falls under Elmer E. Adams; during his college year he carried newspaper routes on the Pioneer Press and Tribune.

Stood High in College Work.

Throughout his course he maintained a standing above the average and excelled in oratory, taking first place in his junior year. He was twice connected with the Ariel, the college paper, and was president of his class; taking an active interest in sports, he was president of the athletic association and helped organize the first general field day. The climax of his college career was his speech of welcome on behalf of the students at the inauguration of President Cyrus Northrop.

In June, 1885, he was graduated with honor as the valedictorian of his class. Immediately on leaving the university James Gray went into newspaper work and has ever since been connected with Minneapolis newspapers excepting the two years' service as mayor of that city. At first he was engaged in general reporting, and later in executive and editorial positions, having been city editor of the Tribune, managing editor of the Times and associate editor of the Journal and had business experience in the advertising departments of the Times and Tribune—twenty-five years at the desk, varied only by a short vacation in the mayor's office.

Familiar With Public Affairs.

Mr. Gray's first work was on the Tribune, having the city hall and courthouse runs, which gave him familiarity with the people and a fund of information on public affairs and matters legal and historical, as well as a working knowledge of municipal government. At the time of the Republican national convention in 1892 he was so impressed with the dramatic and tragic, the total eclipse of the Plumed Knight, that he literally tore off a tremendous article on the downfall of Blaine, prefaced with the lines from Byron on Napoleon:

"'Tis done. But yesterday a King,
And armed with Kings to strive,
And now thou art a nameless thing—
So abject yet alive."

Reputation as a Correspondent.

When the article appeared great Eastern correspondents came in scores to see the rural genius who had beaten them all, and the New York Times man and others telegraphed the entire article to their papers. The reputation thus established was heightened by his correspondence from Washington at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war—able, eloquent and vigorous letters which attracted great attention.

During his term as mayor he won a number of triumphs for the people, one in refusing to sign a contract ordered by the city council for the purchase of coal because there was an evident combine between dealers; under Mayor Gray's orders wood and shavings were used as fuel at the water works until the trust surrendered.

Defeats Traction Company Plan.

Another victory of the people was the heading off of a scheme of the street railway company to charge a 15-cent fare between the Twin Cities; the Minneapolis council had granted this privilege by an ordinance. Mayor Gray vetoed the ordinance, which was passed over his veto, whereupon he secured the support of the Pioneer Press and the St. Paul city council and the scheme was defeated.

When the smallpox epidemic broke out, decisive and sweeping measures of Mayor Gray stamped out the plague; and another of his popular moves was his "I have—have you?" to bring home, in a style worthy of them, the boys of the Thirteenth regiment from San Francisco.

Strong Editorial Writer.

James Gray is known, and widely known, through his strong, fearless, characteristic editorials, which have a personality of their own so clearly marked that people commonly say, "That's Jim Gray's; I can always tell his articles." His serious articles are occasionally illumined by flashes of native humor. It is of the grave, serio-comic literary type. He is unconsciously humorous while he defends himself from the charge.

An important side of Mr. Gray's career is his public speaking, and he is perhaps more widely known in this capacity than any other; as an after-dinner speaker he has made a reputation that has became proverbial, and he has handled gridiron dinners with a zest, unction and brilliancy that have been pronounced incomparable by President Northrop and other well known men. The late Governor Johnson at one of these dinners said, "I have never heard, even at the Washington gridiron dinners, a feature that compared with it in originality of conception."

Connected With Church Work.

Mr. Gray has been prominently connected with church work in Minneapolis and has spoken from the pulpits of a score of churches of divers denomination, and his address in South Dakota on "The Layman's Age" has been widely quoted.

Now, as to the man—and, after all, that is the important thing: Mr. Gray is a man of unbounded popularity, genial, and always ready with an apt reply. He likes people, and is therefore generally liked; he is what men call "a good fellow," and women, "a splendid man," while politicians style him "a good mixer."

Mr. Gray's Home Life.

Mr. Gray was married in 1893 to Miss Grace Farrington, associate editor of the Times. At Linden Hills, where they have resided for over half a score of years, "Jim" Gray is a sort of landmark. They have four children. You may see him any summer evening with a baby on one arm and a pail on the other, bound for a nearby pump; or in his backyard playing tennis with his daughters or baseball with the small boys of the neighborhood, or, if nothing better offers, mowing the lawn.

To sum up, James Gray is one of the people and a self-made man. He has a natural taste for public affairs, an exceptional knowledge of the state and its needs. His pre-eminent characteristics are common sense, even balance, good judgment and caution. Above all he is a man of good principles and a kind heart.

TAWNEY DEFEATED AT POLLS

Prominent Member of Congress Fails to Secure Renomination.

St. Paul, Sept. 21.—One of the important results of the primary election in this state was the defeat for renomination for congress of James A. Tawney of the First district, chairman of the appropriations committee of the house and one of Speaker Cannon's supporters. He was defeated by Sidney Anderson, a young attorney, whose candidacy was aided by Gifford Pinchot, Francis J. Heney and other notable progressives. Ex-President Roosevelt also took occasion to criticise Mr. Tawney in his speech at the St. Paul conservation congress. It was in Tawney's defense that President Taft made his Winona speech about a year ago, when he upheld the provisions of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

LAUDS "BOYS IN GRAY"

Head of Grand Army Praises Southern Soldiers.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 23.—With a fine tribute to the soldiers of the Confederacy Commander-in-Chief Samuel R. Van Sant, former governor of Minnesota, formally opened the business session of the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. The commander spoke earnestly as he expressed his gratification at the increasing fraternization of the "blue" and the "gray."

When he said that no braver troops were ever marshaled for conflict than the Southern soldiers and that the Union veterans now realize that no men ever made greater sacrifices for what they believed to be right than their former foes the commander was applauded.

At the beginning of the present year, Commander-in-Chief Van Sant said, the Grand Army had 213,901 members in good standing, as compared with 220,600 at the beginning of 1909. The loss during the year was 6,781, of which 5,323 was by death.

John E. Gilman of Boston was chosen commander-in-chief and Rochester, N. Y., for the next place of meeting.

AUTO PLUNGES INTO CANAL

Six Persons Lose Their Lives at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Sept. 25.—Six persons are believed to have been drowned when a large touring car, returning from West End, a lake resort, to New Orleans, ran off the road, crashed through a fence and fell into a canal. Three bodies have been recovered, one as that of John Freeman of New York city. He was a traveling salesman for a New York perfumery manufacturing company and had been stopping at a local hotel for several days. The other was that of Thomas Boettler, an automobile dealer.

ASIATIC CHOLERA IN ROME

Four Cases and One Death Occurs From the Plague.

Rome, Sept. 27.—Professor Doria, chief of the board of health, announced that there have been four cases of Asiatic cholera in Rome. One of these proved fatal, while the others are recovering.

Cabinet Members Meet.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The cabinet house party at the White House is in full swing. Eight of the nine members of the president's official family moved in. They held a formal session in the cabinet room of the executive offices during the forenoon and continued their informal discussion of affairs of state. During the late afternoon the cabinet officers returned to their respective departments, but gathered again at the White House for dinner and a long evening talk on the south veranda.

HARMON'S NEW MONOPLANE

Machine Expected to Make Eighty Miles an Hour.

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Clifford B. Harmon is showing a new monoplane in his shed here. It is a curious birdlike contrivance, with a body like a barrel, in which two fifty horsepower engines will be placed. The wings extend from each side of the barrel body, below which the driver is seated.

It is expected that the new machine will make eighty miles an hour with both engines working. It is the invention of two machanics in Harmon's employe and will be tried out this week.

FIRST MEETING IN SEVERAL MONTHS

President and His Cabinet Confer at Washington.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The first of the series of cabinet meetings that will mark the stay of President Taft in Washington this week was held in the cabinet room of the executive offices. It has been just three months since the official family was last together.

In a general way the cabinet discussions are to be on the subject of forthcoming judicial appointments by the president, foreign affairs, including the readjustment in progress in Nicaragua; reports, estimates and economy plans from the various departments; the inauguration of the postal savings banks and the extension of the civil service to include assistant postmasters and permanent clerks in money order offices.

There will also be a political aspect to the meetings. Some of the members of the cabinet expect to be called upon for political addresses in the congressional campaign and they will give expression to the president's views and in this connection the president's recent change of attitude toward the progressives and his desire for harmony in the party are expected to guide the members of his official family in their pleas for votes.

It is also probable that some line of action with regard to that fruitful campaign topic, the high cost of living, will be mapped out during the cabinet sessions.

Young Knox Seeking Divorce.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 27.—It has just leaked out that Hugh Knox, son of Secretary of State Knox, is in this state for the purpose of establishing a legal residence for the filing of a divorce complaint. This is on the authority of a prominent president of a bank here.

Sights Immense Herd of Walrus.

Seattle, Sept. 27.—The gacoline trading schooner Helen Johnson, owned and navigated by Louis Lane, son of Charles D. Lane, the California millionaire, encountered a herd of about 20,000 walrus swimming in the sea near Diamede islands, in Behring strait.

Dancing Kills Young Woman.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—"I could die waltzing," said Miss Elizabeth Harris at the close of a dance. As she seated herself she fell over. She died within a few minutes. She had been dancing continuously for four hours. Miss Harris was twenty-two years old.

LORIMER PROBE ON

Committee Begins Inquiry Into His Election to Senate.

WHITE IS THE FIRST WITNESS

Long Wrangle Over Admission of Testimony Relating to the Legislative "Jack Pot."

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Testimony from State Representative Charles A. White, the first witness in the Lorimer election inquiry, was heard by the senate committee investigating the charges of bribery and corruption in the election of the junior senator from Illionis. After hours of argument by the opposing counsel the committee left undetermined the question of the admissibility of testimony relative to the alleged "jack pot," a fund for the payment of legislators voting for or against bills pending before the Illinois general assembly.

Attorney Alfred S. Austrian, representing the Chicago Tribune, which is pushing the charges against the election of Senator Lorimer, contended vigorously that the alleged participation of legislators who voted for Senator Lorimer in the spoils of the so-called jack pot was pertinent and necessary in the investigation of the charges of the use of the corrupt methods and practices in the election of Senator Lorimer as showing a general corruption of the legislature, of which the election of the senator under fire was an integral part.

Opposed by Lorimer's Attorney.

Attorney Elbridge Henecy, counsel for Senator Lorimer, stoutly opposed the admission of testimony relative to bribes which might have been paid to or received by legislators for their votes on legislative matters apart from the election of a United States senator.

On the strict understanding that the action was not to be considered a precedent admitting the whole jack pot subject, Chairman Burrows permitted Witness White to answer some of the questions touching on the funds which have been referred to as the "jack pot."

Representative White declared that he was met in the St. Louis hotel by Representative Robert E. Wilson, also a Democratic representative, who paid him $900 as his share of the jack pot. White detailed his meeting with other Democratic legislators in Wilson's room, and testified that the payment was made to him in the bathroom by Wilson, who before that had conferred with another of the legislators in the same bathroom. His testimony was essentially the same as given by him in the two trials of Lee O'Neil Browne on the charge of bribery.

HIS SELECTION REAFFIRMED

New York State Committee Insists on Sherman for Chairman.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 27.—By a vote of 22 to 15, the Republican state committee at a special meeting reaffirmed its selection of Vice President Sherman over Theodore Roosevelt as temporary chairman of the state convention.

This action, a victory for the old guard, was taken after Vice President James S. Sherman had created a sensation with a letter asking that the committee investigate the charge that his selection as temporary chairman was brought about through trickery and stating that if the charges were substantiated he would not serve.

After a heated argument lasting nearly two hours, in which the leaders of both the old guard and the progressives gave sharp expression of their convictions, the committee by a vote of 22 to 15 resolved, "That Mr. Sherman be informed that his selection was made without misrepresentation as an answer to his letter."

CAR STRIKES AUTOMOBILE

Wife and Children of Cleveland Physician Killed.

Cleveland, Sept. 27.—Backing his automobile across a country road in an attempt to reach a private driveway Dr. Morris D. Stepp, prominent Cleveland surgeon, drove the machine directly before a speeding electric freight car. The machine was hurled high into the air and Mrs. Stepp and two children, Morris, aged eight, and an infant daughter, were killed.

Dr. Stepp was removed to a hospital, where it was found that he had sustained three fractured ribs and internal injuries.

INDICT LEADING IMPORTERS

Alleged to Have Bribed Customs House Weighers.

New York, Sept. 24.—The federal grand jury has voted a batch of indictments against leading importers who are alleged to have bribed the weighers to return short weight on cargces of imports.

These indictments are the direct outgrowth of the amazing revelations developed during the trial of a former chief clerk of the appraiser's office and the assistant weighers jointly indicted with him.

AVIATOR SOARS OVER ALPS

George Chavez, the Peruvian, Accomplishes the Feat.

Domodossola, Italy, Sept. 24.—To George Chavez, the Peruvian aviator, belongs the honor of being the first to fly across the Alps.

The daring feat was accomplished in an attempt to win the prize of $20,000 offered by the Italian Aviation society of Milan for a flight from Brig, Switzerland, to Milan.

Chavez, however, was unable to complete the trip, having suffered painful injuries when he alighted here. His machine was overturned and he was buried in the wreckage.

SIXTEEN PEOPLE KILLED

Rock Island Train Plunges Into Washout in Kansas.

Clayton, Kan., Sept. 24.—Sixteen persons lost their lives and eleven others suffered injuries in the wreck two miles east of here of the westbound Rock Island passenger train No. 27.

The wreck occurred at a fill, a thousand feet of which had been washed out by a cloudburst.

The train was running practically on time and was proceeding on a straight track. Evidently the first intimation the engineer had of danger came when he realized the forward portion of the train was running in water which spread out over the tracks near the fill. Reversing, he checked the speed of the train, but not enough to prevent the engine, baggage car and the smoker going over into the depression.

Why the House Rented Cheap

By WARREN D. BENTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

Desiring a house and grounds in the country, I scanned the newspapers till I found an advertisement of one that appeared to be what I wanted. Taking my little boy with me for company and to give him a holiday, I went to the place, found the agent who had the rental of the house and signified a desire to look at it. He drove me to it and showed me through the premises. When I asked him the price he hemmed and said:

"What do you wish to pay?"

I named a price about half what I thought the place was worth, and was very much astonished that the figure was accepted.

I resolved to remain in the town near which the house was located to make inquiries as to why it rented so cheap. At the hotel where we stopped while eating supper I engaged the landlord in conversation and told him that I had come to look at the Rand premises, as they were called, with a view to renting them. At the mention of the place he cast a quick glance at me, then busied himself at a side table where the guests were served, as though he did not wish to continue the subject. I did all I could to draw him out, but failed signally.

After supper, taking my boy with me, I went to a garden decorated with Chinese lanterns and, seating myself at a table, ordered a glass of wine. A man sat at the same table, and I addressed him:

"Do you reside in this town, sir?"

"I do," he replied.

"Do you know anything about the Rand place?" I asked, looking at him knowingly.

"You refer to the old gentleman who is interested in the hedge?"

"Yes."

I had never heard of an old gentleman near the stable, but suspected that I had struck what I was looking for, and this was the reason for my affirmative reply. I waited for him to speak again, but he did not. So to lead him on I said:

"Have you ever seen him?"

"I? No. How could I see him?"

"Why, with your eyes, of course."

"Don't you know," he said, looking at me in surprise, "that only a child can see him?"

"A child?" I asked, puzzled.

"Yes. Your boy might, but not you."

"H'm!" I said for want of something more indefinite to say and not wishing to give away my ignorance of what he was talking about, then after a pause, "Is he always there?"

"That no one can tell. No adult has ever seen him and only a few children."

There was an orchestrion playing in the garden, and during this conversation my son had left me and gone to listen to it.

"I wonder," I said to the stranger, "if my boy would see him?"

"The boy who sat with you when you first came to this table?"

"Yes."

"I should think he might."

"Why so?"

"Oh, it is only a surmise. The little fellow has a spiritual look."

"What is the best time to see the old gentleman?"

"About 5 in the afternoon. That's the time he was killed."

"The time he was killed?"

"Yes. He had ordered his horse, a vicious brute, for his accustomed horseback ride. A new groom had just come to work for him who did not know the animal's tricks, one of which was to refuse to leave the stable, rearing and plunging when expected to do so. The old gentleman went out to see why his horse was not brought round and found the groom struggling with him. The gentleman mounted the beast, gave him the whip and clapped the spurs into his flanks. The horse shot out of the stable, and before he could be turned brushed against the hedge, throwing his rider, who fell on his head and broke his neck. The time was exactly fourteen minutes after 5."

I was tempted to laugh, but resisted the impulse. Nevertheless there is a bit of superstition in all of us, and I determined to take my boy to the place the next afternoon. Besides, I wished to tell my wife the story of why such a bargain was offered and assure her there was nothing in the story. So the next afternoon I went with my boy to the place, arriving there about 5 o'clock. We walked about the grounds for a quarter of an hour, when I said:

"I wish there was some one here of whom to ask some questions about the place."

"There is, papa. Perhaps the old gentleman over there can tell you what you want to know."

I started. I saw no one.

"That old man over there pruning the hedge?" I asked in pretense.

"He isn't pruning it, papa; he's cutting it down with an ax."

"Never mind, my boy. I think we won't take the place after all. Your mother wouldn't like it."

I took my son by the hand and led him away as quickly as he could walk. Now and again he turned his head to look back, remarking, "I wonder why he wishes to destroy so well grown a hedge," or, "What a queer looking man he is! Sometimes I can't see him, and I can't hear any sound when the ax strikes the thick wood at the bottom where he is cutting."

I paid no attention to these comments, getting the child away as soon as possible.

Masculine Music.

The musical doctor stepped into the shop.

His hair stuck out like stiff straws, and his joy of life was under his arm; also two buttons on his waistcoat were undone. So there was no doubt about his being a genius.

"Aha, ahem, ahum!" purred the musical doctor. "E string for a violin, please."

The man behind the counter looked flustered. He went to the shelf, took off a small packet, examined it carefully, examined it again and then hesitatingly returned to the customer.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he began diffidently, "but this 'appens to be my first day in the shop, and yer might give me a little 'elp. The fact is these 'ere strings look all alike to me, an' I can't tell the 'es from the shes!"—London Globe.

Success doesn't "happen." It is organized, pre-empted, captured, by consecrated common sense.—F. E. Willard.

FORTY ARE KILLED

Horrible Wreck on Interurban Road in Indiana.

DISREGARD OF ORDERS ALLEGED

Crew of One of the Cars Accused of Having Caused Collision by Disobeying Instructions.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept., 23.—The authorities of Wells county and officials of the Traction company are making a rigid investigation to attach responsibility for the collision of two cars on the Bluffton line of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company, in which forty persons were killed and eight injured.

Frank I. Hardy, superintendent of transportation of the Traction company, stated that disregard of orders caused the wreck and that B. T. Corkwell, motorman of the southbound train, probably is the one to blame.

The disaster, rated as the worst in all interurban history, occurred at a sharp curve near Kingland, six miles from Bluffton.

It is said that Corkwell was to wait at Greeneboro, a station between Kingsland and Ossian, for the northbound train, but that instead of doing this he tried to meet the other car at Kingsland.

The crash came soon after the northbound car had left Kingsland. The cars were telescoped almost their entire length.

Practically all of the dead persons were living in the vicinity of Bluffton. It was a holiday throng bound for Fort Wayne to attend the state fair. The "local" was filled to the last seat and there were many persons in the aisles or on the platforms.

All but One Killed or Injured.

Out of forty-five or fifty persons, passengers and trainmen, but one man has so far been discovered who escaped entirely unhurt.

Most of the deaths were instantaneous.

The dead were laid in rows in a grove nearby. The bodies were horribly mangled. Legs and arms were severed and in some cases heads nearly cut from the body.

The identification was slow. The dead were loaded into two cars and taken to Bluffton, the wounded to Fort Wayne.

Conductor Spiller of the Bluffton local was not seriously injured and his presence of mind averted another accident. When Spiller saw the extent of the catastrophe he ran back toward Kingsland and flagged and stopped the Indianapolis limited which was coming full speed. Had it not been stopped it would have crashed into the struggling and dying mass of humanity left in the wake of the crash.

John R. Boyd of Marion, Ind., was probably the only passenger aboard the ill fated local car who escaped without any injury.

TO FIGHT INCREASED RATES

Mid-Western Traffic Association Organized at Topeka.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 24.—With the permanent organization of the Mid-Western Traffic association, embracing the majority of the commercial organizations in Middle Western states, the freight rate conference just closed here is believed to have yielded results more important than the organizers of the conference had expected.

The conference closed after the adoption of resolutions demanding the rigid enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law as applied to bureaus for the fixing of freight rates and urging the physical valuation of railroads as the only effective means of learning whether an increase in rates would be reasonable.

CAUSE OF NUMEROUS DEATHS

Statistics Covering Ravages of Infantile Paralysis.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The mortality report of the census bureau covering investigations for 1909 takes cognizance of infantile paralysis (anterior poliomyelitis) and pollagra as diseases to which the flesh is heir. The record shows 569 in the former and 116 in the latter class.

The statistics cover only slightly more than half of the population, extending only to states or cities which require the registration of deaths.

Owing to the fact that the deaths from infantile paralysis were widely distributed, the inference is drawn by the report that the disease exists either in epidemic or endemic form in many parts of the country.

ROBBERS MAKE $5,000 HAUL

Canadian Territory Is Scene of Many Crimes Recently.

Hamiota, Man., Sept. 22.—The gang of professional burglars which has been operating in Southern Manitoba for several weeks turned their attention to this town and robbed two stores and blew two large safes with nitroglycerin and secured $5,000 in cash. The robberies were not discovered until the stores were opened in the morning.

RETARDED BY THE RAILROADS

Official Opinion on Development of Waterways.

IN CONTROL OF FRONTAGE

Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith Says the Attitude of the Rail Carriers Is the Greatest Single Deterrent at the Present Time—Lack of Co-Operation of Localities With Government Also Cited.

Washington, Sept. 27.—"Probably the greatest single deterrent to water terminal advance in the United States is the present adverse attitude of rail lines toward independent water traffic, in their exclusive control of frontage, in refusal or neglect to co-ordinate with general water traffic, and in refusal to prorate generally with water lines in through movement of traffic."

This is one of the conclusions of Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, in his report to the president on water transportation in the United States. After an exhaustive inquiry into the harbor situation of the country and analysis of conditions Commissioner Smith deals in this section of the report with water terminals and he finds five salient facts regarding them:

That the harbors of the country have not fully developed their terminal frontage, nor are they properly organized or controlled.

That railroads largely control water terminals, often to the disadvantage of general water traffic.

That there is almost no linking up of the rail and general water systems at the water edge, but rather the opposite tendency.

Marked Lack of Co-Operation.

That there is little co-operation by localities with the federal government which improves their channels.

Relating to railroad co-operation, Commissioner Smith says:

"Until this underlying relation of rail to water systems is adjusted on some common sense basis of harmony, there is little hope of great advance in water terminal conditions."

Lack of co-operation between localities and the federal government in water terminal developments, he says, is in marked contrast to those Continental countries whose waterways have been most highly developed.

Summarizing the situation as to control of water terminals by railroads, the report says:

"A large amount of water terminal is everywhere controlled by railroads, while much of this control is undoubtedly necessary and commercially advantageous, it is to be remembered that at present the rail and water systems are often in vigorous competition. The control by one system of the terminals upon which a rival system is dependent is therefore of serious importance."

NEGRESS KILLS EMPLOYER

Is Herself Fatally Wounded by Wife of Dead Man, She Says.

New York, Sept. 27.—James Myden, a hotelkeeper, was stabbed in the heart and instantly killed by Florence Lovett, a negro chambermaid, when he attempted to discharge her for insolent language. When the police came they found the maid dying with a stab wound over her heart.

"She killed herself," said Mrs. Myden.

"She done it, she done it," gasped the girl, pointing at Mrs. Myden. "When she saw what I done to her husband she grabbed the knife."

Mrs. Myden was detained pending an investigation.

TO TAP FARMING COUNTRY

Electric Line From St. Paul to Southern Minnesota.

St. Paul, Sept. 27.—An electric interurban railway connecting St. Paul with the vast territory tributary to the Minnesota valley in the southern part of the state is projected by St. Paul capitalists. The exact route of the line is not announced as yet, but enough is known to say authoritatively that Mankato, St. Peter and other cities in that locality will be on the main line. Branch lines will be constructed reaching the outlying farming districts. The lines will tap a rich agricultural district.

Child Crushed by Wagon.

Berthold, N. D., Sept. 27.—Eva Flora, aged three years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Berry, was crushed to death under a wagon loaded with filled water barrels. She was playing about the wagon, which had been stopped on a small knoll, and in some manner it gained a start down hill. The child fell under one of the wheels and the wagon stopped just soon enough to pin her down.

Widow of Ira D. Sankey Dead

New York, Sept. 27.—Mrs. Frances Victoria Sankey, widow of Ira D. Sankey, the singing evangelist, died at her home in Brooklyn. She was seventy-one years old. Mrs. Sankey was born in Harrisburg, Pa., and married Mr. Sankey in 1863.

CITIES MAY DREDGE RIVER

EAST GRAND FORKS, CROOKSTON AND THIEF RIVER FALLS TO JOIN

Mayor T. P. Hamre and Light Supt. L. Peterson went down to Crookston and Grand Forks the first of the week to try to enlist the aid of those cities in an enterprise to open the sand bar at the outlet of the Red Lake so as to provide a sufficient water supply during the winter, as the shortage of water is as serious a problem with each of those cities as it is with us.

It is claimed that the sand bar at the outlet acts as a natural dam and that it would require a comparatively small amount of dredging to lower the level of the Red Lake between one and two feet and this would furnish water enough to furnish the three cities' water works as well as power plants.

Conservative estimates place the cost of the necessary dredging at about $1500.00 and the representatives from this city asked the two down river cities if they would be willing to stand their share of the expense of cutting out this sand bar.

The Council of the City of Grand Forks voted to pay one third of the total cost not to exceed $2000.00 for this improvement.

Sentiment in Crookston favors the move also but no definite action has as yet been reported.

In the meantime the city council has made arrangements with the Thief River Lumber Co, to lease their engines and boilers during the winter to operate dynamos to take care of the city light departments business in case water power should fail them.

The city is to pay the lumber company $5 per day rent and $2.25 per cord for wood delivered at the boiler rooms.

N. W. Educational Ass'n Meet at E. Grand Forks

Last evening the heads of several of the leading schools of the Red River Valley met in Crookston to fix the time and the place of the annual meeting of the Northwestern Minnesota Educational Assn., of which Supt. Dunton, of McIntosh, is president and Mrs. Graham Munch, of this city, is secretary and treasurer. East Grand Forks was selected as the place after a cordial invitation from Supt. Johnson, of that place Supt. Hays, of Thief River Falls, invited the convention there and Supt. McIntire extended an invitation from Crookson, but as the former meetings had always been held here it was deemed best, in the interests of the association, to start a rotation among the places where the schools are located and East Grand Forks was named. The dates were set for November 10-11-12, and a program will be arranged to make the meeting one of the best in the history of the association.

Those present included Prof. Dunton, McIntosh; Prof. Hay, Thief River Falls; Prof. Johnson, East Grand Forks; Prof. Koos, Red Lake Falls; Prof. Mitchel, Warren; Supt. McIntire, Thorson, Thomas Casey, Crookston.

PIONEER REFUSES ADVERTISING

Montgomery, Ward & Co of Chicago want to advertise in the Pioneer, and we might add they are willing to pay a rate local advertiser would consider outrageous. The Pioneer is usually out for any legitimate business, but in this case have decided not to accept the contract. We do not wish to help divert any business that rightfully belongs to home merchants even though the later are rather tardy in giving support to some papers. If merchants looked on advertsing more as a business and less as charity they would be the gainers.

INSTANTLY KILLED

WAS STRUCK BY A TRAIN WHILE ON HIS WAY TO THE CITY OF VIRGINIA.

Ray Arndt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt, of the town of Highlanding, was instantly killed last Thursday about one mile from Virginia, a city over on the iron range.

Ray had a responsible position with one of the large iron mining companies located a few miles from Virginia, and a few days prior to his death was taken sick. Thursday evening he started to walk to Virginia to secure medical aid and when about one mile from Virginia was struck by a train and instantly killed. The crew on the train that killed Ray did not know that they had run over him and therefore it will never be known how the accident happened. Henry Arndt went to Virginia and brought the body to Thief River Falls on Friday and the funeral servises were held Saturday morning under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. lodge, of which the deseased was a member.

The deceased was a very bright and likeable young man and was very successful in the mining field and held a very responsible position. He was thirty years of age and unmarried.

DIETZ TO MAKE RAID ON WINTER

Will Endeavor to Rescue His Wounded Daughter.

ARMED DEPUTIES IN WAITING

Officers Patrol the Town and Are Scouting Along the Road Which the Cameron Dam Outlaw Is Expected to Take on His Way to the Village. Condition of Myra Dietz Said to Be Grave.

Winter, Wis., Oct. 3.—"Tell them I'm coming in," said John F. Dietz deliberately, but intensely, standing beside his cabin at Cameron dam. His challenge was hurled directly at the camp of his enemies.

Thirty-eight armed special deputies, under orders of Mike Madden, sheriff of Sawyer county, are patrolling the town of Winter and lying in wait near the log house ten miles out in the ruddy woods.

"I am coming in when I feel like it," says John Dietz.

The special deputies believe that when Dietz feels like it will be when he wants to get back his daughter Myra, twenty-one years old, who is now lying sleeplessly in a bed in the Hotel Winter, shot through the abdomen by a steel bullet fired by one of these men, Sheriff Madden, Fred W. Thorbaun and Roy Van Alstyne.

"Is he coming in?" is the question in the minds of the men with the mackinaw coats and the high topped shoes whose rifles, constantly in hand, have given all the air of a Jesse James yarn to this angular little back woods village.

"If he comes we'll get him just as fast as God will let us," said Van Alstyne. "It will take about ten minutes; that's all."

That's the game the deputies are playing—the waiting game. Dietz is cunningly asked to make the advances, when his reception is to be lead cased in steel.

Son's Gun Waiting for Dietz.

One gun that is waiting for him is his son's. It was Clarence's automatic which was taken away from him when he was handcuffed after the ambuscade at the O'Hara homestead out on the thin red road to Cameron dam. The revolver is now sticking rakishly out of the front trouser pocket of Thorbaun, who did the handcuffing.

Van Aystyne carries a pair of field glasses in his side pocket, and has great use for them.

Mike Madden is now in Hayward, the county seat. He took Clarence, the twenty-three-year-old son, there in an automobile and lodged him in the county jail. Brother and sister were not allowed to see each other and have not since Clarence was led into the town jail here with a single fear in his heart that Myra was dying.

Myra's condition is grave but it is believed she will pull through. The bullet went into the lower left side of her abdomen, just missed her spine and came out at the lower right side of her back. She has some fever, which Dr. H. J. Burns, the young physician of Winter, says does not necessarily mean that complications have set in. Since the shooting she has slept just twenty minutes. Dr. Burns declares emphatically that she should not be taken to Hayward, where there is no hospital. If she is to be moved, he says, she should go to the hospital at Chippewa Falls.

The girl has won many friends among those who were against her before on account of her father. She has kept a stiff upper lip and has complained not at all, except at the first, when she several times spoke her wonder that she had done anything which should have necessitated her being shot.

Told Not to Fire on Deputies.

When correspondents talked with Dietz and his wife Dietz declared that Mrs. Dietz herself had directed the children not to fire upon the deputies.

"They have nothing on you now. don't give them anything," were the mother's instructions.

There is no claim set up here in Winter that a shot was fired by any of the Dietz children ambushed They were ordered to surrender and right about faced instead. That is the whole story.

The warrants against Clarence and Leslie Dietz include those issued after the shooting of Bert Horel by the father Sept. 6 last. The warrant against Myra, charging intent to murder, dates back to June 25, 1906, when an assault on the cabin at the Thornapple was repulsed, Clarence receiving a bullet in the head, which fractured his skull. Clarence's present injury is nothing, a mere grazing of the arm.

There is a steady attempt by the deputies to curb the publicity being given the present phase of the Diet affair after the two children were brought into town. Madden entere the telegraph office, announced tha he was the sheriff of Sawyer count and ordered the operator to send n more accounts from correspondent The operator asked a high official o the telegraph company what to d about it and was told to send the on. He did.

The Sunbeam says that Commissioner Lindquist was selected as the Jonah to be cast over board for the sins of the whole crew. According to Mr. Lindquist's latest explanations of his defeat, the gang at Red Lake Falls did the heaving and this seems very plausible seeing that he persistently sailed in their boat and with that crew.

A political lieutenant through the Fargo Call credits Senator A. D. Stevens with an ambition, to run for governor two years hence. Ambitious eyes look often higher than their merits rise. Even the republicans are united in saying that James Gray, the Democratic nominee forgovernor is a good clean man and they can find nothing against him but his politics. The people of Minnesota were never called upon to apologize for the democratic governors, Lind and Johnson, and if Gray is elected he will fill the place as well as either of these men. How about the republican governors, past and present?

Norman Co., Herald—

The rate making power of the state has been declared void and the rate laws unconstitutional. The case will be carried to the supreme court. and if the decision of the master in chancery to whom the case was referred, is sustained, the state will be denied the power to supervise railroad rates. This decision affects railroad passenger far and freight rates on various bulk commodities. If it is finally held that the state has no power to fix rates, and if the railroads will be allowed to do so without public regulation, then public ownership will have to be invoked, as the people will never submit again to let the railroad prey on the public.—Roseau Region.

James Gray, democratic candidate for governor, spoke in this city last Wednesday evening. Every thought presented seemed to tingle with original and independent ideas. One thing in particular we wish to review, for the benefit of those who wers unable to be present, merely the bold manner in which Mr. Gray declared that "he could afford to be defeated for governor but he could not afford to allow himself to be elected governor without the people knowing where he stood.

Does Farming Pay?

Andrew Nash of the town of Silvertown bot a quater section of land last winter for $2700. and last spring proceeded to break up the same. He put 80 acres into flax of which he reported to us the other day that he had threshed one half and gotten 14 bu. per acre marketing it at once at $2.52 he received over $1400. for the crop off half the field. If the other half produces as well the 80 acres will pay in crops produced for the entire quarter section in one seasen.

Mr. Nash has done so well that he has decided to retire from active farming. Accordinly he rented his farm for next year and expects to move into the city.

Irrigation and Water Saving

Doubtless many a Minnesota farmer has thought, during the past season, as he witnessed the destruction or curtailment of his crops by the long-continued drouth. "What a fine thing an irrigating plant would have been this year!" A few horticulturists and market-gardeners in this state have already installed such plants, and others are planning to do so. "By use of pumps and windmills or gasoline motors, many small pieces of land can be supplied with water. On many farms, small streams, lakes or swamps are so situated that their waters can easily be turned upon the land for irrigating purposes. These methods of helping nature to help itself have long since been learned by the settlers of the semi-arid regions of the West, where the irrigated lands are now the most highly productive of all lands." But the farmer to whom such sources of water supply are not yet available may, if he will, "bottle up" such a quantity of water, just under the surface of his land—by plowing it deeply in the fall so that it will absorb all the rains and melted snows, and then cultivating so as to keep it covered with a dust mulch,—as to assure a sufficiency of moisture for his crops. This is the whole secret of so-called "dry farming" which is in reality only irrigation under another form.—C. R. B., Extension Division. University News.

Aaron Burr's Grave.

Aaron Burr died at Port Richmond, Staten Island, Sept. 14, 1836. His remains were conveyed to Princeton, N. J., where, according to his request, he was interred at the feet of his father and grandfather. Both his father and grandfather were presidents of Princeton college.

Concerning the tombstone which marks his burial place, we quote from the history of his life by Parton: "Some efforts were made and some money subscribed soon after his death to procure a suitable monument, but the project failed. For nearly two years the spot where he lay was unmarked when one morning it was discovered that a small, very substantial and not inexpensive monument of granite and marble had been placed during the night over [illegible]. No one in the town saw the monument erected or knew anything whatever respecting it. There was no stonecutter in the vicinity capable of executing the work. The stone bears the inscription: 'Aaron Burr. Born February, 6, 1756. Died, September 14, 1836.' "—Philadelphia Press.

The Presidential Salute.

One explanation of the reason for adopting twenty-one guns as the presidential salute is that there might be maintained a uniformity in national salutes, Great Britain having in the distant past adopted twenty-one as the number for the royal salute. Of the many surmises as to why the number twenty-one was settled upon we mention two—first, that twenty-one was the number of years fixed by English law as the age of majority; second, that seven was the original salute and three times seven would signify one seven for each of the divisions, England and Wales, Scotland and Ireland. It is asserted that the United States adopted this salute to signify to the mother country that her child had reached his majorly and was prepared in law to inherit the land and to this end fired the "gun of 1776," the figures of which year, 1+7+7+6, equal 21.—Philadelphia Press.

Underground Hotels.

An extraordinary hotel is that in the sewers of Paris, immediately below the Church of St. Madeleine. It was built and is conducted solely for the benefit of the sewer workers. Nearly a hundred meals are provided every day, and for the sum of $2.40 a man can be comfortably housed and fed for a week in this gigantic drainpipe.

Very similar is the hotel which caters for visitors to the coal mine of St. Pierre at Mons. It is to be found at the bottom of the mine, 600 feet below the earth, and is carved out of solid coal. The electric light on the glittering black walls, which have been left unpapered, is extremely effective. Large reception and bed rooms splendidly fitted up are provided, and the hotel even boasts the luxury of a swimming bath.

Mark Twain as "Attraction."

A girl who was a stranger to Mark Twain once found her way into his Bermuda home with the hope of getting a sight of the author. She came suddenly in contact with him and frankly explained her errand.

"Have you seen the crystal cave yet," he asked, "or the aquarium?"

"No; I came to see you first," she answered.

"Well, you shouldn't have seen me first," he answered. "I run in opposition to the crystal and the aquarium. But they're not shucks to me. I'm lots better. I give them their money's worth. But you should see them. Then you'll appreciate me."

This was said in his most earnest drawl and with only a sparkle of humor in his keen blue eyes.—Chicago Tribune.

Striking It Rich.

"Did you ever strike it rich prospecting?"

"Only once," replied the westerner. "I was going along a trail in the mountains late one afternoon when I saw the gleam of metal. Hastening to it, I found"—

"Tin. It was a matchbox, full too. And I had been out of matches since my early morning smoke."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE GILA MONSTER

By DAVID WALTER CHURCH

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Little Inez Basquemento, a Mexican girl I saw while engineering in the southwest, was a merry child (if she had been born in the north she would have been a child; but, being a Mexican, she was a woman). She might have been anywhere from fourteen to sixteen. She played the guitar and sang with a little birdlike voice, jabbered Spanish musically, danced, and her face wore a perpetual smile, which was for every one. But if any person attempted to guy her she would knit her brows and shrink away as though terrified. And once her confidence was lost by a bit of banter her good will could never be regained.

There was a young engineer engaged on the same work as myself out there, at the time fresh from one of the "Teck" schools of the northern states. He was twenty years old, handsome as a picture and as bright as a new brass button. What must he do but make love to Inez with all the recklessness of youth regardless of the consequences both to himself and her! I, who was older, saw his danger and warned him. I knew what was up, for in the evening when the day's work was over I would hear on the Basquemento veranda the twang of Inez's guitar, her little flute voice, her merry laughter mingled with sounds which I recognized as coming from Ben Eggleston, the young man who was sowing the wind to reap the whirlwind.

"You little fool," I would say to him, "don't you know that the girl is a mingling of child and woman—child in inexperience, woman in development; that she will fall in love with you and then"—

"I'll break it off at once," would be the young fellow's invariable reply. The boy fully intended to keep his resolution when it was made, but gave up trying to do so when it got cold. The next night I would hear the same pleasant sounds on the veranda and knew that they were breeding the same storm.

This went on till the work on that division was finished and we were about to move. Eggleston assured me there wouldn't be any trouble. The girl was such a child that he couldn't believe she had been attracted to him as she might have been if more of a woman. He was going away and would simply bid her goodby as he would any other girl of immature years whose companion he had been.

"My advice to you," I said, "is to do no such thing. Go without saying anything about your going."

He didn't take my advice. The day before leaving he told her in a careless way that the engineering party to which he belonged was going to move its headquarters.

"And I will not see you again?" said the girl, her smile vanishing.

"Perhaps not," replied Ben, not thinking it wise to leave her to look forward to meeting him again. "You'll grow up soon and get married. Then you won't want any young men friends like me."

In order the better to kill in her all expectation of getting any nearer to him he told her he had a girl in the north.

That evening I met Inez carrying a cudgel in one hand and a canvas bag in the other. She wore the same innocent look she had always worn, but I noticed a peculiar glitter in her eye. There was something incongruous in a little girl's carrying a bludgeon, and, naturally fearful for Ben Eggleston, I could not help vaguely connecting the act with the jilting he was giving her. She passed me without looking back, and, taking position behind a tree, I watched her.

She went along, looking about her on the ground as if searching for something. She spent half an hour in this way, I following her, taking a new position now and then where I would not be observed by her. Presently I saw her hit something with her weapon. Then she picked up what looked to me from a short distance like a baby alligator. She held it by the tail, dropped it into the bag, closed the mouth and went away.

I didn't know what it all meant; but, still timorous about Ben, I told him he had better not wait for the moving of the party, but get out at once. He laughed at me and said there was nothing to fear and if there were he wouldn't run from a little Mexican girl who had scarcely given up her doll.

We engineers slept in a long temporary building one story high. That night I was startled by an unearthly yell. Springing out of bed, I ran along to a room where Eggleston and a rodman slept. The window was open, and Eggleston had just struck a light. His roommate was holding one leg and writhing with pain.

"Kill it!" he yelled.

Then I saw a little alligator looking thing on the floor.

"Kill it! It's the Gila monster and has bitten me. I'm gone up."

Inez's actions were explained. She had dropped the reptile in through the window on Ben, she supposed, but really on his roommate. For a week the poor devil howled in agony, then died.

That was years ago. Ben Eggleston has never married. The bare mention of a woman produces on him a temporary insanity.

A Dream and Its Sequel.

"In one of the East Indian border wars there was engaged an officer of high repute, the member of an ancient county family," says Mrs. Mayo in "Recollections of Fifty Years." One night the laird, its head, started from his sleep, exclaiming:

" 'There's the shot that has killed my brother!'

"His wife told him it was but a dream. He must have given an anxious thought to his brothers before going to sleep. Next day the pair were in the garden directing their gardeners when the laird suddenly exclaimed:

" 'Do you hear the bagpipes?'

" 'No,' answered the lady. 'I can hear nothing. I am sure there is no sound.'

" 'Strange,' said the laird, 'for I can even hear what is played. It is "The Flowers o' the Forest Are A' Wefe Away." '

"A few hours later came the telegram reporting that the brother had been shot down by some border warrior and over his lonely grave the men of his regiment had played the pathetic air whose mysterious echo seemed to have reached the laird."

Shakespeare's Definition of Poetry.

What a pity it is that Shakespeare ever used that phrase "fine frenzy!" It has become a fuddlesome factor in the framing of foolish fancies. It is to the honor of Shakespeare, however, that he came nearer to giving the world the true definition of poetry than has any other man, for he did explain what constitutes the true art of poetry making, and from this we are enabled to know what Shakespeare considered poetry. Curiously enough, it is in the very passage where Shakespeare uses that unfortunate phrase "fine frenzy." Let us quote:

The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven,
And as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name.

—Hudson Maxim's "Science of Poetry and Philosophy of Language."

Hard to Understand.

Supposing some one should spring this on you rapidly and ask you what it meant: "Mare-zeat-toats-deer-zeat-toats-lam-sleativy-lit-tle-kid-slea-tivy-too."

You would never think it was plain English, but it is. It is simply: "Mares eat oats; deers eat oats; lambs 'll eat ivy; little kids 'll eat ivy too."

You should say this over many times to yourself until you can roll it off very quickly, run the words together, and then when you try it on your friends they will have to confess that they can't understand it. They will feel quite foolish when you show them that it is common English and that it sounds odd only because the words are spoken fast and run in together. It is this running of the words in together which makes it hard for a foreigner to understand our language or us theirs.—Omaha World-Herald.

Mrs. Grundy.

The first mention of Mrs. Grundy is found in Morton's clever comedy "Speed the Plow." Farmer Ashfield, at table with his jug and pipe, is talking to his wife on her return from market.

"Well, dame, welcome whoam. What news does thee bring vrom market?"

"What news, husband? What I always told you—that Farmer Grundy's wheat brought 5 shillings a quarter more than ours did."

"All the better foor he!"

"Ah, the sun seems to shine on purpose for him."

"Come, come, missus, as thee has not the grace to thank God for prosperous times, dan't three grumble when they be unkindly a bit."

"And I assure you Dame Grundy's butter was quite the crack of the market."

"Be quiet, wool ye? Always ding dinging Dame Grundy into my ears: 'What will Mrs. Grundy say?' 'What will Mrs. Grundy think?' Canst thee be quiet? Let ur alone and behave thyself pratty!"

Thought He Was Smart.

Wife—Do you mean to insinuate that your judgment is superior to mine? Husband—Certainly not, my dear. Our choice of life partners proves it isn't.

SCORE DIE IN FIRE

Plant of Los Angeles Times Is Totally Destroyed.

ORGANIZED LABOR BLAMED

Charge Is Made That the Disaster Followed the Explosion of a Dynamite Bomb.

Los Angeles, Oct. 2.—A score of persons are believed to have perished in a fire which swept the building occupied by the Los Angeles Times.

The fire followed an explosion in the mechanical department of the Times and rapidly spread throughout the entire building. The building was soon a mass of flames and firemen say they believe many who attempted to reach the windows fell back into the blaze.

Immediately after the first explosion a sheet of flame seemed to envelope the entire building, sweeping upward through the four-story structure. Before an alarm could bring the fire apparatus a series of sharp detonations shook the neighborhood for blocks.

Employes who had just left the building when the explosion occurred say that gas had been leaking somewhere in the building all evening and that the smell of gas pervaded the whole structure.

This has led the police to believe that gas caused the explosion.

During the fire at the Times several surrounding buildings were threatened, but hard work by the firemen saved them. The Times plant is estimated to be worth over $500,000 and is a total loss.

Owing to the fact that the explosion did not occur until after the paper had been gotten out the death toll was much less than if it had happened a few hours earlier.

Times Was Nonunion Paper.

The Times building is located at First and Broadway, in the heart of the business section of the city, and is owned by General Harrison Gray Otis. It is one of the largest nonunion papers in the country and for years has been the zone of bitter warfare between General Otis and the friends of union labor.

The Times has for years been run as an "open shop." Recently union labor forces have been engaged in a life and death struggle in Los Angeles. As a result, and before there was the slightest notice that the disaster was anything other than a pure accident, enemies of union labor voiced the suggestion that the accident was due to the union labor trouble. Officials of the unions indignantly denied this and will probably start a searching investigation to prevent capital being made of the accident. They say that the investigation will prove that the disaster was due to carelessness and lack of safety device precautions.

Harry E. Andrews, managing editor of the Times, gave out the following statement:

"The Times building was destroyed by dynamite by the enemies of industrial freedom.

"The Times itself cannot be destroyed. It will soon be reissued from its auxiliary plant and will fight its battles to the last."

Later in the day, the police say, bombs were found at the home of General Otis in this city and at the suburban residence of F. J. Zeehandelser, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association.

Rewards aggregating $100,000 have been offered for the capture of the guilty parties.

TWENTY-NINE PERISH

Barge of the Battleship New Hampshire Swamped.

New York, Oct. 3.—There has been given out from the battleship New Hampshire a list of twenty-nine men who were supposed to have perished by the swamping of a barge, which was being towed to the vessel at anchor in the Hudson river.

Various versions of how the accident occurred were in circulation. The generally accepted one, however, was that the barge, heavily loaded with sailors and marines returning from shore leave, was towed into the heavy swells of a passing steamboat. Rising for a moment like a cork the barge then plunged into the trough between two waves, one of which broke over the side and swamped it.

GOVERNOR CARROLL FREED

Jury Acquits Iowa Executive of Charge of Libeling Cownie.

Des Moines, Sept. 30.—Governor Carroll is not guilty of the charge of criminally libeling John Cownie. This is the verdict that was returned in Judge Howe's court by the jury which tried the state's chief executive. The verdict was returned after comparatively brief deliberation, as it took some time to review all the evidence. The verdict was expected, as it was generally conceded that the state had failed to make a case long before the defense took up its part.

WHEN ABNER GOT MAD

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Miss Eunice Glasser was a "sorter" old maid, but it was not her fault. Abner Jackson, who was a "sorter" old bachelor, had been courting her for five years without actually popping the question. She lived with her widowed mother in the village, and he worked a little farm just outside.

Abner wasn't lazy. He was just a good natured poke of a man. He was going to get married some day, but there was no hurry about it. He always talked as if he intended to marry Eunice, but he didn't come down to details. He didn't ask her to name the day and arrange the bridal tour. Eunice liked Abner and bore with him, but she was getting rather tired of it when her Aunt Hannah came on a visit. Aunt Hannah saw Abner two or three times, understood his nature and then said to her niece:

"Look here, you've got a poke of a man hanging around after you, and it may be ten years more before he'll say anything about marriage. Are you going to put up with it or do something?"

"Why, auntie, what can I do?"

"Get mad at him and make him think he's going to lose you."

"He only laughs when I get mad."

"Then set in and criticise his feet, his nose, his eyebrows. Tell him that he's the homeliest man you ever saw."

"I don't think he'd mind it at all."

"Didn't you ever see him show any temper?"

"Not a bit. He was run over by a drove of hogs once and got up laughing. No, you can't make Abner mad. He's a poke, but an awfully good man."

"And are you going to keep right on for the next fifty years, are you?"

One afternoon three or four days later a vinegar barrel with one head out was left at the house by the grocer to be used as a rain barrel. The house stood on quite a hill, and there was a sharp slope down to the village street. About the hour Abner usually appeared Eunice was sent on an errand to the other side of the village, and when the "poke" arrived Aunt Hannah was the one to greet him. She took him to the corner of the house where the barrel stood and promptly began:

"See here, Mr. Jackson, you've been dawdling around here for years. What are you after?"

"Why—why"— he stammered as he leaned up against the house and could say no more.

"Oh, you can't tell! I knew you couldn't. You've come here almost every night in the week for months and years and squatted yourself down, and what for? Your talk can't interest anybody. The sight of you isn't inspiring. If I was Eunice I'd just as soon have a wooden man around. And yet you come and squat and squat. I ask you, sir, what you mean by such conduct?"

"I—I guess I'll go home," answered Abner, who was too astonished to see straight.

"And I guess you won't," said Aunt Hannah, "at least not until you have explained yourself. I've been looking at you. If I had a cow as homely as you are I'd knock her in the head with the ax. Hump shouldered, bowlegged and feet like an elephant, and yet you come here and squat around and take up a girl's time! Why, man, what can you think of yourself?"

"I'll never come again!" exclaimed Abner in a changed voice.

"That's good. That's what I wanted to hear you say. Go and squat somewhere else. Go and find the homeliest girl in the country to match you. The first time I saw you I knew you was a poke of a man and you hadn't grit enough to push a toad off its nest."

"Woman, be careful! If you aggravate me too much"—

"Aggravate an old poke! Why, man, it would take you three years to get mad, even if you started in tonight."

The next thing she knew she was being lifted off her feet in Abner's strong arms and deposited in the handy barrel. Before she could yelp twice the barrel was whirled on its side and given a kick to start it down the slope. It took an erratic course. It ran to the right a few feet and then shied to the left. It stopped for a moment at a gooseberry bush and then dodged and jumped clear over a crabapple tree. There were yelling and screaming from the inmate of the barrel, but Abner stood and watched the circus and shouted back:

"I'm a poke, am I? I'm a squatter, am I? I've got bowlegs and humped shoulders and feet like an elephant! Gol durn your hide, roll on!"

And the barrel rolled, and Aunt Hannah rolled, and neither of them stopped rolling till the barrel crashed through the fence and brought up against a shade tree in the street. No one was killed. No bones were broken. Aunt Hannah crept out and up to the house and was just finished with the last of the arnica when Miss Eunice came rushing in with radiant face to exclaim:

"I was coming back home—and I met Abner—and he was swearing—and he grabbed me by the arm—and he said he'd break my neck if I didn't go right to the preacher's and be married—and—and"—

"And you went?"

"Yes, and we were married. I had to be. Abner ain't a poke any more, but the awfulest, determinedest man you ever heard of. Why, auntie, he told me to tell you that you could go to thunder and be durned to you!"

DIX IS HEAD OF TICKET

Named for Governor by New York Democrats.

New York, Oct. 2.—The Democratic state convention nominated a state ticket headed by John A. Dix for governor and adopted a platform of the advanced progressive type. The balance of the ticket follows:

Lieutenant governor, Thomas F. Conway, Clinton county; secretary of state, Edward Lazansky, Kings county; controller, William Sohmer, New York; state treasurer, John J. Kennedy, Erie county; attorney general, Thomas R. Carmody, Yates county; state engineer and surveyor, John A. Bensel, New York; associate judge of the court of appeals, Frederick K. Collins, Chemung county.

DEATH ATTENDS RACES

Four Killed and Many Injured in Auto Contests.

New York, Oct. 1.—Four killed and a score injured, half a dozen of them mortally, is the record of today's Vanderbilt cup race.

Although Harry F. Grant repeated his last year's performance of winning the race and achieved a new record not a cheer burst from the packed grand stand as his winning car thundered over the line. The cumulated reports of deaths and injuries had not only hushed the thousands in the stands, but the multitudes along the course as well. Throughout the last two hours of the race the air had rung with the ambulance gongs and great crowds had witnessed the fatal collisions and smashups.

Two mechanicians were slain in the smashups. Harry Stone, driver of the Columbus No. 12 machine, may die of his injuries and Louis Chevrolet had his arm and shoulder broken when his racer cut a touring car in half and injured three women.

Ferdinand D'Zubia, sales manager of the Pope-Hartford Automobile company, was killed when his auto ran into a telegraph pole while on the way to the races and the fourth fatality occurred when a spectator got on the track and was run down by a racer.

TAFT SPEAKS AT NEW YORK

Makes Public His Definition of "Republican Progressiveness."

New York, Oct. 1.—President Taft tonight made public his definition of "Republican progressiveness" and gave due notice of his friendly feeling toward that wing of the party.

The occasion was his first political address of the congressional campaign, delivered at the banquet of the National League of Republican Clubs. A "progressive Republican," according to the view of the chief executive, is "one who recognizes existing and concrete evils and who is in favor of practical and definite steps to eradicate them."

There was no "reading out" of insurgents in the president's speech. Instead, he sought to leave the impression that the work in congress had been accomplished by a united party.

McAlester, Okla., Sept. 30.—The trial of Governor C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma in the Muskogee town site cases came to a sudden end when the government announced that, under the restrictions laid down by the court, it would be unable to make out a case against Haskell or of any of his co defendants.

Gamblers Leaving Reno.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 4.—Train No. 23 bound for San Francisco, left here packed to the doors with gamblers. It is said that nearly all of the gamblers who were financially able to have left Reno. None wished to remain for the police cleanup that will follow the closing of the gambling houses.

THE SIREN

By CORA HATHORN SYKES

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Each dwelling should be a thing of itself, not containing any one except the family whose home it is. Many a wife and husband have been separated, innocent children made to suffer and sometimes murder done because of a man or a woman going to live with a family of which they were not a part.

The Browns were a humdrum couple, content with each other and their home. When it was decided to have a governess for their children Miss Olive Markam was selected for the purpose. Miss Markam was pretty, and Mrs. Brown should have hesitated before taking her into the sheepfold. Not that the wolf was likely to harm her lambs, but there was a sheep in the family who, though not very tender, was liable to fall a prey to the newcomer. Neither Mrs. Brown nor her husband gave the entrance of Miss Markam into the family a thought so far as danger was concerned. Neither had ever known a pang of jealousy. Mr. Brown was a pudgy, baldheaded man of forty-two; Mrs. Brown was a tall, angular woman but a year his junior. Neither supposed that the other could attract any one else even if so inclined. The governess was but twenty and replied to Mr. Brown's remarks with "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," as a person of an entirely different generation. And yet there was danger in her presence at the Browns'.

Mr. Brown had his own sleeping room, where he might get a quiet night's rest without being disturbed by the rest of the family. One night he wakened from a bad dream and could not go to sleep again. After vainly endeavoring for an hour or more to do so he got up, put on a dressing gown and went downstairs to get a biscuit and a glass of wine, hoping that by thus drawing the blood to his stomach he might return to slumber. He took great care to move softly that he might not awaken any of the family and on reaching the dining room refrained even from striking a light. He found what he wanted in the sideboard and, having partaken of it, was about to return to his room when he felt his hand clasped by a softer one.

Mr. Brown knew Mrs. Brown's hand very well. It was not soft; it was not even round. On the contrary, it was hard and bony. A current shot quickly up his arm and entered—his heart? no, his self esteem, exciting that natural gratification a man who has passed middle life feels in attracting a young woman. The conviction that the governess had fallen in love with him popped into Mr. Brown's head and created there a disturbance at once delightful and terrifying. On the one hand was his home, his wife, his children; on the other, the siren. If he listened to the one the wreck of the others was sure to follow. But had he the power to resist? Mr. Brown felt in his bones that he had not.

All this flashed through Mr. Brown's mind in the two or three seconds that he held the hand in his. Then it was withdrawn, and without sound or farewell the owner passed. With a wildly beating heart he stood, listened, hoped for further manifestation, feared he would receive it, groped for it with outstretched hands, was disappointed, comforted, troubled, pleased and thrilled all at the same time. At last, being convinced that the owner of the hand had gone, he returned to his room.

Mr. Brown lay awake till daylight, a prey to different emotions, then went to sleep and dreamed that he and the governess were floating down a river whose banks were covered with luxuriant foliage and overhung with flowers. She was the same woman, but transfigured to one of transcendent beauty. He bent over the side of the boat and saw his own face reflected in the water. To his surprise, his hair had come back on his head with no gray streaks in it, and his eye had regained the fire of youth.

Then he took her hand in his—the same hand he had held before. There was the same pleasurable thrill without the dread of consequences. The wife of his bosom, so far as his dream was concerned, had no existence; his children were not yet born. He drifted in paradise.

He was awakened by a shake and the words: "Elisha, are you going to sleep all day? Get up!"

It was Mrs. Brown, in dishabille and forming a dreadful contrast with the companion of his dream. Mr. Brown lay a few moments trying to get used to the returned reality, then slowly got out of bed, forced himself into his clothes and went down into the dining room. The family were at breakfast. His oldest daughter, aged fourteen, looked at him mischievously.

"How did you like the ghost, papa?" she asked, her eyes dancing with fun.

"W-h-a-t ghost?"

But he knew before she told him that she had got up in the night for a glass of water, heard him leave his room, followed him and, with better eyes than his, clasped his hand.

"My dear," said Mr. Brown to his wife after breakfast and before going downtown, "I've been thinking that the children will get on better going to school than taught by a governess."

"Perhaps you're right, pa. Anyway, we can't keep Miss Markam after the holidays. She's going to be married."

"Married!"

"Yes, to a very nice looking young fellow, a year older than she. Same difference as between us, dear."

DIETZ CHILDREN SHOT

Sheriff and Posse Wound Son and Daughter of Fugitive.

Couderey, Wis., Oct. 1.—Clarence, Leslie and Myra Dietz, oldest boys and girl, all grown up children, of John F. Dietz, the Cameron dam defender, were ambushed by Sheriff Mike Madden and his posse near Winter. Clarence and Myra were wounded. They were coming into Winter, as expected, when the sheriff and posse intercepted them and called on them to halt. They kept on going. Madden and his posse opened fire. Clarence was shot through the shoulder, Myra through the back and Leslie escaped, returning to his home.

Myra is said to be fatally hurt, but Clarence was not seriously injured. Myra and Clarence were taken to Winter by the sheriff and their wounds dressed.

Fearing an attack from John Dietz Winter has been placed under martial law.

TWENTY-NINE MEN MISSING

All of Them Are Supposed to Have Perished.

BARGE SWAMPS IN RIVER

Sailors From the Battleship New Hampshire Are Believed to Have Been Drowned in the Hudson River. Diligent Search for Bodies Proves Fruitless.

New York, Oct. 3.—There has been given out from the battleship New Hampshire a list of twenty-nine men who were supposed to have perished by the swamping of a barge, which was being towed to the vessel at anchor in the Hudson river.

Captain Thomas S. Rodgers, in command of the New Hampshire, gave out the list with this brief introduction:

The following is the list of the men missing from the liberty party, who are thought to have been in the boat that swamped:"

J. R. Boyland, ship's cook, fourth class, Brooklyn; J. F. Erhart, gunner's mate, third class, New York; J. Turner, water tender, Brooklyn; P. White, seaman, New York; G. Amatauzio, seaman, Avondale, Pa.; E. F. Blummgren, seaman, Worcester, Mass.; J. A. Benner, coxswain, Green Creek, N. J.; H. S. Bailey, ship's cook, third class, Ansonia, Conn.; P. F. G. Bakeman, fireman, first class, Grosse Point, Mich.; T. Bonfall, ordinary seaman, Philadelphia; G. Brown, gunner's mate, first class, Boston; H. Combs, gunner's mate, second class, Springfield, O.; W. Dorr, seaman, Philadelphia; G. A. Davis, ordinary seaman, Lubeck, Me.; P. J. Donohue, marine private, Temerick, Ireland; J. Green, oiler, Cleveland; N. S. Hey, ordinary seaman, Woonsocket, R. I.; M. Johnson, fireman, first class, Boston; R. Karl, painter, third class, Cleveland; J. Knowe, marine private, no residence, no next of kin; A. Mampley, coal passer, Richmond, Va.; J. F. Paspleski, ordinary seaman, Erie, Pa.; W. A. Richardson, electrician, Philadelphia; E. W. Sieber, ordinary seaman, Chicago; M. T. Seals, electrician, first class, Columbus, Ga.; E. J. Turner, seaman, East Liverpool, O.; T. J. Uehling, ordinary seaman, Philadelphia; R. J. Wenner, fireman, first class, Fullerton, Pa.; N. Bligh, coal passer, Roxbury, Mass.

"It is not certain," comments Captain Rodgers, "that these men were lost, as two of them originally on the list returned."

All day police boats dotted the cove in the river above West One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, their crews grappling for bodies. But their efforts were without success; not one body was recovered. Old river men said they were not surprised, for when the accident occurred they declared the tide was running up stream like a millrace, with a brisk wind out of the southwest pushing it along at even a faster clip. This would take the bodies far beyond the scene of the disaster.

Crowds on Water Front.

Along the water front in the vicinity of the accident, crowds gathered seeking information. Many women were among them, their eyes red from weeping. They were looking for news of relatives or friends.

On board the flagship Louisiana, Rear Admiral Vreeland convened a court of inquiry to determine the exact cause of the accident and place the responsibility. A number of the men who were on board the ill-fated boat told their stories and a report of the findings of the court when completed will be forwarded to the navy department.

Various versions of how the accident occurred were in circulation. The generally accepted one, however, was that the barge, heavily loaded with sailors and marines returning from shore leave, was towed into the heavy swells of a passing steamboat. Rising for a moment like a cork the barge then plunged into the trough between two waves, one of which broke over the side and swamped it.

Instantly the choppy water became dotted with struggling, shouting men intermingled with floating packages, suit cases and personal belongings that the men were taking back to the ship. The whistle of the little steam launch that was towing the barge rent the air with sharp, staccato calls for assistance.

Few boats were in the vicinity, however, for the river was running high in white caps, kicked up by the strong wind. What few there were put quickly across the 200 yards that separated the distressed craft and the shore. Many of the sailors and marines were pulled aboard these boats; others held tightly to the swamped barge. Still others, unequal to the battle with the heavy waves and tide, floated up stream and disappeared.

Unknown Man Asphyxiated.

St. Paul, Oct. 3.—An unidentified man was found dead in his room at Mrs. M. N. Anderson's boarding house. A defective gas jet, which the dead man apparently turned too far when extinguishing the light, allowed gas to escape into the room, causing death.

Old Enough to Be Good.

He was a liquid eyed Spaniard en tour through Italy. She was a New England maiden lady doing Florence. They met first at the pension table d'hote and next in the Uffizi gallery.

"The madonna of which you spoke," said the liquid eyed Spaniard, "is across the hall and down to the right two doors. It hangs in gallery 3."

"According to my Baedeker," protested the New England maiden lady, "it hangs in gallery 5."

"Pardon. It is impossible," protested the Spaniard. "It stands here in my Baedeker that it is to be found in gallery 3"

"Perhaps," said the New England maiden, "your book is out of date. But it is easy to assure ourselves who is right. Let us go to gallery 3 or to gallery 5 and see."

"Madame," said the Spaniard, with some emotion, "it is not necessary to exert ourselves. This book, madame, is perfectly reliable. My grandfather himself assured me so. It is the very volume that he used when he himself toured Italy at my age."—Detroit Free Press.

A Breach of Good Form.

There is a little east end girl, still under six, who reaches the limit in the matter of sensitiveness. Likewise she has her points in respect to dead gameness. She was taken about a week ago to spend a few days with her aunt. The little miss played around in front of her aunt's place for awhile. Then her aunt let a playful young terrier into the yard, saying to the child:

"This is your little four footed cousin."

Five minutes later the aunt returned to the front yard to call the kid into the house, but she wasn't anywhere to be seen. The fox terrier was playing alone. There was a scrambling hunt for the child and all kinds of alarm, but the little girl didn't turn up. The aunt hustled into town. The little girl was home with her mother.

She had walked right to the car for town as soon as the fox terrier pup was presented to her.

"Why didn't you stay at aunty's?" her mother asked her in surprise.

"She introduced me to a dog!" replied the haughty young person.—Cincinnati Post.

Are You A Booster?

"The Soul of Golf."

One who knew the soul of golf saw it and described it. It was a tricky green, with a drop of twenty feet behind it. To have overrun it would have been fatal. There was a stiff head wind. The player would not risk running up. He cut well in under the ball to get all the back spin he could. He pitched the ball well up against the wind, which caught it and, on account of the spin, threw it up and up until it soared almost over the hole, then it dropped like a shot bird about a yard from the hole, and the back spin gripped the turf and held the ball within a foot of where it fell. It was obvious to one man that it was a crude shot. It was equally obvious to another, who knew the inner secrets of the game, that it was a brilliantly conceived and beautifully executed stroke. One man saw nothing of the soul of the stroke. He got the husk and the other took the kernel.—P. B. Valle in North American Review.

An Unusual Opportunity.

The young clergyman had been urged by his bishop to raise in his small parish as large a sum as possible to swell the fund for the people of a faroff isle. The rector had put the need before his people as graphically as he was able, but he was not gifted with eloquence and felt that his appeal had not struck home to the hearts of his listeners. He made a last attempt to rouse their enthusiasm for the worthy cause.

"Think of them, so far away," he said earnestly. "Think of 20,000 persons living without the privileges of Christian burial, while any of you here in this little town may have the advantages of four handsome cemeteries, and give of your abundance, my brethren, to those who have nothing."—Youth's Companion.

Correct.

Reassured the Judge.

A wife, joining her husband in a conveyance of real estate, was asked by the judge, who examined her in private, according to the act of the assembly, whether she acted without compulsion on the part of her husband. She stuck her arms akimbo and replied: "He compel me! No, nor twenty like him!"—Argonaut.

Feeling a Part

By REGINALD D. HAVEN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

"I never did but one good act in my life," said the old counterfeiter. "There wasn't much credit in it to me, but it was productive of a lot of happiness to others. It occurred many years ago, and as I am now a very old man and have a very long, troubled life to look back upon, including several terms in the penitentiary, it stands out from the rest of my acts in odd contrast.

"It was in the summer of 1859 that several of us got together in a northern city and manufactured a number of twenty dollar counterfeit bills. As soon as we had finished the job we destroyed the outfit, divided the bills and started for different parts of the country to put them out on the public, my section being the south. Boarding one of the crack steamers of that day, I started for New Orleans. In order the better to impose on people I dressed myself in ministerial black and wore a white cravat. I had been an actor and could personate a clergyman, or any one else, for that matter, to perfection.

"The main cabin of the steamers running on the Mississippi river in those days, when the table was not set for meals, was occupied principally for gambling. Poker, seven-up, euchre and other games were played, though the parties playing were not large and often two persons only occupied a table. I was sitting on the guards one day when a negro came out of the cabin, wringing his hands.

"'What's the matter, boy?' I asked.

"'Mars' done gone lose me to a niggah trader Ma wife an' pickaninnies won't nebber see me no mo'.'

"I found that his master, a planter, had taken him to Cairo as his body servant, was returning, had lost all the money he had with him at cards, staked his darky and lost him too. I went into the cabin, where the planter and the trader were settling up, the planter being at the moment occupied in making out a bill of sale for the slave.

"'I beg your pardon, sir,' I said to the planter. 'On account of my vocation I am opposed, of course, to gambling in any form, but I dislike exceedingly the separation of families I understand that you have lost your negro. I would be pleased to lend you the money to win him back.'

"The gentleman accepted the offer. I brought out some new, crisp bills, just from the press, and the game started anew. It was euchre. I soon saw that the gambler could go on winning from the trader all day if he liked, for the former was perpetrating one of the commonest tricks on him—that is, 'turning jack.' In other words when he dealt he would always turn up a knave for himself. Seeing this and other cheating, I interfered. I told him that I had learned the game before becoming a clergyman and insisted on taking the planter's place Since I was backing the latter he was obliged to yield to me in the matter, which he did with a bad grace.

"I had not only learned the game 'before becoming a clergyman,' but all the tricks that went with it and many other games. I walked into that card sharper in a way that opened his eyes. The negro at stake had followed me into the cabin and was standing watching the game with bulging eyes. It was hard for me to keep a straight face, playing as I was, a supposed minister of the gospel, with counterfeit money and doing as neat bits of thimblerigging as had ever been practiced on that palatial steamboat. The negro trader was not a professional card sharper, though he didn't hesitate to cheat the planter, and never dreamed that the somber man before him in a spotless white necktie was placing the cards exactly where he wanted them.

"Of course I soon won the darky for his master. Then I arose from the table, delivered a homily on the sin of gambling and returned to the guards I was followed by the planter, who said to me:

"'Pe'mit me, suh, to say to yo' that you're the first man of the cloth that has eveh obtained my unbounded respect, suh. Yo' have saved my boy, suh, from being separated from his wife and children, an act fo' which I would have been to blame. I have sufficient influence, suh, to control a call to the First Baptist church of ——, Mississippi. If yo' will accept it it shall be yo's with a fat salary.'

"I thanked the gentleman for his offer, but declined it. When we reached his landing he insisted so heartily upon my visiting him at his plantation that I consented.

"I was made welcome by his family, and the wife and children of the negro I had saved from the trader came to the house with tears in their eyes to thank me. I was a good looking young fellow in those days and could see that I made an impression on one of the planter's daughters. I had everything at my disposal to perpetrate any rascality I might choose. I could get the planter's indorsement, which would enable me to dispose of my 'green goods,' and I believed I could win his daughter.

"I did neither. For a brief season I enjoyed the sensation of being a fine fellow. During that time I permitted myself to feel the part just as an actor will feel the character he is personating. Then when it was over I departed, resisting with difficulty the reproachful look of the girl who favored me, and as soon as I was on another boat was again a dog of a counterfeiter."

ROOSEVELT VICTOR

Chosen Chairman of New York Republican Convention.

OLD GUARD BADLY ROUTED

Bitter and Acrimonious Speech Precedes the Taking of the Vote on Chairman.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt rode on the top wave of victory, defeating Vice President Sherman for temporary chairman of the Republican state convention and bowling over the old guard in the first engagement of a series of conflicts that are to come.

Colonel Roosevelt was in his element. After he had named the members of the three important committees and the convention had adjourned for the day the colonel turned to the newspaper men and remarked:

"You may recall that I said frazzled. You may quote me on that."

At Troy the former president said he would beat his opponents to a frazzle. There were 1,012 votes cast in the convention, of which Colonel Roosevelt received 567 and Vice President Sherman received 445.

In his speech as temporary chairman Colonel Roosevelt spoke feelingly of what President Taft had accomplished in his administration, saying that the laws passed reflect high credit upon all who succeeded in putting them in their present shape.

Colonel Roosevelt bitterly assailed the "bosses," declaring that the difference between a boss and a leader is that the leader leads and the boss drives.

Much Feeling Expressed.

It was a day of bitter and acrimonious speech. With the opening of the convention State Chairman Woodruff defined the position of the old guard and announced that Vice President Sherman had been selected for temporary chairman by the state committee. And then the real fight was on.

Colonel Abraham Gruber of New York city had been selected to fire the verbal hot shot for the old guard, and his speech attacking the former president was often broken and drowned by hisses and jeers.

The victory of Colonel Roosevelt in the first counting of noses did not appear to dishearten the members of the old guard, for they continued their fight on the convention floor when the progressives submitted resolutions whereby the committees should be made by representatives from each congressional district, the members to be named by the temporary chairman.

Seeing that this gave absolute power to Colonel Roosevelt, Speaker Wadsworth of the assembly strongly opposed the resolutions. He took the position that each congressional district should name its own member, as had been done in previous Republican committees for many years. The progressives, however, were in the ascendancy and the resolutions as drafted by friends of Mr. Roosevelt were carried.

STIMSON HEADS THE TICKET

Named for Governor by New York Republicans.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The Republican state convention adjourned after nominating a ticket dictated by Theodore Roosevelt and his so called progressive adherents and adopting a platform with a direct nominations plank drawn by the progressives. The old guard met defeat utterly.

Henry L. Stimson was nominated for governor. He drew public attention as the prosecutor of the sugar trust.

Representative William S. Bennet made a hard fight and received only 242 votes, against 684 for Mr. Stimson.

Following the first rout of the organization came Colonel Roosevelt's dramatic and successful battle for the adoption of the platform of the progressives and his final nomination of Mr. Stimson.

The platform, as adopted, endorses the administrations of President Taft and Governor Hughes; declares that the Payne tariff law has been a success and refers with approval to the work of the last congress. It pledges the continuance of the state graft inquiry "until all wrongdoing capable of exposure shall be brought to light."

The plank relating to direct primaries is very brief, but admits of no misconstruction. "We promise legislation which will enact these principles into law," is the pledge.

At the close of the convention James S. Wadsworth, Jr., speaker of the assembly, announced his withdrawal from the legislature, due to his personal views as to the length of time during which a member of the assembly should be a candidate for speaker, and, if successful, hold that important and difficult office. He has been speaker five years.

Mr. Wadsworth would not say that his retirement was due to the victory of the progressives in the convention.

Colonel Roosevelt in a brief statement denied the existence of any alliance with W. R. Hearst of having influenced the selection of the ticket.

Made Her Pay Well.

A certain queen of Hanover once upon a time when traveling stopped at an inn called the Golden Goose. She remained two days to rest herself and retinue and receive such entertainment as was needed and for the same was charged 300 thalers. On her departure the landlord besought her with obsequious deference to favor him with her patronage on her return.

"If you desire that, my dear man," replied her majesty, "you must not again take me for your sign."

Mr. Ballinger is truly a consistent "conservationist." He doesn't overlook anything, even to the beer business. On Thursday last he revoked the order of the Indian department, by which all saloons in the Indian country were to be closed on Oct. 15, and the brewers are naturally jubilant over their victory. Governor Eberhart and Secretary Ballinger are again together in perfect harmony in the great conservation chorus. Verily, he who puts two saloons where one flourished is a benefactor of the brewers.

THE INDUSTRIAL CONTEST

BIG CROWD AND MANY PRIZES.

The Industrial contest Monday created an unusual amount of interest among the people, as was evidenced by the excellence of the exhibit.

The high quality of the exhibit elicited praise from all. All who were present declared it to be one of the best exhibits they had seen.

The first prizes exhibits has been boxed up and sent to Minneapolis, it will undoubtedly carry of a large share of the prizes.

Supt. Anderson made a very able address, he dwelt particularly on the needs of industral education and the necessity for the town and country to pull together, he was well pleased with the exhibits.

Supt. Koos of Red Lake Falls made some very appropriate remarks in reference to value of industrial contest.

There was in all 12 school district represented, 200 people present, 153 entries, 83 prizes awarded, 57 exhibits were recognized by prizes of 10 c each $40. paid for prizes as followed: 1st prize 50c; 2nd prize 25c; 3d prize 25c; 4th prize recognized by a 10c prize.

School Notes.

Are'nt you sorry you missed the contest last Monday? It certainly was a success.

The following pupils were neither tardy nor absent during the first month of school

Marian Finrow, Bertha Medchill, Agnes Rothsteen, Mabel Johnson, Ella Gullingsrud' Annie Pederson, Elida Olson, Olga Olson, Roy Finrow, Emma Olson, Alfred Olson, Rolph Olson, Karla Alrick.

Miss Anderson and Miss Halseth left for their respective homes at St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls on Friday evening. Miss Anderson expects to attend the Industsial Contest at St. Hilaire on Saturday.

You should have seen the bright faces and happy smiles when the prizes were distributed on Thursday afternoon. The pupils of the Plummer School took 13 first 16 second and 23 third & fourth prizes.

Robert Evans Encounter.

Robert Evans was a sturdy boy of sixteen, who had been brought up in the wild and unsettled part of Wyoming. He was used to hard work and his muscles were as firm as steel. He was a boy of courage too, and had often wished to test his bravery by some adventure with Indians or wild beasts.

One day when he was not looking for it his chance came. It happened one day as he was out looking for a lost calf, as he was walking along he came to a sharp turn around a small bluff. Just as he came in the bend he met a large bear. He was so close to the bear that it was no use running. Mr Bruin walked up and thought that he would have a bite to eat, but he was mistaken.

The bear stood up on his hind feet and was just going for him when Robert dived down and caught old Bruin by the hind legs and jerked him over A small tree stood close by and it took the bear a little while to get straightened up and by that time Robert was measuring his lenght up the tree. The tree was too small for the bear to get his claws fastened so he sat waiting for Robert to come down that he might get even with him, but Robert was not farther away from home than his older brother had heard him shout. He came with the old musket and finished old Bruin.

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy.

Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Position pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement.

The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision R. R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincindati, O., Portland, Ore, or Memphis, Tenn.

The Making of a Business Man.

So many panes of glass in o'd Mr. Viner's greenhouse had been broken that he had at last offered a reward of 10 shillings to any one who should give information as to the identity of the latest offender. The bait soon drew. A youngster called on Mr. Viner and informed him that a lad named Archie Thompson was a guilty party. He received his reward, went away rejoicing, and the o'd gentleman forthwith wrote to the local schoolmaster demanding the production of the said Archie Thompson to make good the damage he had done to his windows.

Next day the informer called again. "The schoolmaster sent me," he said briskly. "I've seen a glazier, and he'll put your glass right for 3 shillings. Here it is, and"—

"Not so fast, my lad," said Mr. Viner. "Have you come on behalf of Archie Thompson?"

"Well, yes, sir, in a way," said the boy. "Fact is," he continued confidentially, "I'm him!"—London Answers.

The Historic City of Delhi.

Delhi is the most historic city in all India. It may not be the oldest, although it lays claim to a respectable middle age, dating from 1000 B. C. At that time the master of Delhi called himself emperor of all the world, and emperors, at least of India, have ruled there almost ever since. Old Delhi, without the walls, is a city of picturesque ruins. Imperial Delhi, the modern city, was created by Shah Jehan, a contemporary of Queen Elizabeth. From the date of the first Mohammedan incursion, A. D. 715, perpetual warfare raged round Delhi until at length she yielded to the irresistible power of the Moguls. The city was alternately Mohammedan and Hindu during a great many years and finally, in 1803, was made British by General Lake. Delhi has the finest and largest mosque in India. It took 5,000 men six years to build it. The noble tomb of the Emperor Humayan marks the change of creed which followed the Moslem invasion, while the observatory of Jai Singh and the deserted hall of the seventy columns recall the short triumph of Brahmanism.

She Couldn't Fool Him.

"You have a splendid figure," said the tailor. "I shall have no trouble in giving you an excellent fit."

Feeling fairly well satisfied, the man went to a shoe store.

"Your feet are splendidly shaped and rather small for a man of your size, too," said the clerk. "These shoes are just what you ought to have."

He took them and bought a hat at the hatter's, where he was told that he had such a finely shaped head and such splendid features that the hat which he tried on first was just what he needed to make him look his best.

Then he passed into a large department store and, finding the glove counter, sat down where a pretty young woman was waiting to serve him.

"Just place your elbow on the counter, please," she said. "What a finely shaped hand you have! Let me"—

"Wait!" he commanded. "By George, you can't put that over on me! I used to be the catcher on a baseball team."—Buffalo News.

Some men think they are smart when they are able to show their lack of brains.

The noble work of the fire rescue is certainly commendable. We do like to see people come to the front in such times of dire need.

Politics are pretty well forgotten in Northern Minnesota since the fire ravages are demanding the immediate attention of everybody.

Hundreds of heroic deeds, well worthy of a Carnegie Medal, were no doubt performed at Spooner and Beaudette but neither the heroes nor heroines or the ones for whom the heroic deeds were performed remain to give an account of the gallantry.

Gentlemen:

Being convinced that the proposition to divide Red Lake Co. and to create the new County of Pennington will carry at the coming General Election to be held on the 8th day of November, 1910. I have determined not to stand as a candidate for re-election [illegible] the office of county attorney o[illegible] County. For under no circ[illegible] would I care to remove from the City of Thief River Falls in order to serve as county attorney in case I should be re-elected and division should carry. Thanking you for the support already given me and for the hearty assurances of your support I have received. I am

A New Order Issued.

In a letter to the commissioner of Indian affairs Secretary of the Interior R. A. Ballinger outlined what would be the policy of the interior department in the future relating to the law prohibiting the introduction of liquor into the Indian country of Northern Minnesota. Enforcement of the law without discrimination as to persons or territory is to be the rigid rule, according to Secretary Ballinger's decision, and a recent order from the Indian office, which set aside certain districts in the Indian territory as "wet" or "dry" sections, has been vacated.

Since the order was issued which provided in certain sections of the Indian territory the traffic in liquor would not be interfered with by the federal authorities, there developed protests from cities in the territory, principally Moorhead and Cass Lake, claiming that the order was discriminatory. Several delegations of officials from Minnesota have been in Washington to discuss the matter with Secretary Ballinger and, after carefully investigating the situation, Mr. Ballinger determined that there should be no so called "liquor" zones.

Referring to the federal regulations regarding the liquor traffic with Indians, Secretary Ballinger said in his letter:

"In the administration of these statutes the department cannot countenance discriminations or anything that savors of arbitrary, capricious or vexatious proceedings. The officers in the field are intrusted with a police duty to protect the Indians under their supervision from the introduction of liquor as contemplated by the statute. You will therefore instruct your officers to secure convictions for violations of these statutes where the evidence is available, and proceed throughout the territory involved to enforce the law without discrimination as to persons or territory."

Exactly what effect this will have on the liquor business in the Indian territory is not yet known.

While he declares the law operative over the entire area he authorizes the Indian Department [illegible] to make special efforts at any point they may deem advisable tho they are to keep watch of the entire district.

Commissioner Valentine has as yet not expressed himself as to whether he will drop the matter of suspression of Liquor Sales in the erstwhile "dry zone" or if he will consider it his duty to not only suppress the sales in those districts but also in all the rest of the "Indian Country".

It seems strange indeed that when the head of a Governmental Department makes a ruling he should make it in such form as to leave it in the hands of his subordinates to decide for themselves what the ruling means.

"RAILROAD ERRAND BOY"

Governor Eberhart So Characterized by Writer in La Follette's Weekly.

WORKED FOR THE INTERESTS

Ray Stanard Baker Takes a Fall Out of Him for Trying to Pack the Conservation Congress.

Governor Eberhart is now calling himself a "Progressive." He has forgotten his interview in Washington last spring in which he assured President Taft that the people of Minnesota were beginning to like the Payne-Aldrich tariff; he has forgotten that during that same visit he took particular pains to get Secretary Ballinger to address his Conservation meeting of March last. He has forgotten that he then gave assurances that there was "no insurgency in Minnesota." He has so completely forgotten that he went down to Beverly to invite Mr. Taft to speak at his September Conservation meeting, that he couldn't remember his name in his keynote speech. He has forgotten that during the primary election he did everything possible in the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Eighth districts to nominate "Standpat" candidates to congress and to embarrass and defeat Progressives. in fact he is playing that old, old game of "running with the hare and hunting with the hounds."

To show how Mr. Eberhart's tactics are regarded outside the state, we reproduce the article from Senator La Follette's publication, together with the information that it received editorial endorsement from the senator:

"The Conservation Congress to be held in St. Paul beginning Sept. 5 has suddenly become charged with large meanings. Originally designed to consider the somewhat limited problem of the public land policies of the nation, it now promises to be the forum for a titanic struggle between the supporters of the people's rights on the one hand—the Progressives or Insurgents—and the defenders of special interests—the Standpatters—on the other hand. With most of the notable political leaders of the country in attendance, the Congress cannot fail to have a profound political significance.

"No sooner had the Congress been announced for St. Paul than the Interests began to move upon it—either to destroy it utterly or to dominate it. As customary in such cases, a local board of management was appointed to make the necessary local arrangements, including the choice of an auditorium and the raising of money for the immediate expenses. In no case formerly has a local board ever had anything to do with the arrangement of the program, the appointment of speakers or officers, or with matters of publicity. But no sooner had this particular board been appointed, with Governor Eberhart of Minnesota at its head, than it began to move secretly but with determination toward the control of the Congress itself.

"In order to understand the reasons for this particular action, certain underlying causes must be made plain. For years the Republican party machine in Minnesota has been the creature of the Great Northern Railroad Company. For a time its reign was threatened and it has had to accept a man like Senator Clapp in the United States Senate, but its hand upon the state government in Minnesota ever since Governor Johnson's death has been very heavy indeed. The real governor of Minnesota is not Eberhart, but Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad. Eberhart, now nominated to succeed himself as the Standpat candidate for governor, is really nothing more than a railroad errand boy.

Interests Against Conservation.

"Now, the railroad interests of the Northwest, and Louis W. Hill in particular, are against conservation, against people's government, against the Progressive group of leaders. So Eberhart's committee began to interfere at once with the plans of the Conservation Congress. They objected to certain speakers, notably Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, and they interfered so actively that Mr. Pinchot and his associates threatened to remove the Congress to Kansas City. This the Interests did not want; they wanted it in St. Paul where they had greater powers of control than they would have in Missouri. So they quieted down, but they did not for a moment stop their underground work

"As soon as the presence of the Congress in St. Paul was assured, they began again to work for a change of the program. It was found that the governor was in constant communication with President Hill, and that every effort was being made to change the Congress from a conservation meeting into an anti-conservation meeting. By pressure exerted in high places they succeeded in getting the names of Senators Cummins and Clapp removed from the program, and of adding the names of a number of Western governors known to be hostile to the national conservation of our resources. They have refused to give reduced railroad fares to delegates, knowing that this will tend to cut down the attendance of delegates from the East.

"Exercising, also, his great influence upon politics in the Far West, where his railroad runs, President Hill has been most active in his efforts. A conference of Western governors called together at Salt Lake City will plan a definite campaign and appear in the Congress with a full quota of delegates. The policy which will probably be adopted will be the demand, not national, but state control of public lands—which would utterly defeat the conservation movement. The old selfish theory of states' rights is to be injected into this question as it was injected into the political discussions previous to the Civil war for the defense of the privileged class of slaveholders.

"As it now stands the program of the congress is divided into two parts. The anti-conservationists will be given the first chance: the Western governors will speak. After that the national conservationists will appear: Roosevelt, Pinchot, Garfield, several insurgent senators and many others." —La Follette's, Sept. 3.

A TRULY EBERHART PLATFORM.

In his kenynote speech at Mankato Governor Eberhart said:

"I stand squarely upon the platform adopted by the Republican party of this state. This platform is clear, definite, comprehensive and distinctly progressive."

It is just the kind of a platform upon which one would naturally expect Governor Eberhart to "stand squarely." It is shifty, evasive, deceptive and misleading. Of course he stands squarely upon it. Just as corroborative evidence that we have rightly described Mr. Eberhart's platform, we append hereto an extract from the St. Paul Dispatch of June 22, the day after the platform was adopted. It says:

"It is a platform notable for what it skipped or straddled. It urges no advanced theories; it expresses no deep conviction. It occupies a serene and indifferent middle ground and is content. In these times of freedom of opinion and courage of conviction it is singularly lacking in both. To call it a fair statement of Republican sentiment in Minnesota on the most urgent question of the day—the emancipation of the party from influences that threaten its ruin—is simply absurd. The people of this state have convictions on this matter to which it was the business of the convention to give expression."

You have read Governor Eberhart's "keynote" speech, delivered at Mankato the other day, and note that he says that he is "making report of his stewardship to the people." We hope that you read that speech carefully; that you analyzed it, and noted particularly what he claims as his own performances as chief executive during the time he has occupied the executive chair made vacant by the death of Governor Johnson. He calls attention to the convention which nominated him, and says of it: "It was absolutely free from domination by any clique, faction, interest or corporation, free to express the will of the people in the selection of candidates and the adoption of a platform."

In this connection we would call your attention to the fact that this free convention voted down the following resolution:

"The Republican party was organized to give the nation a great principle. It has ever since been a party of freedom and the 'square deal.' The Republican party recognizes that there is a strong and growing sentiment in Minnesota favoring a restriction of the influence of the liquor interests in the legislation of this state. This sentiment has been crystallized in a statewide movement in favor of county option. We, therefore, pledge this party to a full, fair and free consideration of any measures whose purpose is the adoption of county option legislation, and to keep the control of the affairs of this great commonwealth where they of right belong—in the hands of the whole people."

Just read that resolution over again carefully and find out just how little it asks of this free and untrammeled convention, this convention undictated to by any adverse interests. It asks only for "full, fair and free consideration of any measures whose purpose is the adoption of county option legislation." It doesn't ask that the Republican party pass such legislation; it does not ask that the party organization pledge itself as favorable to such measures; it only asks full free and unbiased consideration. This was refused. What do you think of a great party in Minnesota which refuses "full, fair and free consideration" to any measure which is of interest to the people of the state? Do you believe the convention which refuses this reasonable request is free and uncontrolled? It sounds like a brewers' convention.

The balance of the governor's speech is largely made up of reports from the various elective state departments. It does not show one single thing to the credit of the executive department during his incumbency. This being the case we might supply a few items:

In February last he dug up and paid what is known as "the Seabury graft." You probably remember this incident. A bill that had twice been refused payment by Governor Johnson because it was illegal, was paid by Governor Eberhart, even though such payment was not sanctioned by the attorney general.

Then there was the appointment of that probate judge down in Redwood county. The incumbent died without warning one night, and before the news of his death became public property his successor was appointed by Governor Eberhart. There was violent protest from the people of the county, but it availed them nothing until they had an opportunity to express themselves at the primary election, when Governor Eberhart's judge was snowed under about four to one.

Nor should we forget the Waterman incident. Banker Waterman was joyriding in St. Paul, when a common person driving a wagon got in his way. The festive banker rode over him, spilling him and his wife out in the street, wrecking the wagon and causing other damage. An unfeeling police judge sentenced Waterman to thirty days in the workhouse, without the option of a fine. An appeal was made to the governor, who immediately convened an extra session of the state pardon board to act on the banker's case. However he did not dare to stay and act for himself in this case, and left his proxy with a clerk, advising him to vote him with a majority of the board, whichever side the majority went. The other members refused to rise to the bait, and the banker served the thirty days.

Then there was the "settling" of the switchmen's strike last spring, when Mr. Eberhart appointed the Great Northern attorney, John W. Mason of Fergus Falls, as a member of the board of arbitration to "do" the switchmen.

This, we believe, is a fair representation of the governor's record in the executive office. The balance of his time has been devoted, quoting the Minneapolis Tribune, to "talking platitudes to Sunday school conventions and ogling women's clubs."

What do you think of that as a record of performance covering more than a year's time?

MANKATO, FAVORED CITY.

How notable events do crowd each other, to be sure.

Following hard on the heels of Governor Eberhart's "keynote" speech in that fair city, Mankato reports the birth of a two-headed pig.

If that pig follows the footsteps of some illustrious representatives of the porker family and becomes an "educated pig," he will need both his heads and then some to grasp the full significance of that Republican platform which Mr. Eberhart says he stands on.—Minneapolis Daily News.

These death-bed repentances are all right, if the patient dies, but suppose he recovers? As a case in point, there is Julius Schmahl, candidate for secretary of state on the Republican ticket. We all remember how Julius broke into print just after the passage of the Payne-Aldrich bill and informed the people of the Northwest that Minnesota had at least one congressman who would not be apologizing for his vote two years hence, and he regretted that there was only one. Again, when Mr. Taft came to Winona and "boosted" for Tawney, Mr Schmahl swelled up and said, "I told you so." Then Mr. Roosevelt came to Minnesota and took a shot at the man who, according to Julius, had no apology to make on his tariff vote, and Julius said: "Oh, Roosevelt is hot because Tawney wouldn't let him squander all the money in the treasury on battleships." Then came the New York convention, at which the "Old Guard" was scattered like chaff, Julius made up his mind he was in wrong, and he shouted: "Hurrah for Teddy; didn't we put it to them," and ever since he has been a vociferous Progressive, as has "Me-Too-Eberhart." But the people have memories.

The End In View.

Ella—Why do you let him call you by your first name? Stella—I want to encourage him to help me get rid of my last name.—Judge.

Proposed Amendments

—TO THE—

Constitution

—OF—

Minnesota

-BY-

The Legislature

General Session

1909.

St. Paul, Minn., May 1, 1910.

Hon. Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State—

Sir: As required by Section 25 of the Revised Laws as amended, I have the honor to furnish you herewith a statement of the purposes and effects of the respective amendments proposed to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota by the Legislature of 1909 and which are to be submitted to the electors in said state at the general election in 1910.

FIRST PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The first proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 506 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to authorize the payment by the State from the State Road and Bridge Fund of one-half of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein, and is an amendment of Section 16 of Article 9 of the Constitution, which now reads as follows:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided further, that in no case shall more than one-third (⅓) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund," and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 16. For the purpose of lending aid in the construction and improvement of public highways and bridges, there is hereby created a fund, to be known as the 'state road and bridge fund,' said fund shall include all moneys accruing from the income derived from investments in the internal improvement land fund, or that may hereafter accrue to said fund, and shall also include all funds accruing to any state road and bridge fund, however provided.

"The legislature is authorized to add to such fund, for the purpose of constructing or improving roads and bridges of this state, by providing, in its discretion, for an annual tax levy upon the property of this state of not to exceed in any year one-fourth (¼) of one mill on all the taxable property within the state.

PROVIDED, that no county shall receive in any year more than three (3) per cent or less than one-half (½) of one (1) per cent of the total fund thus provided and expended during such year; and provided, further, that in no case shall more than one-half (½) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge be paid by the state from such fund."

EFFECT. The present Constitution authorizes the payment by the State, out of such fund so created of ONE-THIRD (1-3) of the cost of constructing or improving any road or bridge therein. If this amendment is adopted the State could then pay ONE-HALF (½) of the cost of constructing any such road or bridge, and the effect of the amendment is thus to increase the amount which the State may lawfully pay toward such purpose.

SECOND PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The second proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 507 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to repeal the provisions of Section 11 of Article IX of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. There shall be published by the treasurer, in at least one newspaper printed at the seat of government, during the first week in January of each year, and in the next volume of the acts of the legislature, detailed statements of all moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, for what purposes and to whom paid, and by what law authorized; and also of all moneys received, and by what authority and from whom."

EFFECT. The Constitution requires the treasurer to publish yearly a detailed statement of the moneys drawn from the treasury during the preceding year, giving the names of the persons to whom paid and the purposes for which it was expended. It also requires a like statement of the names of the persons, and the sources, as to money received, and in both cases a statement of the law under which payments were made, or money paid into the treasury. The effect of this Amendment, if the same be adopted, will be to repeal the section of the Constitution mentioned and insofar relieve the treasurer from such publication. This change in the Constitution, however, would not prevent the legislature from hereafter directing by law that such, or a different publication, of the same or other information should be made by the Treasurer.

THIRD PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The third proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 508 of the Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 17, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment, by the State of Minnesota, of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, including the necessary expenses of giving effect to this act, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment, if adopted, will be to authorize the State to become a trustee in the collection and disbursement of a fund for the payment of damages to growing crops by hail or wind, or either. This fund is to be created and maintained by a specific tax imposed by the legislature upon the lands of such persons, ONLY, as shall voluntarily list the same with their respective county auditors for that purpose. Under it there could be no tax for such purpose imposed on the lands of any owner who does not consent thereto. The legislature is also authorized to include in such fund the necessary expenses of administration of the law. The adoption of the amendment will authorize the legislature to direct that the taxing machinery of the state be used to levy and collect the tax necessary to raise such fund and to provide for the disbursement of same by the officers of the State; but any payments to be made by the State, by reason of damage by hail or wind will have to be made from such fund and from no other. In the settlement of any such damages the State would assume no liability beyond the amount of such fund, and could not further be rendered liable. A similar amendment was offered at the general election of 1908, but not adopted. The amendment then offered read as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature may provide for the payment by the State of Minnesota of damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, and to provide a fund for that purpose, may impose a specific tax upon lands, the owners of which, at their option, have listed the same with county auditors for that purpose, and no payment shall be made of any such damages except from the fund so provided."

The main difference between the amendment now offered, and the one last quoted, being that the legislature is now to be authorized, in addition to providing a fund for the purpose of paying damages to growing crops by hail and wind, or either, to further provide an additional tax upon the lands of the persons so listing the same, to meet the necessary expenses incurred in the administration of the law and thus relieve the State therefrom. This last provision was not included in the amendment offered in 1908.

FOURTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fourth proposed Amendment is contained in Chapter 509, General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to repeal Section 23 of Article IV of the Constitution, which section now reads as follows:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for an enumeration of the inhabitants of this State in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and every tenth year thereafter. At their first session after each enumeration so made, and also at their first session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional senatorial and representative districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section second of this article."

and to substitute therefor the following:

"Section 23. The legislature shall provide by law for enumeration of the innabitants of this State in the year 1915, and every ten (10) years thereafter. At any session after any enumeration of the inhabitants of this state made pursuant to law and also at any session after each enumeration made by the authority of the United States, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe the bounds of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or any of the same, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts according to the provisions of section 2 of this article."

EFFECT. The effect of this Amendment will be to direct the legislature to provide for a census of the inhabitants of the State in the year 1915, and every tenth year thereafter, and will also authorize the legislature to change the boundaries of congressional, senatorial and representative districts, or of any one of such districts, and to apportion anew the senators and representatives among the several districts, at any session after any State or Federal census. If adopted, the legislature might therefore, if it deems best, change at any session the boundaries of such districts and apportion anew the senators and representatives and thus redistrict the State every two years.

FIFTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The fifth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 510, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is sought to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution, to be known as Section 18, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 18. To secure a sustained yield of timber for the use of the people of this state, the proper officials shall annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property within this state, the proceeds of which shall be used for the purchase of land better adapted for forestry purposes than for agriculture for the state at not over $3.00 per acre, and for the production and maintenance thereon of forest according to forestry principles.

"Unexpended balances shall not lapse but constitute a fund for forestry purposes.

"The timber produced thereon shall be sold at a fair valuation and the revenue therefrom or from other source shall be paid into the state treasury, except that one-quarter of the net revenue shall be paid to the towns, or if unorganized, to the county, in which the land is situated, in aid of public schools and roads.

"Should any tract acquired be found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, it may be sold and the proceeds used for acquiring or developing forestry land.

"Until otherwise directed by the legislature, which may supplement these provisions with necessary enactments, the state forestry board shall draw and disburse the money hereby provided and purchase, manage and control the lands and forests.

"No money shall be paid for any tract until the attorney general shall certify to the validity of the title.

"It shall be competent for two successive regular legislatures, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to repeal any of these provisions."

EFFECT. This proposed amendment, and the proposed amendment hereafter mentioned should be read together. They constitute the foundation for a plan of State reforestration. As the constitution stands today, while the legislature might pass laws providing funds to be used for the purchase of lands, and the cultivation of the same for reforestration purposes, yet it is not directed to do so. The effect then of this amendment is to COMPEL the taxing officers of the state to annually levy and collect a tax of one-fifteenth of one mill on each dollar of taxable property in the state, to be used as the legislature shall direct, for the purchase for the state of land adapted to forestry purposes, but at a price not to exceed $3 per acre. All unexpired balances in the fund at the end of each fiscal year shall not lapse, but shall be carried over into the fund thus raised for the succeeding year and shall be an addition thereto. It also directs the sale, at a fair valuation, of the timber produced on such land so purchased, the payment of three-fourths of the money received therefrom into the state treasury, and the payment of the remaining one-fourth to the town, if organized, or otherwise to the county in which the land is situated, and that the same shall there be credited to the public school funds. If after the land is purchased it is found better adapted for any other purpose than the production of timber, authority is contained in this amendment to sell it, but the proceeds must be used for acquiring or developing forestry land. Until the legislature provides otherwise, all purchases shall be under the direction of the State Forestry Board. The title to all lands purchased must be approved by the Attorney General before purchase is made. It is further provided that two successive regular legislatures shall have power by a two-thirds vote of each house to repeal any of the foregoing provisions. That is to say, if after a trial, such plan for any reason is found to be impracticable or undesirable, and it so appears to two successive legislatures, any or all of the foregoing provisions of the amendment may be repealed. The legislature does not now possess such power and the same is a distinct change in the methods heretofore in vogue in Minnesota, in the making and revising of the Constitution. Heretofore an amendment might only be made to the Constitution or a provision of that instrument eliminated by direct vote of the electors. Under this amendment, if it be adopted, that power is not taken away and also exists. But a new power, that of repeal by the legislature, as to this amendment, is created. Such power, however, would extend to no other provision of the Constitution and affords an easy method of change in case of necessity or advisability.

SIXTH PROPOSED AMENDMENT.

The sixth proposed amendment is contained in Chapter 511, Laws of Minnesota for the year 1909.

PURPOSE. By this amendment it is proposed to add an entirely new section to Article IX of the Constitution to be known as Section 17a, and which shall read as follows:

"Section 17a. Laws may be enacted exempting lands from taxation for the purpose of encouraging and promoting the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon."

EFFECT. The effect of this amendment is to authorize the legislature to enact laws exempting from taxation lands of private persons to be used in the planting, cultivation and protection of useful forest trees thereon, and thus supplement where the lands of such private persons are devoted to reforestration, the purposes contemplated as to public lands by the fifth proposed amendment. The authority so granted is part of a general plan for the reforestration of land within the state. If the legislature does not pass such laws, such lands will not be exempt and the power to repeal such a law, when enacted, remains with the legislature. Power to pass a law to exempt such lands from taxation the legislature does not now possess, and it is, therefore, an additional grant of power.

Yours respectfully,

GEORGE T. SIMPSON,

Attorney General.

St. Paul, May 1, 1910.

Mr. Julius A. Schmahl,

Secretary of State.

Dear Sir:—Referring to proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 2 would say: As state expert printer I have given the publications involved in this proposed amendment special thought, and am of opinion both these publications are entirely superfluous. The extensive annual publication "in a daily newspaper published at the capital city" attracts absolutely no attention. The annual report of the state treasurer is published in book form, and to an extent that makes it easy for every person specially concerned to secure a copy. To conform strictly with the law as it is at present, means the expenditure, under reasonably favorable printing contracts, of approximately $6,000, a sum which can be used to excellent advantage under conditions which ordinarily suggest the greatest care and economy upon the part of those under whose direction the printing fund is expended.

Yours respectfully,

J. T. MANNIX,

State Expert Printer.

JOHN DEITZ IS UNDER ARREST

Wisconsin Man Surrenders After Fierce Battle.

IS WOUNDED IN THE HAND

One of the Sheriff's Posse Killed and Two Wounded Before the Fighting Ceases.

Winter, Wis., Oct. 8.—John Deitz surrendered this afternoon, but Winter believes he would have been a dead man tonight had he not been hurried away to Hayward to escape the anger of an excited mob that grew by magic when the news came that Deitz or one of his family had not only wounded two deputies, but had shot another through the head and killed him.

The dead man is Oscar Hart. He was found on the hill behind the Deitz cabin. A bullet from one of the rifles fired from the house had gone straight through his head.

When the armed guard heard this their elation that Deitz had surrendered changed to resentment. Handcuffed to Deputy Sheriff Fred Thorbin, Deitz was brought to the outskirts of Winter shortly before 8 p. m. Automobiles brought the family and a few picked guards. Mrs. Deitz and the two children were taken into Winter, but the mob was so threatening that Madden dared not expose his chief prisoners and Deitz and his son Leslie were hurried to Hayward. Later in the evening the entire family was taken there and lodged behind the bars.

The long battle between Sawyer county officials and Deitz ended at just 3:20 p. m., when Helen Deitz, John Deitz' youngest daughter, emerged from the cabin carrying a white flag. Deputy Sheriff Fred Thorbin at once went to meet the girl, accompanied by a guard.

"Father Wounded; Mother Sick."

"We've got to quit," said the child. "My father is shot and my mother is sick and so am I. We haven't had anything to eat all day."

Within ten minutes after the surrender Deitz was in irons. The first person to enter the cabin after Deitz had asked for quarter was Rev. Father Pilon of St. Joseph's Catholic church, who had labored incessantly to prevent bloodshed.

Deitz surrendered only after he had fired upwards of 2,000 rounds of ammunition and after he had been pleaded with for many hours by his wife. Mrs. Deitz is declared to have pleaded with him on her knees to save her and the children from what she felt was certain death. Deitz continued the fight for three hours after he was wounded, refusing even to stop long enough to dress the injury. He finally became so weak from the loss of blood that he was unable longer to direct the campaign from the cabin.

When Deitz was put in irons he admitted that the attack of this morning was a complete surprise to him. He said he and his family left the cabin and went about the yard without any thought of being fired upon.

Deitz was wanted for the shooting of Bert Horel at Winter a month ago, but for several years he has resisted arrest for holding up logs at Cameron dam owned by a lumber company, who, he claimed, owed him money.

A week ago three of Deitz' children were ambushed by deputies and two of them shot and captured.

ACCUSED OF KILLING HARP

John F. Deitz, Wife and Son Held on Murder Charge.

Winter, Wis., Oct. 11.—Charges of murder in the first degree were formally laid against John F. Deitz, the Cameron dam defender; Leslie Deitz, his son, and Mrs. John F. Deitz, his wife, by the verdict of a coroner's jury which met here to investigate the killing of Deputy Oscar Harp during the assault on the Deitz cabin Saturday.

The jury was assembled by Coroner W. H. Noyes and listened to evidence from a score of eyewitnesses to the events at Cameron dam Saturday when Harp, one of Sheriff Madden's deputies, was shot and instantly killed while trying to reach the lumber pile near the Deitz cabin.

The coroner's jury found that the shot which killed Harp was fired from the roof of the Deitz barn. As the members of the jury were unable to find from the evidence who fired the shot a blanket responsibility was laid on Deitz, on his wife and son.

ASTOUNDS HER PHYSICIANS

Rapid Recovery of Elmyra Deitz, Wounded by Posse.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 8.—Elmyra Deitz continues to improve at St. Joseph's hospital.

The wonderful constitution of the girl is asserting itself and at the present rate she will be in a convalescent state within a few days. The physicians are astounded at the rapid recuperation from the strain of the shock and subsequent neglect of her wound.

NEW CHARGE AGAINST DEITZ

He Is Said to Have Violated the Game Laws.

WIRES TO MAYOR SEIDEL

John F. Deitz Asks Mayor of Milwaukee to Obtain Competent Counsel to Defend Him and Gives the Preference to Attorney Clarence Darrow of Chicago.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Oct. 11.—Five game wardens passed through here en route for Winter to make a seizure of five deer carcasses found in John Deitz' storehouse at Cameron dam, following his surrender.

The game wardens were instructed to prepare formal charges against Deitz for violating the game laws.

Deitz, when asked by a deputy why he had so much venison, replied he was rushed overtime to keep a supply of jerked venison on hand to present to the newspaper correspondents who visited his home.

Hayward, Wis., Oct. 11.—John F. Deitz sent the following telegram addressed to Mayor Emil Seidel, Milwaukee:

"Please get me competent attorney. Clarence Darrow preferred. Advise me as soon as possible."

"I have received the telegram from Deitz," said Mayor Seidel at Milwaukee, "and I shall take the matter up with Mr. Darrow at once to find out whether he can take charge of Mr. Deitz' case."

The hearing of John Deitz was postponed because District Attorney Davis is in Winter attending the inquest over the body of Harp.

ROW IN THE DEITZ FAMILY

John and Leslie Refuse to Talk to Clarence.

Hayward, Wis., Oct. 11.—Tsere is a row on in the Deitz family. The father and Leslie refuse to speak to Clarence because Clarence surrendered so easily when held up by the deputies a week ago Saturday. When Deitz arrived in Hayward he was placed in a cell beside his son Clarence, but would not speak to him because the boy surrendered without shooting at Madden when shot at from ambush.

The cabin now is in charge of Chester Colpitch, Fred Lambert and William Forcier.

John Deitz' wound is trivial, Dr. Zeegler, who dressed it, says, and states that it is simply a flesh wound under the thumb. Leslie still appears defiant.

John Deitz and Leslie are in cells on the ground floor of the jail and Clarence is on the second floor. Mrs. Deitz occupies a room on the second floor in the women's tier. She is bitter toward the sheriff and those who made the arrests. Helen and John, Jr., are in the residence part of the jail, under the care of Mrs. Madden.

HAY SENDS OUT A LETTER

Would Hold Another Conservation Meeting.

Seattle, Oct. 11.—Governor M. E. Hay of Washington, who has been itching to say something to his Eastern conservation friends ever since he returned from the meeting in St. Paul, has sent to the governors of the Pacific coast and mountain states letters asking their views on the advisability of holding another conservation meeting.

No date or meeting place has been suggested. The letter follows:

"Mr. Dear Governor—I desire to call your attention to the treatment accorded the representatives appointed by the governors of the Pacific coast and the Rocky Mountain states to the so called conservation congress by the officers and those in charge of that congress.

"I deem it of sufficient importance to urge upon you the advisability of arousing the people of the states where over 98 per cent of the national resources are located, to the fact that there is a clique in this nation composed of men who are trying to usurp the prerogatives of the people of the Western states and divert the revenues from the natural resources from the state treasuries to the federal treasuries.

"I should be pleased to hear from you concerning these matters and given your ideas as to what action, if any, should be taken. If you believe a meeting representative of the West should be called to discuss this question, when, and where? How should the delegates be chosen and how large a representation would you suggest?"

CLEMENTSON IS DESTROYED

Town East of Baudette Wiped Out by the Flames.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 11.—Clementson, a settlement of 200 people ten miles east of Baudette, has been destroyed by fire. Fires are working east along both sides of the Rainy river toward Fort Francis and International Falls. Both of these towns are enveloped in clouds of smoke.

KING MANUEL.

Boy King of Portugal, Deposed by Revolution.

QUIET REIGNS IN THE CAPITAL

All Disturbances Suppressed in Portugal.

NOW IN UNDISPUTED CONTROL

Official of the New Republic Issues a Statement of the Aims of the Provisional Government.

Lisbon, Oct. 8.—The establishment of a republic in Portugal is an accomplished fact. For a city that has just passed through the throes of a bloody revolution and sustained a bombardment Lisbon is in cloudless sunshine and wears a smiling aspect.

The Republican flag flutters on nearly every building and from every vehicle; the streets are thronged with promenaders, including a good sprinkling of tourists with guide books in hand; shops and offices have been reopened and business generally has been resumed. The only evidence of the recent perturbation are small bodies of troops stationed in the principal open spaces of the city and the passage now and then of Red Cross ambulances.

The noticeable outward signs of the new regime are the presence everywhere of the green and red flag of the republic and the complete disappearance of King Manuel's portrait from public exhibition.

The most interesting man in Portugal at the present moment is the new president, Theophile Braga, who may be said without exaggeration to be the father not only of this revolution, but of that in Brazil, having by his standing as a professor of history and philosophy prepared the ground for both movements.

Aims of New Government.

Senhor Bernardo Machado, the minister of foreign affairs in the new government, discussing the aims of the republic, said:

"The provisional government has before it a great duty involving much work. It has, in effect, a country to make over. Among other programmes we can say that we will endeavor to put in operation the programme of the republican party. This includes a policy of reform both in the local administration and in the government of the colonies.

"The financial budget is to be equalized in tne general interests of the country and it will be made up with honesty and fairness. The national wealth will be developed.

"Freedom of the press will be assured and all star chamber methods and opportunist laws will be abolished. Public instructions will be completely secularized, relieved from religious control and the religious congregations will be suppressed. We plan the establishment of a broad system of public instruction, both primary and advance, under governmental endowment."

A decree has been issued exiling the royal family and ordering religious organizations to quit the country inside of twenty-four hours. The royal family is now at Gibraltar.

ESCAPES ASSASSINS' PLOT

Prince Tsai Hsun Near Death at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Oct. 8.—George Fong, a member of the San Francisco organization of the Young Chinese association, an alleged revolutionary body, was arrested by secret service men just as he was about to shoot Prince Tsai Hsun, uncle of the emperor of China, who was boarding the steamer Chiyo Maru to sail for home.

The prince's life was declared forfeited to the revolutionary cause, according to Fong, at a meeting of a Chinese association.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE.

Physicians Say He Will Recover From Operation.

LA FOLLETTE FEELING FINE

Condition of Senator Continues to Improve.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 9.—"Senator La Follette is feeling fine," said Dr. Philip Fox just as the doctor was leaving for his home at Madison. "There is nothing new to add and we are all satisfied with the result of the operation."

The Wisconsin senator, who is recuperating from an operation at St. Mary's hospital, had a light breakfast of egg on toast and said he felt more like himself than any day since his operation. His improvement continues gradual and the physicians predict a speedy return of strength.

The Minneapolis bartenders have organized in behalf of Governor Eberhart. Their organization is known as the Aegis Circle. What is the matter with calling it by its right name? Is the governor ashamed of his new-found support, or do the promoters fear to indicate the character of their occupation in their official title? The governor seems to be "taking the schools out of politics," but putting the bartenders in.

Of course it is possible that all those Democratic brewers and saloon keepers are supporting Governor Eberhart because they believe he will enforce all laws—including liquor laws—more rigorously than would Gray. Do you believe it?

The man who can be used to get through petty grafting can be depended on for big steals. You remember, perhaps, how Governor Eberhart was used in the Seabury graft?

RESCUE PARTIES ON THE ROAD

Looking for Victims of Fires in Minnesota.

LOSS OF LIFE NOT KNOWN

Impossible at Present to Determine the Exact Number of People Who Perished in the Fires That Swept Through the Woods of Northern Minnesota.

Baudette, Minn., Oct. 11.—It is now three days since fire devastated the strip of timbered country fifty miles wide between Warroad and Stratton, but as yet only a handful of homesteaders and settlers have come out to the tracks.

In view of the fact that four entire families have been found dead within a few miles of the place and that they were only discovered in a haphazard way, the situation is doubly more alarming. There is no doubt that the entire district was swept clean, and it seems strange that the inhabitants, if alive, have not as yet sought refuge.

Four teams are working south along the trails, a dozen axmen cutting a road through the fallen timbers, and the county sheriff has sent out a party of experienced woodsmen on foot, with instructions to penetrate as far south as they can and report the conditions, both as to loss of life and condition of the fire.

Every settler who has yet come in tells of the narrow escape of himself and family, which adds to the apprehension that is felt by every one.

Chris Thompson, who, with his wife, lay in the Winter River road for three hours, while the fire passed over their heads, says that he distinctly heard several people shouting excitedly, the voices seeming to come from every direction. This, he said, unnerved him more than did the fire.

Perhaps the most tragic story of death that has yet been brought here was related by S. Larson, who has a claim fourteen miles south of the Baudette river. He saved his life by lying in the water half the night. It was Larson who first discovered the bodies of Edward Roulien, his wife and seven children. They lived quite close to his house, and he saw the bodies from the trail. The sight was shocking.

Entire Family Perished.

In the center of a plot of open ground before what had been their home the entire family was huddled together, their clothing partially burned off, the hair burned and the bodies charred and blackened, except where they had been protected from the furnace heat of the fire. The family consisted of a boy about one year old, the oldest boy, about seventeen, and four little girls, Agnes, Evelyn, Judith and Hildegarde. Every sign pointed to the fact that the family first took refuge in a small earth roothouse and it is thought that, becoming suffocated with the heat, they rushed out to the center of the open space. The father had his arms about three of the girls when they found him and the position of the family indicates they were enveloped in a sheet of flame. They were about 200 feet from the timber through which the fire approached.

William Boulien, a son, aged twenty-three years, who had a claim of his own, escaped by standing in the river. The family moved from New Richmond about three years ago and is survived by three other daughters, who are employed in Minneapolis.

A road is now being cut to where the bodies are and they will be brought into Baudette.

Larson, who brought the news, says that Hulver Johnson and Emil Peterson saved themselves, the one by getting down a well and the other by running a backfire.

A man named Hoff, who has a homestead on the Baudette river, one and a half miles from here, saved an aged man named Hilden, who was bent on staying with his home. He was obliged to fight the old man and forced him to take refuge in the river.

Hoff and his wife also stayed in the water and escaped.

Took Refuge in River.

August Schaetzer, who drove his team into the Winter Road river and stayed there for three hours with his wife, enduring the most severe heat, tells of a man named Mike Sawa, who, with his nine children and a boy named William Lebudia, endeavored to escape down the river in a boat. They held wet blankets over their heads and the heat was so intense that it scorched and blistered the paint on the boat. When the boat reached the place where Schaetzer was standing the boy, Lebudia, was unconscious and the family was exhausted and almost overcome. They were helped into the water and remained there until the fire had passed.

It is reported from the town of Wabanca, one mile south of here, that a woman is missing. An unidentified child was found in the school yard at Spooner.

Alexander Watts, aged forty-seven, who lives three miles west of Baudette, was brought here by a train crew with one leg badly burned. He was lying in the water with his head protected by a wet coat and left his leg exposed.

With few exceptions all who were saved and have come here, protected themselves by keeping under water or by staying in a well. There are only four streams running through the burned district and only a small percentage of the people lived near them.

In the country to the south of here, where it is supposed many persons perished, the roads are all covered with a tangle of fallen timbers, which will have to be cut through before teams can proceed.

The bodies of fourteen people, who comprise only two families, have been brought to Baudette, and the statement of a man who walked twenty miles from Rapid river that he counted nineteen bodies along the road, is taken as significant that very few settlers have come from the burned district where hundreds are known to live, and it is certain they are dead or in great distress, for it is impossible that their frame houses are left standing.

ESTIMATED AT TEN MILLION DOLLARS

Property Loss From Fires in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Oct. 11.—Following is a summary of the fire situation in Northern Minnesota:

Property loss estimated at $10,000,000.

Number of known dead seventy-five. Total deaths, it is believed, will reach 500.

Five hundred square miles of nearly virgin timber laid waste and homes of thousands of settlers destroyed.

Relief trains rushed to the devastated region from St. Paul, Duluth and Bemidji.

Governor Eberhart cancels all engagements to accompany St. Paul's relief party.

Red Cross society of state receiving funds for the relief of the homeless, penniless settlers.

Crookston, Minn., sends carload of provisions and Great Northern railway polices all bridges on its line to Warroad. Special water trains sent to the front.

Thousands of survivors fill towns within easy reach and many are cared for by charitable institutions and subscriptions.

Ranier, a village near International Falls, wires Governor Eberhart for assistance, saying town is surrounded by flames.

Baudette and Spooner residents already plan to rebuild as one town.

State troops arrive at Baudette from Bemidji to preserve order. Soldiers were accompanied by physicians.

One hundred and ninety typhoid fever patients at Baudette saved from horrible deaths.

Icehouse is a Morgue.

Icehouse at Baudette converted into morgue containing bodies of Broten and Goffin families.

Funerals of many victims will be held at once.

Fate of towns of Williams and Roosevelt still unknown.

Warroad safe as yet, but flames threaten.

Three thousand persons are homeless and destitute.

Later accounts increase horror of situation.

Hundreds of fugitives reach Winnipeg.

Great deal of vandalism reported rife in stricken towns.

Thrilling tales of refugees describe terrible calamity that has overtaken the homeless.

Town of Kellher has been temporarily saved from flames, it is believed.

Big fires reported near Bagley and Clear Brook.

Bagley high school boys form companies to respond to instant call.

One hundred refugees, penniless, arrive in Bemidji.

Private message to Minnesota and International railroad officials says 300 charred bodies must be taken care of at Rainy River within forty-eight hours.

Inhabitants of Salol, Minn., near Warroad, driven out by flames.

CITY IS MENACED BY FIRE

International Falls in Danger of Destruction.

Fort Francis, Ont., Oct. 11.—Forest fires threaten International Falls, having 2,000 population, across the river from Fort Francis. Several fires have been burning near International Falls for thirty-six hours, and a high wind would sweep the fires into the city. A force of about fifty men worked all night, but were unable to extinguish the fires. Rushing from one spot to another, they were able to make the city safe in any threatened quarter, and fires repeatedly broke out immediately behind them.

Mayor Berg wired the governor of Minnesota for military aid, as there are not enough available men there to adequately protect the city.

Drops Loaded Gun and is Killed.

Medford, Wis., Oct. 11.—August Tschadle, twenty-one years old, while showing some companions how soldiers were drilled, dropped a loaded gun and was instantly killed. He had only been in this country about a week.

BOLD ROBBERS AT BEMIDJI.

Bemidji, Oct. 26.—Robbors broke into the T. J. Crane department store on Third street at 9.30 last night when the streets where filled with show crowds, and by the glare of electric street signs and lights, selected $2,500 worth of the most valuable goods in the place, and when discovered by Mr. Crane, who entered the store to turn off his own window lights, they escaped with $200 worth of French plumes.

These plumes were the property of Miss Marie Walsmith, milliner, who occupies the Crane store's balcony.

Crane Explains Robbery.

Mr. Crane tells the following story of the robbery.

"It was not later than 10.30 when with Mr. Comisky and Mr. [illegible] went to the store to turn off the light. I had left the place an hour before; my companions remained outside.

"I had gone about a third the length of the store when I heard some one say 'Ssh!' I glenced up and saw two men crouching to the balcony.

"I retreated to the front door for help and as I did so the two men dashed down the stairs and out the back door and disappeared down the alley running north before we could catch them."

Robbers Where Experts

An examination of the interior of the store quickly showed that the robbers were experts. They had taken only the costliest plumes and had packed $2,500 worth of the most valuable furs and silk dresses. The furs selected were sable, mink, lynx and otter, and included cloaks, muffs and scarfs.

Chief of Police Harrington was quickly notified and he had his men at work, under his personal direction a few minutes after the robbers made their getaway. No arrests have, as yet, been made. —Crookston Times.

Help to Conserve the Wealth of your State.

At the November election an opportunity will be given every voter of the state to show his patriotism and loyalty. An amendent to the State Constitution will than be before the people to authorize the collection of a fifthteenth of a mill tax on every dollar of assessed property in the state, for the purchase and maintenance of state forests.

This is of interest to you, whoever you are and wherever you are. It means the purchase and care of thousands of acres of land unsuited to agriculture-the forester cannot profitably use any other kind which will eventually return large revenues to the state treasure. It means a future timber supply for the people, at a time when timber from elsewhere will be hard to get; it means revenues from lands which now pay little or no taxes; it means fewer forest fires for the neglected lands which would be bought are the places where these fires are fostored. It means a saving to the state in every way.

That you may be a farmer on the prairies, far from the wooded section, does not excuse you from the obligation to vote for this amendment. It is of vitual interest to your section; for that is just the place where the timber-shortage will be soonest and most severely felt.

There is not a citizen in the state who can afford to vote against the amendment.

Do not let the idea of an added tax scare you. The aggregate will be $75.000, but the share of the individual will be about nothing. Only seven cents on a thousand dollars. and how many thousand dollars' worth of property do you posses.? Three and a half cent per capital for the people in the state. Surely you can afford that much for the general good.

Killed by Son.

Westhope N. D. Oct 25.— The accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of his six year old son was fatal to Joe Hamel residing near Eckman. Almost the entire charge entered Hamels face: tearing away one cheek. Mr. Hamel had just entered the kitchen of his home and was passing by his little son, who was holding the gun in an upright position, resting the butt on the floor. It was leaned over just enough so that when the lad accidentally touched the trigger the entire charge struck his father in the face.

Warren Block in Smoke.

Fire broke out in the basement of the T. K. Taralseth & Co's. alrge store building in Warren on Monday morning at about 5 o'clock. The local fire department turned out and after a few hours hard fighting they had the fire practically under control when the water supply in the city tank became exhausted and about the same time the fire engine refused to do its work. A call for help was sent in to Argyle and Thief River Falls both of which responded with men and apparatus by special train, but before they could reach the scene the flames had again spread until the entire Taralseth block was like an immense furnace. The oil storage tanks burned as did also a large stock of ammunitions, making the fire difficult to control and dangerous to approach.

By heroic efforts of both the regular fire fighters and the volunteers the fire was kept from spreading to neighboring buildings but some of them were badly scorched and some of them repeatedly caught fire but vigilance and courage saved them.

The plate glass in windows across the street broke because of the intense heat.

After the building was entirely gutted the wall tottered and fell seriously injuring and burning two of Warren's fireman who were at work too close at the time, of the falling of the walls. The injured men were taken to the hospital and given the best of care.

The total loss of property is estimated at from $100,000. to $135,000 while only $40,000 or $50,000. was covered by insurance.

With Senator Root as chief justice of the Supreme Court, the corporations and financiers will have a good friend at court.

It is hinted that certain powerful interests will not take Samuel Y. Gorden, republican candidate for lieutenant governor, into their tent. Never mind, Sam. You are under the protecting wing of the people.
—Roseau Region.

The strike of the railroad men in France amounts to almost a revolution, as some of the railroads are owned by the Republic, and to strike may be viewed as rebellion against the sovereign state. Government ownership may have some advantages, but it certainly has its disadvantages.

This is the time of year when the brisk autumn winds sends a thrill thru our systems and we feel more than ever like hustling. If you will only take notice of how much faster all your friends are walking lately you will soon see wherein we are most unlike our brethern in Louisiana and Texas.

Henry L. Stimson, the Republican candidate for governor of New York, owns up to being a corporation-trust lawyer, and isproud of being a partner of Senator Root. He also acknowledges that he has been paid $50,000 by the government for part of his time during the last year and a half on the Sugar Trust and Morso cases; and declares that "much more would have been asked from a private client for the same work". His clients must be malefactors of great wealth or they never could stand his charges.

A standpatter used to be a bold and loyal Republican who was satisfied with the traditions and principles of his party,—the highest measure of protection for the benefit of the rew to plunder the many. Now standpatters are on the defensive or have crawled into their holes and are waiting until the political cyclone blows over. On the other hand, insurgent Republicans are very much in evidence and proclaim themselves favorable to tariff revision downward, but they also declare they believe in "the principle of protection" with a dash of the Roosevelt "New Nationalism" thrown in to give the protection principle a more popular flavor.

Judging from samples of the two brands of Republicanism now before us, there is not much to choose between them; but if obliged to take one or the other, the Taft brand seems to have the better taste, for Taft has tried to do something—even on the tariff—whereas Teddy did nothing but tell what he was going to do. Always big things promised for the future, changing as the political weather vane alters, in the Colonel's plan of campaign.

Whither would Roosevelt lead us with his New Nationalism, that means one thing in Kansas, a differane thing in Indiana, and still different things in New York? There must be stability about political principles, or we would ever be on an unknown sea with a crazy pilot, which means a shipwreck of our hopes of reform. For seven long years was Roosevelt President of these United States, and he kept the country in a turmoil; so much so, that business was disturbed and the worst panic on record was the result. Not a reform was accomplished. Not a trust was prevented from plunaering. Not one malefactor of great wealth was nearer a jail for all of the Roosevelt raving.

If you hire a man for a certain work at which he professes to be an expert, and he shows no good results in seven years, what do you do? You bounce him, and do not care to act upon his advise thereafter. That is what sensible people have done with Roosevelt. He is too erratic to follow; he preaches too much, but his deeds do not match with his words.

JOHN LIND's SPEECH

Ex—Governor John Lind spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience here last night and judging by the applause he certainly was a welcome visitor. Mr. Lind said in part:—

"I would not feel that I had done this occasion justice without discussing the most important question agating the public mind more fully. I refer to the question of county option. County option does not mean county prohibition; nor does it of itself make any county 'wet'' or 'dry'. It simply means that the legislature shall pass a law authorizing the people of the county to determine by vote for themselves whether saloons shall be allowed in the county or not. For the life of me, I cannot see anything startling in this proposition. The startling thing to my mind is that it is not the law today.

"As a people we profess to believe in local self-government. Is it not part of self-government to have the power to regulate the saloon question? The liquor traffic has always been regarded as a proper subject for police regulation. The supreme court of the United States, in passing upon the right of the people of the state of Kansas to regulate the liquor traffic used this language: "We cannot shut out of view the fact, within the knowledge of all, that the public health, the public morals, and the public safety may be endangered by the general use of intoxicating drinks; nor the fact, established by stastistics and accessible to every one, that the idleness, disorder, pauperism and crime existing in the county are in some degree at least traceable to this evil. If, therefore, a state deems the absolute prohibition of the manufacture and sale within her limits of intoxicating liquour for other than medical, scientific and manufacturing purposes, to be necessary to the peace and security of society, the courts cannot—override the will of the people.

"Now, if it be true that idleness, disorder, pauperism and crime, as said by the supreme court, are chargeable to the tariff—and who is there to deny it?—then surely the people of the county who bear the expense of maintaining paupers and criminals should have the right to say whether or not saloons shall be permitted to increase the number.

"I am not a prohibitionist. I am not out to advocate county option in any community. But I do insist that the people who have to bear the burden of the traffic have an inherent right to say whether or not it shall exist. If we had a county option law at this time, the people of this county would have the opportunity to say at the next election whether they want saloons in Freeborn county or not. I can see no injustice in such a law. If the voters abolish the saloons in the county, that would not prevent any citizen from having liquor or beer for his own use. It would not interfere with the so-called personal rights of anybody.

"The principal objection to county option comes from the brewers and the liquor dealers. Are they the guardians of the people? Are they the conservators of our morals? Should they be permitted to dictate our laws and our policies? This is what they are doing, and that is why the people are up in arms on this question,,.

An amendment to the State Constitution will then be before the people, to authorize the collection of a fifteenth of a mill tax on every dollar of assessed property in the state, for the purchase and maintance of state forests.

This is of interest to you, whoever you are and wherever you are. It means the purchase and care of thousands of acres of land unsuited to profitably use any other kind—which will eventually return large revenues to the state treasury. It means a future timber-supply for the people, at a time when timber from elsewhere will be ahrd to get; it means revenues from lands which now pay little or no taxes; it means fewer forest fires-for the negelected lands which would be bought are the places where these fires are fostered. It means a saving to the state in every way.

That you may be a farmer on the prairies, far from the wooded section, does not excuse you from the obligation to vote for this amendment. It is of vital interest to your section; for that is just the place where the timber-shortage will be soonest and most severely felt.

There is not a citixen in the state who can afford to vote against the amendment.

Do not let the idea of an added tax scare you. The aggregate will be $75,000, but the share of the individual will be about nothing. Only seven cents on a thousand dollars, and how many thousand dollars worth of property do you possess? Three and a half a cent per capita for the people in the state! Surely you can afford that much for the general good.

GRAY'S POSITION ON THE SALOON

Democratic Candidate for Governor Is Neither for Nor Against Them.

WOULD LET PEOPLE DECIDE

County Option Means That Residents Shall Have a Voice in Regulating the Traffic.

The Democratic candidate for governor is not making an anti-saloon fight. He is in favor of the passage of a county option law, and if elected governor will recommend the passage of such a law to the legislature. But he holds, and holds rightly, that the mere passage of such a law will not close a single saloon in the state. Such a law, if passed, will, however, give the people of any county the right to say whether they will have saloons in the counties or not. Under such a law, if a majority of the people want saloons, the counties of Brown, Carver, Blue Earth, Stearns, Winona and others would have them in plenty. On the other hand, if a majority didn't want them, they would be shut out. It is not a question of prohibition; it is not even a question of temperance. It is simply putting it up to the people. Letting them decide it for themselves, instead of having the brewers decide it for them.

There have been oceans of rot written about the county option movement, and the meaning of the term "county option." The word "option" means choice; therefore "county option" is simply county choice. It is not of itself for the saloon or against them. If a county option law is put on the statute books such an enactment will not close a saloon in Minnesota. It will, however, give the people of any county the right to say whether or not saloons shall be licensed. In other words, it puts it up to the people to decide.

The brewery agent says he is in favor of local option. That the city, the village, the township, under existing conditions, may vote for the exclusion of the saloon, and he is against further change—the brewer favors things as they are.

His statement is only partly true as to conditions. It is true that under existing conditions the village and the township can exclude the saloon, but as a rule the cities can not. For instance: The 1907 Minnesota Blue Book gives a list of seventy-one organized cities in Minnesota, with an aggregate population of 786,398. This is 39 per cent of the entire population of the state. Of these seventy-one organized cities only eleven, under their charters, can vote directly on the exclusion of the saloon. These eleven minor cities have a combined population of 33,496. So, as a matter of fact, there is better than a third of the people of the state who are absolutely disfranchised as far as voting on the liquor question is concerned. This is what the brewers call "local option." The contention of the Democratic candidate for governor is that this condition puts too much power in the hands of the brewers, and leaves too little with the people. He is against such a proposition now and all the time.

Then there is another phase of this situation even more serious. The brewers are merging the saloon business into a trust. Years ago the saloon was owned by the individual, who was usually a fair sort of a citizen in the community in which he lived. It was to his interest to make the business as respectable as possible. Now the saloons are owned largely by the big brewers, and are run by hired men who get a percentage on the business done, and it is their policy to take all in sight, regardless of right or decency. This is one reason for the growing opposition to the saloon.

The brewery trust is also responsible for the organized entrance of the saloon in politics. The saloon now has more "owned" men in the Minnesota legislature than any other big interest. They vote these men of theirs solidly on all questions concerning the liquor traffic. Nor are they satisfied with their services for themselves alone. They hawk their services to other interests. It is a clear case of legislative prostitution—of barter and sale.

How long does the voter believe such conditions can exist without bringing public disgrace to the fair name of the state?

Now is the time to stop it. Mr. Eberhart is receiving the support of the big brewers and liquor dealers in the state. Are you going to add yours? Will you lend your aid to this work?

Do you want Minnesota to be of the breweries, for the breweries and by the breweries?

Does not the fact that all the railroad presidents are supporting the Republican candidate for governor bear out La Follette's charge that "Eberhart is nothing but the errand boy of the railroads?"

Who did Eberhart and the state administration support in the primary fight of the progressives against the standpat candidates for congress in Minnesota?

FREE LIBRARIES FOR FARMING COMMUNITIES.

With the approach of the long winter evenings, there is need of providing something to profitably employ the minds of the various members of the household. Where one is fortunate enough to be in touch with one of our rural mail-routes, there is ample chance to provide a series of good perodicals, and to receive them in good season. There is, however, a need and a desire for books to read; and where these are not wisely chosen it frequently happens that some are read which might better have been left unread.

The Public Library Commission is in position to supply a reasonable number of rural communities with a special argicultural library of fifty volumes. Twenty-five of these volumes are standard works of fiction, and the balance a careful selection of reliable works on most phases of agriculture. These libraries are loaned to communities practically free of charge, the sum of one dollar being collected to defray the shipping expense. This class of traveling library is designed especially for farmer's clubs, reading clubs and agricultural clubs in general and should not be overlooked by communities desiring this class of reading this winter. A request to the Public Library Commission, State Capitol, St. Paul, Minn., will bring full particulars and an application blank.

TAKE CARE OF THE FARM MACHINERY

Farm machinery is often sadly neglected when not in use. It is not uncommon to see binders, cultivators, grain-drills, plows, etc., left out all winter in the field where they were last used, or in the barn-yard. Here they are exposed to the sun, rain and snow at all times of the year, and the actual depreciation from such exposure is more than the wear caused by use. To leave machinery exposed to all kinds of weather has the same effect as it would have on house furniture, live stock, or anything that Nature has not provided with protection against the elements.

One of the best investments on the farm is a good machineshed in which all machinery can be put when not in ues. Statistics show that such an investment will mean a return of 30 per cent on the money invested. It increases the life of machinery fifty to one hundred per cent. Even at the present price of lumber, a machine-shed, 16x32, well built, on a concrete foundation, will cost only about $125. Such a building will house all the farm implements used on the average Minnesota farm. To figure the life of such a building at 15 years, with a small outlay for an occasional coat of paint, will make the annual cost of sheltering all the machines on the farm less than twenty dollars per year. Such small annual cost will pay many fold in its saving on the depreciation of the machinery.

A little time used in overhauling and cleaning up each piece of machinery, when one is through with it, is well spent. Tighten up all the bolts, saturate the bearings and cover all wearing surfaces with a good grade of machinery oil. This will stay on from one year to another, and keep the parts from rusting. Plow lays and all polished parts should be cleaned and covered with oil or grease of some kind, to keep them in good condition. There is no part of the farm operation at which a little time can be spent to better advantage than looking after farm machinery.

BEGINS SEARCH FOR AERONAUTS

New York Man Opens Inquiry Bureau at Ottawa.

PHUL MAY TRY WITH BALLOON

Representative of the Aero Club of St. Louis May Attempt to Locate Missing Men With the St. Louis III. Believed That Hawley and Post Are to Be Found in the Country Contiguous to James Bay.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 25.—An organized effort to locate Alan Hawley and Augustus Post, crew of the missing balloon America II., was inaugurated here when Edmond F. Stratton of New York, a member of the Aero Club of America, arrived and at once opened a bureau to conduct inquiries throughout Eastern Canada, in some part of which the unreported aerostat is believed to have taken ground.

TO FIND THE MISSING MEN

Von Phul May Make Attempt With a Balloon.

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—If Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post, the missing pilots, and their balloon, America II., are not reported by Wednesday morning S. Louis von Phul, as the representative of the Aero Club of St. Louis, will attempt to locate them with the balloon St. Louis III.

This plan was decided upon at a meeting of the board of governors of the Aero club. Von Phul will take with him J. M. O'Reilly, his aide in the international race which started from St. Louis a week ago, and go to Sault Ste. Marie, where the balloon will be inflated and sent north into that part of Canada where Hawley and Post are now supposed to be.

The rescue party will take along a month's provisions and a light collapsible canoe, and they expect to find favorable currents, which will carry them into the wilderness, and make possible the location of the America's crew.

The Aero club officials here are now working on the theory that Hawley and Post are to be found in the country contiguous to James Bay, and north of the Lake Superior region. The messages from Thompsonville, Mich., which indicate that they passed that point Tuesday, going due north, may result in the abandonment of the search to the northeast, especially beyong Kisskissink, Que.

Lewis Spindler, the Aero club's representative, has been ordered by telegraph to proceed to Chapleau, Ont., where he will organize searching parties along the Canadian Pacific railway.

NOT GOING ON THE BENCH

Kellogg Is Not Slated for Associate Justice.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul has left for New York. After remaining there three or four days he will return to Minnesota. During his stay in Washington Mr. Kellogg has had a number of conferences with President Taft, which have excited reports connecting the St. Paul lawyer's name with a place on the bench of the supreme court.

It may be stated upon authority that Mr. Kellogg is not slated for nomination as associate justice. He said that he would continue in the case of the government against the Standard Oil company. This case comes up for argument before the court on Jan. 30. By that time the vacancies in the court will have been filled.

Mr. Kellogg declined to indicate what had transpired during his talks with the president. It is known, however, that the president discussed with Mr. Kellogg the availability of a number of lawyers and judges for the two vacancies in the supreme court.

Whether the Eighth circuit is to be given representation on the bench is not known.

In addition to the supreme court vacancies President Taft must also make nominations for the five places on the bench of the new commerce court. More than a score of availables, among them Judge Mills of the Minnesota warehouse commission, have been proposed for this tribunal.

Boy Has Remarkable Escape.

Black River Falls, Wis., Oct. 25.—A remarkable escape from instant death occurred in this city. A boy fourteen years old put several ounces of powder into a pint bottle and while he held it with one hand applied a lighted match with the other. Not a trace of the bottle could be found and not a drop of blood was shed, but the boy was terribly burned.

Prisoner Attempts Suicide.

Des Moines, Oct. 25.—Fred J. Bailey, who says he was a classmate of Colonel Roosevelt in Harvard, attempted to commit suicide in the county jail by cutting his throat with a razor. Bailey was arrested in Minneapolis a few days ago and is under indictment here charged with embezzlement. County Physician Schope says he will recover.

KELLOGG CALLS ON TAFT

Minnesota Attorney Says He Will Not Succeed Bowers.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Frank Kellogg, after a call on the president, made it very clear to the newspaper men that he would not accept the office of solicitor general to succeed the late Lloyd W. Bowers if it were offered to him. There has been much speculation as to the probability of Mr. Kellogg's appointment, and it is understood in official circles that he could have the office if he would accept it.

Mr. Kellogg explained that he called on the president merely to pay his respects. Late in the afternoon he went for a horseback ride with the president.

CRIPPEN FOUND GUILTY

Convicted of Murdering His Actress Wife.

London, Oct. 23.—Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, the American practitioner and medical agent, was found guilty of the murder of his wife, the American actress, Belle Elmore, and sentenced to death.

The jury was out just thirty minutes. When it returned and announced that it had found the defendant guilty Lord Chief Justice Alverstone asked the physician if he had anything to say. Crippen replied in a low voice:

"I still protest my innocence."

The chief justice then donned the black cap that has rested near him throughout the trial and pronounced the sentence of death. Addressing the condemned man Lord Alverstone said:

"You have been convicted on evidence which can leave no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that you cruelly murdered your wife and then mutilated her body.

"I advise you to entertain no hope that you will escape the consequences of your crime. I implore you to make your peace with Almighty God."

As the lord chief justice concluded a policeman stepped forward and in the hush that had fallen over the courtroom led Crippen from the dock.

Announcement was made that Crippen would be hanged on the morning of Nov. 8.

Crippen received the death sentence with the apparent calmness that characterized him throughout the trial.

PATRICK DOLAN IS KILLED

Well Known Labor Leader Falls Under Train at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Oct. 25.—Patrick Dolan, former president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, was killed instantly while trying to board a moving train at the Fourth avenue station of the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad. Dolan had fallen asleep waiting for the train and was awakened as it was leaving the station. He leaped for one of the coaches despite warnings and was thrown under the wheels.

SIX VICTIMS OF SHIPWRECK

Mail Boat With 250 Passengers Ashore Off South Africa.

Capetown, Oct. 25.—The mail steamer Lisboa, with 250 passengers, was wrecked near Paternoster point, on the west coast of Cape Colony.

Three persons were drowned by the capsizing of a small boat in which they were attempting to leave the wreck. Three passengers also are missing.

The others of the passengers and crew we rescued.

LARGEST VESSEL IN WORLD

Transatlantic Liner Olympic Launched at Belfast.

Belfast, Oct. 21.—The White Star line's new transatlantic liner Olympic, the largest vessel in the world, was launched from the Harland & Wolff shipyard.

The Countess of Aberdeen, wife of the viceroy of Ireland, christened the liner.

PICKED UP AT SEA

Wellman and Crew Compelled to Abandon Airship.

RESCUE IS A THRILLING ONE

Transfer of People From an Aerial Craft to a Steamer Without Parallel in History.

New York, Oct. 19.—Man's first attempt to cross any ocean in an airship has failed, but Walter Wellman, five companions and a kitten, who essayed the voyage, are safe. The airship—the giant America—is a battered aerial derelict, abandoned at sea, perhaps still in the air, perhaps sunk beneath the waves with her costly equipment. When deserted she had been in the air probably seventy-two hours, a new world's record for dirigibles, and, driven by the wind, has traveled doubtless 800 miles. Whether the distance record for dirigibles—870 miles—also will be broken remains to be computed.

Picked up by the steamship Trent off the North Carolina coast Wellman and his fellow air navigators are due in New York today.

They left their craft only because she was in distress and blown so far from the line of transatlantic steamship travel that a continuation of the voyage with the British isles as the objective point was hopeless. So, summoning aid by wireless, the difficult and dramatic transfer to the Trent was accomplished and the America was left to the fate of the winds.

Transferred to the Steamer.

For an incident without parallel in history—the transfer of passengers from an airship to a steamship—meager were the details obtained by wireless. Wireless, at all times more or less uncertain, was rendered more so by the tropical storm which swept northward, but wireless stations in the vicinity of New York picked up from the Trent a word here and a word there, amplifying on the early dispatches.

It was learned that Wellman had found it necessary to rid the airship of the burden of most of its gasoline, retaining only enough to reach land in the event the Trent had not come to the rescue. When the steamship heeded the calls of distress and drew near its aerial sister Wellman shouted his predicament through a megaphone and decided that he would lower his lifeboat, which swung from the dirigible's belly. As a precaution the Trent lowered her lifeboats, which stood by until the transfer was effected and Wellman and his crew, even down to the frightened, squirming kitten, were safe on board the liner, surrounded by the excited passengers.

The America is, or was, 288 feet long and 52 feet in diameter, with a lifting capacity of 23,650 pounds. The envelope alone weighed two tons.

WELLMAN AND PARTY LAND

Arrive In New York After Their Most Eventful Trip.

New York, Oct. 20.—Walter Wellman and his five companions were landed here by the steamship Trent, which picked them up at sea after they had abandoned their dirigible balloon America and failed in the first attempt ever made to cross the Atlantic through the air.

None of the aeronauts expressed regret for the loss of the America. They agreed that it had served its purpose and taught its lesson. All stand ready to renew the attempt as soon as Wellman and his engineers find a way to conquer the difficulties that brought their trip to its thrilling end last Tuesday morning 400 miles southeast of Sandy Hook.

SIX NEW BISHOPS NAMED

Selections Made by Protestant Episcopal Convention.

Cincinnati, Oct. 21.—The following new bishops were appointed by the Protestant Episcopal general convention now in session in this city:

Rev. Theodore Payne Thurston, rector of St. Paul's church, Minneapolis, to be bishop of East Oklahoma.

Rev. George Allen Beecher of Omaha, to be bishop of Kearney, Neb.

Rev. Francis L. H. Potts, Shanghai, China, to be bishop of Wuhu, China.

Rev. Louis Sanford, Berkley, Cal., to be bishop of San Joaquin, Cal.

Rev. Julius Walker Attwood, Phoenix, Ariz., to be bishop of Arizona.

Rev. Edward A. Temple, Waco, Tex., to be bishop of North Texas.

CAUSES HALF MILLION LOSS

Destructive Fire on River Front at East St. Louis.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 21.—A fire started in the Chicago and Alton freight houses, on the river front, and spread rapidly to neighboring structures of like character, causing a loss of more than $500,000.

The blaze spread to ten tank cars of oil, which exploded, hurling blazing fluid in all directions.

The oil set fire to the Baltimore and Ohio freight warehouse, covering a block. A score of oil tanks in it exploded with a roar that was heard for miles.

MAKES ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

College President Ridicules the Colonel.

HE PLAYS A FINE OLD TUNE

Dr. M. W. Stryker Says That the Former President Is a Great Musician and His Tune Is "I Am It"—Asserts That Roosevelt Regards Himself as an Irreproachable Example of Immaculate Rectitude.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Alton B. Parker and Dr. M. W. Stryker, president of Hamilton college, were the principal speakers at a mass meeting here under the direction of the Democratic association of Utica.

The greatest interest was manifested in the remarks of President Stryker, a lifelong Republican and loyal supporter of Vice President Sherman, who is a trustee of Hamilton college. Dr. Stryker recently announced himself for Dix, the Democratic candidate for governor. He took occasion to devote nearly all of his address to ridicule of Colonel Roosevelt. President Stryker said:

"I resent Roosevelt as a national or state issue. I have had enough of him. He is a mighty hunter, but he cannot have my pelt. He is an attitudinizer and uses the American people as his looking glass. His record shows great lack of ethical perspective and fundamental disregard of law. His own sweet will suffices for him.

Plays a Fine Old Tune.

"He is a great musician. He plays a fine old tune, 'I Am It.' His text is always his own infallibility. He regards himself as an irreproachable example of immaculate rectitude.

"In New York he is one thing and in Kansas another. In Massachusetts he embraces Lodge, in Indiana he puts his arms around Beveridge. In New York he talks against bosses and in Cincinnati he kisses them. One of the most curious things is that he does not realize how funny he is. There may be one who thinks he would be a good Diaz, but few of us would make good Mexicans. He has been preaching disparagement of the supreme court, the final bulwark of our liberty. But it is not a deep disease from which we have been suffering; it is only a rash. Our complexion is clearing. We are on the road to recovery.

"On the 9th of November the watchman on the tower will call out: 'The wind has gone down; all is well.'"

MAKES HIS KEYNOTE SPEECH

McGovern Opens His Campaign at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Oct. 25.—Francis E. McGovern, Republican candidate for governor of Wisconsin, sounded the keynote of the present Republican campaign here in Bohemian Turn hall.

Mr. McGovern paid a glowing tribute to the Republican party and to Senator R. M. La Follette and urged that the votes be cast for candidates for state senate and assembly who would support La Follette for United States senator. He said the Republican party in Wisconsin stands for advancement—that this is the "Wisconsin idea" and that the slogan is progress.

He decried the existence of monopolies, quoting an eminent English economist who has said: "Industries in America no longer belong to the industrialists, but to the financiers." He charged that great fortunes were not acquired honestly and said that monopolies must be either destroyed or controlled in the interests of the people by the people.

He condemned the rule of special interests and praised the state of Wisconsin as one of the leaders in progressive Republicanism.

In speaking of the tariff Mr. McGovern said that the protection of the tariff is primarily intended for labor. He urged a general tariff revision, but not free trade, and said that the present tariff duties are too high.

FENTON G. WARNER INJURED

St. Paul Man Hurt In an Automobile Accident.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 25.—Fenton G. Warner of St. Paul, formerly state oil inspector of Minnesota, met with a serious accident while coming to this city from Wilton in an automobile. The machine was speeding along at about twenty miles an hour when a high culvert was struck. The jolt threw Mr. Warner up out of the seat and he struck his face on the top of the cover. His nose was caught on a brace and torn partly from his face.

He was taken to the hospital here, where four stitches were taken in the wound, and he started for St. Paul.

Killed by His Companion.

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—Harry Johnson, nineteen years old, was shot and killed near Onamia, Minn., when he was mistaken for a wolf by Harry Romain of Minneapolis. The two boys, with James Brown of Minneapolis, were duck hunting.

BROWN AND ANOTHER

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Mr. Jonas Brown was a close student of human nature, and his judgment of man or woman was infallible.

Mr. Brown manufactured shirt waists for women and handkerchiefs for men and women. That was the way he judged them. When he saw a man flourishing one of his make of handkerchiefs that man was all right. When he saw one of his shirt waists on a woman he tipped his hat to her, whether acquainted or not.

Mr. Brown was his own cashier and bookkeeper. None of the young men who applied for the position carried his handkerchiefs, and he had never been bothered with young ladies. The day came, however, when one was brought up on the freight elevator with a lot of boxes. Before he had looked her in the face he had noticed that she had on one of his nonpareil shirt waists and carried one of his three for a quarter handkerchiefs. Her credentials were satisfactory in advance.

Miss Prim was eighteen years old and an orphan. She had never had a place, but she was after one now. She could cashier, bookkeep and typewrite. She would take a low salary for the first six months. Mr. Brown's heart warmed toward her as he looked into her big blue eyes. There were loyalty and honesty there. The idea of low wages also struck a responsive chord. Mr. Brown had always paid low wages and prevented extravagance on the part of his employees. If Miss Prim would come for $5 per week he could get $15 worth of work out of her.

The demure Miss Prim slipped into the office as softly as a mouse. Some of the young men tried to talk with her, but outside of business matters she ignored them. She caught on to her work at once. Mr. Brown didn't rush home that night to tell his wife about the innovation at the office, as some foolish manufacturers would have done. He left it to her to find out. She did find out. On the third day she appeared via the freight elevator and had a look at Miss Prim. She went away without passing judgment, but at the dinner table that evening she said:

"Jacob, look out for her!"

"Who—Miss Prim?"

"She's a cat. She's too demure. She's got a card to play."

A few days later Miss Prim was asked to lunch with Mr. Brown. She timidly asked to be excused and ate her sandwich as she worked.

"Told you so," he said to his wife, with a triumphant air. "Yes, sir, I invited her, and she turned me down."

"Then you look out for her all the more," replied the wife.

It was three or four weeks before Miss Prim was referred to again in the family. Then in answer to an inquiry the husband stated:

"Timid as ever. The other evening when it rained so I offered to take her home in my auto, and she fairly ran for the elevator to get away from me. Every one in the office has asked her to lunch, but she has refused all. Splendid bookkeeper, and what do you suppose happened to the cash the other day?"

"She found it short and wept about it, the little cat, and you told her to never mind."

"Ha, ha, ha! The cash was $10 over, and here it is to buy gloves with. That's the kind of cashier Jacob Brown's got. Miss Prim could have put that money in her pocket, but she didn't."

"Oh, Jacob! What a man—what a man!" exclaimed the wife. "You are rushing headlong to destruction!"

"Brown's shirt waists and Brown's handkerchiefs never deceive."

Two months had gone by when the next and last conversation occurred. Mrs. Brown wanted to know about that little cat and was answered:

"Marie, I must really protest. Same timidity, same retiring attitude. She goes to the bank now, and the paying teller speaks in the highest manner of her business qualifications. She's always correct to a dot! Things are going beautifully—beautifully."

"Oh, you blind man!"

"You know Schwartz, of course. He's worth a million. He saw Miss Prim a few weeks ago when he was in, and yesterday he asked her to be his wife. I left 'em alone, and he asked her."

"And she jumped for him like a cricket, of course."

"Ha, ha, ha! Jumped right away from him like a rabbit. I came back to find her pale and trembling."

"Oh, the kitten—the cat!"

"Even if I were a widower and in love with her I, Jacob Brown, manufacturer of the nonpareil shirt waist and the three for a quarter handkerchiefs, should not dare ask her to be my wife."

Mrs. Brown simply lay back and gasped for breath.

A week later there was excitement in Brown's office. It was Saturday. Miss Prim had gone to the bank with cash and drafts and checks and was to return with the payroll money. She did not return. The police looked in vain. They found out that she hadn't been murdered in the bank, but nothing more.

"Jacob, how much did she get?" asked the wife after one glance at the husband's telltale face.

"About $10,000," he groaned.

"And the cat won't come back?"

"Never again!"

DAVID SANDERS, PUBLIC OWNership (Socialist) Party Candidate for Congress, 9th, Congressional District

Having been approached by many voters of this District, asking what I would do if elected, I make this statement: My aim would be to serve the people of this district, to the best of my ability, and abide by the principles of the Public Ownership platform of Minnesota. Further: secure in the knowledge that the majority of the voters of this district were backing me, it would be an incentive for me to do my duty, persuant to the principles of our party.

My signed and undated resignation is, even now on file with our party Secretary, and as soon as I was founduntrue to the people, and the principles of my party, that recall would be dated, and I would be discharged from the Socialist Party.

Do your old candidates sign their recall, subject to the will of the voters? Ask them. The Socialist candidates could NOT 'dodge' voting on important labor questions, such as the present Congressional incumbent has been in the habit of doing. "He has made good". Look up his record, Mr. voter. He dodged the vote on the eight hour law; voted against compulsory pilotage; against the sixteen hour law; voted for the 'Dick Military' bill; a law which makes every able bodied citizen in this free(?) country of ours, subject to military duty. A law more drastic than the conscript laws of Russia. This infamous law was railroaded thru Congress in 1903 and in 1908 was up for reconsideration to increase the original appropriation of two million dollars, to four million seventy five thousand. And it took just forty minutes to saddle this extra two million seventy five thousand dollars on the voters of this country.

And the present Congressman voted for it.

Why did Mr. Steenerson dodge the eight hour law? In the 9th district, with but very few exceptions, labor unions are unknown. Did our present Congressman lack the moral courage to vote either for, or against this law? But he seems to have suddenly accumlated a wonderous love for the homesteader in this district. We all know they are in need of more than sympathy. They are real pioneers of our country, whether of our timber belts, or our prairie country. During the four years Mr. Steenerson has been in Congress, has he ever shown any inclination to help enact any laws that would benefit the working class, whether of the farm or factory, in any way?

But when it comes to Military, or Navy appropriations, involving millions, (and this in time of peace) Mr. Steenerson is always found voting. HE DOES NOT DODGE THEN. Now Mr. Voter of the 9th district; think just ONCE. Do these military, and navy appropations help you? The public Ownership (Socialist) Party stand for you. As YOUR representative I shall work for YOU, and not for, and at the dictation of some corporation. The principle demands of our party platforms are: 1st. The immediate government relief for the unemployed, by building schools, by reforesting of cut over, and waste lands, by reclamation of arid tracts, and by extending all other useful public works. All persons so employed on such works, shall be employed directly by the government under an eight hour day and at the prevailing union wages. 2nd. The collective ownership of all railroads, telegraph, telephone, steamboats and all other means of social transportation and communication. 3rd. The extension of the public domain to include mines, quarries, oil wells, forests and waterpower. 4th. The absolute freedom of press, speech, and assembly. the improvement of the industrial condition of the workers. 5th. By securing a more effective inspection of workshops, and factories. 6th. By forbidding the employment of children under sixteen years of age. 7th By forbiding the interstate transportation of the products of child labor, and all uninspected factories. 8th. By abolishing official charity, and substituting compulsory insurance against unemployment, illness, accidents, invalidism, old age and death.

POLITICAL DEMANDS

1st. The iniative and referendum, proporational representation, and the right of recall.

2nd. The abolition of the power usurped by the supreme court of the United States to pass upon the constitutionality of legislation enacted by Congress. National laws to be repealed or abrogated only by an act of Congress, or a referendum vote of the people.

3rd. That the constitution be made amendable by majority vote.

4th. That all judges be elected by the people for short terms, and that the power of injunctions shall be curbed by immediate legislation.

5th. The free administration of justice.

CHARACTER.

Character gives weight to one's words and permanence to one's acts. Character secures the confidence of those who employ us, the respect of those above us, the love of those on our level, the loyalty of those beneath. Character is the guinea stamp on the gold, the ring of the genuine coin, the signature at the foot of the portrait.

DAVID B. HILL DEAD

Former Governor of New York Passes Away.

HAD BEEN AILING TWO WEEKS

Appeared to Be Recovering From Billous Attack When Sinking Spell Causes Death.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 21.—David B. Hill, ex-United States senator and former governor of New York, died suddenly at Wolfert's Roost, his country home.

About two weeks ago Mr. Hill was seized with a bilious attack while at his law office in this city and although his condition was not considered serious at the time his physician advised him to remain at home until he recovered. A cold developed and a few days later alarming reports of his condition were circulated. These reports, however, were denied by friends. In fact, the patient appeared to be improving until just before the end, when he suffered a sinking spell which resulted in his death.

In the death of David Bennett Hill another of the country's great men and forceful characters has passed away. Mr. Hill never evaded an issue in politics or statecraft. He thought out the problems which faced him during a long and varied career along his own lines and acted according to his own belief as to what was right. When he had the power he did not hesitate to use extreme measures in carrying out his ideas.

RECORDS IN CASE DELAYED

Court Unable to Act Upon Question of Bail for Deitz.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 20.—A delay in the returning of the records of the hearing the previous day made it impossible for Judge Wickham of Eau Claire to grant the plea of Attorney W. B. Rubin for bail for John Deitz, Mrs. Deitz and Leslie Deitz. The attorney came to this city under the impression that the records had been returned. When he brought his clients into the courtroom, however, and stated his case to the judge the latter informed him that he had no jurisdiction, inasmuch as he had not been officially notified by Judge Riordan of Hayward that the prisoners had been bound over to the circuit court. Judge Wickham offered to go to Hayward and hear the plea at any time after the records were returned and the date was set for next Wednesday.

Attorney Rubin was more disappointed at the delay than were his clients. He arranged for them to get comfortable lodging in the local jail.

TWO HUNDRED PERISH

Tidal Wave Sweeps Over City of Casamicciola.

Rome, Oct. 25.—The ministry of the interior has received word of a tidal wave at Casamicciola on the Island of Ischia that drowned 200 persons. Communication with the island has been interrupted and verification of the report is impossible.

The ministry of the interior has ordered four men of war to hurry to the scene with men and supplies.

Casamicciola is twelve miles southwest of Pozzuoli at the foot of Mount Epomeo. It was nearly destroyed by an earthquake in July, 1883, when about 1,700 lives were lost. It has since been rebuilt and has a population of about 4,000.

SEARCH FOR MISSING MEN

Two Participants in Bolloon Race Not Yet Heard From.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 25.—An organized effort to locate Alan Hawley and Augustus Post, crew of the missing balloon America II., was inaugurated here when Edmond F. Stratton of New York, a member of the Aero Club of America, arrived and at once opened a bureau to conduct inquiries throughout Eastern Canada, in some part of which the unreported aerostat is believed to have taken ground.

SENATOR SHIVELY IS ILL

Toe May Be Amputated to Prevent Blood Poisoning.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 25.—United States Senator Benjamin F. Shively, who has been suffering from an infection of a toe, which followed the paring of a corn, was sent to bed in his home in the city by his physicians and it was announced that to prevent danger of blood poisoning the toe probably would be amputated. The senator's speaking dates in Indiana have been cancelled.

New York, Oct. 21.—Thomas Thompson Eckert, former president of the Western Union Telegraph company, died at West End, Long Branch, after an illness of several days. Mr. Eckert was born at St. Clairsville, O., April 23, 1825.

BASEBALL CHAMPIONS

Philadelphia Athletics Defeat Chicago Cubs.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—To the Philadelphia club of the American league belongs the baseball championship of the world. They clinched the big pennant fast by winning the fifth game of the series by a score of 7 to 2. Five games were played and the Eastern youngsters took four of them by outbatting and outrushing the veteran Chicagoans. The score by innings of the final game follows:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia, ... | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 5 | 0 | —7 |

The total receipts for the series were $173,980. The two clubs receive $34,755 each, while $17,398 goes to the national commission. The total paid attendance was 125,219 persons.

Similarity.

"What a noisy thing that bass drum is!" remarked the clarinet disgustedly.

"Yes," replied the trombone; "just like a human being, isn't it?"

"Like a human being?"

"Yes; it's the one with the big head that makes the most noise."—London Telegraph.

Shaking Hands.

Few people know how to shake hands well. The general run of folk either give a limp paw and allow it to be shaken or else grasp yours in theirs and nearly dislocate it with their violence.—London World.

A Traveler's Tale.

The early explorers of the Brazils brought back some strange tales. One of the most curious of those which Mr. Guy Rothery recalls in his book on "The Amazons" is of a race of men "whose feet were turned the wrong way round, so that if any one attempted to follow in their tracks the pursuers were misled, actually receding from those whom they desired to catch up."

An Editor's Love Letter—"Dear darling delipuent! Our precious subscriber in arrears! You are so shy! Do you think we have sold out and gone? No little sugar-plum we could not get away if we wanted to. We are still at the same old stand dishing out advertisers on sweet promises and bright expectations.

They make an excellent diet, darling, with a little pudding flavored with a word of encouragement to serve as a dessert. We are waiting and watching for thee, our turtle dove. We long to hear thy gentle footsteps on the stairway below and to hear the ring of the happy dollar within our office. Dear one, we feel unusually sad and lonely without you dear. Now little pie-crust, will you come? Do we hear you answer in a voice so sweet and beguiling, "I'm comming," or is it only the winds that around our office roar? We pause for further development."

MAN SHOT BUT RIDES 40 MILES.

The second serious hunting accident near Cass Lake within the past few day occured yesterday afternoon about forty miles east of Cass Lake when Andrew Jondahl of that village was accidentally shot.

Mr. Jondal and "Capt." Hayes also of the same place, were out hunting in the eastern end of Cass county, and the accident occured while Jondahl was walking through a swamp comming to ward Hayes, who was standing on a log holding a gun in his hands when he slipped and fell the gun stricking the log and being discharged.

One of the buckshots with which the gun was loaded entered Jondahls right sholder and taking a downward course after entering lodged at the base of his lung.

Being so far away from medical attention the trip to Cass Lake was made under trying circumstances. The first eight miles of the trip was made in a row-boat, up stream, to Remler, a small station on the Soo Line, where a handcar was chartered for the trip to Federal Dam. Here a team was engaged for the crosscountry ride to Bena, where the rest of the trip was made by train.

Arriving at Cass Lake Jondahl's wound was dresced, but the shot could not be extracted. The injured man is doing well and unless complications set will recover.

Crookston Times.

Tuberculosis.

Feeding experiments, conducted by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington have conclusively proven that hogs are readily infected with tuberculosis through taking into the stomach the faeces and milk from infected cattle, Meat-inspection figures show that about one per cent of the cattle and more than two per cent of the hogs slaughtered are tuberculous. This condition is certainly alarming, and should appeal to farmers to provide the best sanitary surrondings and conditions for their stock. Pure air, sunshine and wholesome food are the best preventatives against diseases in hogs can be materially reduced by eradicating it from cattle or by segregating them.

---

We lose sight of many things by holding them close to the eye. This the state has done and is now doing when it estimates the total of its growing school fund, and misses the simple fact that under presedt methods of administration of the state land, the fund grows only by wringing blood money out of the settlers thru a method of opening up that does not develop markets, that does not provide roads, not school nor society, that does not acquaint the settler with the possibilities of his land, but that does levy upon him and upon his childen the unseen but no less gigantic tax of creating all these things, to the enchancement of the values of adjacent state land.

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, special governor agent, who has been raising hob with saloons in various parts of the state on account of sales of liquor to Indians has begun an action for libel against the Cass Lake Times.

There's blood on the moon as viewed from Cass Lake.

OUR LIFE.

Our life is like the life of a tree—again and again stripped of every sign of life that it has put forth and yet which still has gathered all those apparent failures into the success of one long, continuous growth.—Phillips Brooks.

How Plants Remain Upright.

If a flowerpot is laid on its side the stalk of the plant growing in it gradually curves upward until it resumes the vertical position. This is called geotropic curvature, and the question is by what means the plant is stimulated to change its direction of growth. One theory avers that movable starch grains in the plant cells fall to the lower side as the position is changed and by their pressure influence the mechanism of growth.

Notice to Patrons.

I hereby announce to all the patrons of the Plummer Pioneer that I have leased said paper to Odin Berg for one year beginning Nov. 1st 1910, and that all bills shall be paid by him, and that he is hereby authorized to make all collection. Trusting you will give him your support liberally for a better paper and a more prosperous village I beg to remain.

Very truly yours.
E. L. Quist, owner.

Hotel Scotland Open

Hotel Scotland who has now for some time been closed, but is now rented by Mr. H. H. Finrow, and the new proprietor took immediate possession and opened the doors on Thursday. Mr. Finrow has been in hotel business here before for some time, and is no stranger to the general public. He can no doubt be depended upon to care for the trade satisfactorily.

Where He Made His Money.

Years ago a gentleman settled in the south of England and became very popular in the neighborhood The county families could never discover how he had made his money. but were satisfied by his solemn assurance that it was not in trade. Nothing could exceed the ordinary gravity of his demeanor, which indeed caused him to be placed on the commission of peace, but now and then, without any apparent provocation, he would burst into such a laugh as no one ever heard before except in one place. Where they could have heard it puzzled the county families for five and twenty years, but at last he was betrayed unconsciously by his own grandchild, who, after a visit to a traveling circus, innocently exclaimed, "Why, grandpa laughs just like the clown!"—James Payn.

Her Conclusion.

"I've got my opinion of a woman that can't cook," growled William De Kikkur, glaring at his better half. "I suppose that if our cook would get married I'd starve to death!"

"You needn't worry about that, William," said Mrs. De K. gently. "Our cook has been married once, and I don't consider it at all likely that she would care to"—

But her irate spouse had slammed the door behind him.—Cleveland Leader.

A Tough Meal.

It was a perilous honor to be a tradesman to the court of Philip II of Spain. His son Don Carlos, of whose eccentricities Mr. A. S. Rappoport tells in his "Mad Majesties," was once supplied by the royal shoemaker with an ill fitting pair of boots. Thereupon Don Carlos went into a [illegible] fury, "ordered the boots to be cut up into small pieces, cooked and sent over to the shoemaker for him to eat. According to some accounts, the latter was actually forced to swallow his own boots."

Could Not Deny It.

"I will ask you," said the lawyer, who was trying to throw doubts on the testimony of a witness, "if you have ever been indicted for any offense against the law?"

"I never have, sir."

"Have you ever been arrested on a charge of any kind?"

"Never."

"Well, have you ever been suspected of committing a crime?"

"I'd rather not answer that question."

"Ha! You would rather not. I thought so. I insist upon your answering it. Have you ever been suspected of crime?"

"Yes, sir; often. Every time I come home from a trip abroad the customs inspectors at New York city suspect me of being a smuggler."—Chicago Tribune.

The Devil of the Desert.

It is not generally known how a devil rides a camel, but Mr Hans Vicher acquired the information and imparts it in his volume, "Through the Sahara." One night a camel suddenly ran amuck. Other camels followed suit and a general panic ensued. "The frightened yells of my escort told me that a ghoul, a wicked demon of the desert, had seized the camel. I was told how these evil spirits sometimes took a fancy to mount a camel; the camel would then look to see who was digging it in the ribs, and, perceiving no one, fear would grip its heart, for then it knew that the devil was on its back."

Malleable Glass of the Egyptians.

Strabo and Josephus both affirm that the Egyptian glass workers were so well skilled in their art that they imitated the amethyst and other precious stones to perfection. Malleable glass was one of the secret arts of the ancients, the formula for making it being now reckoned as lost. Strabo mentions a cup of glass which could be hammered into any desired shape, the material of which it was composed being as ductile as lead.

WOULD LET PEOPLE DECIDE

County Option Means That Residents Shall Have a Voice in Regulating the Traffic.

The Democratic candidate for governor is not making an anti-saloon fight. He is in favor of the passage of a county option law, and if elected governor will recommend the passage of such a law to the legislature. But he holds, and holds rightly, that the mere passage of such a law will not close a single saloon in the state. Such a law, if passed, will, however, give the people of any county the right to say whether they will have saloons in the counties or not. Under such a law, if a majority of the people want saloons, the counties of Brown, Carver, Blue Earth, Stearns, Winona and others would have them in plenty. On the other hand, if a majority didn't want them, they would be shut out. It is not a question of prohibition; it is not even a question of temperance. It is simply putting it up to the people. Letting them decide it for themselves, instead of having the brewers decide it for them.

There have been oceans of rot written about the county option movement, and the meaning of the term "county option." The word "option" means choice; therefore "county option" is simply county choice. It is not of itself for the saloon or against them. If a county option law is put on the statute books such an enactment will not close a saloon in Minnesota. It will, however, give the people of any county the right to say whether or not saloons shall be licensed. In other words, it puts it up to the people to decide.

The brewery agent says he is in favor of local option. That the city, the village, the township, under existing conditions, may vote for the exclusion of the saloon, and he is against further change—the brewer favors things as they are.

His statement is only partly true as to conditions. It is true that under existing conditions the village and the township can exclude the saloon, but as a rule the cities can not. For instance: The 1907 Minnesota Blue Book gives a list of seventy-one organized cities in Minnesota, with an aggregate population of 786,898. This is 39 per cent of the entire population of the state. Of these seventy-one organized cities only eleven, under their charters, can vote directly on the exclusion of the saloon. These eleven minor cities have a combined population of 38,496. So, as a matter of fact, there is better than a third of the people of the state who are absolutely disfranchised as far as voting on the liquor question is concerned. This is what the brewers call "local option." The contention of the Democratic candidate for governor is that this condition puts too much power in the hands of the brewers, and leaves too little with the people. He is against such a proposition now and all the time.

Then there is another phase of this situation even more serious. The brewers are merging the saloon business into a trust. Years ago the saloon was owned by the individual, who was usually a fair sort of a citizen in the community in which he lived. It was to his interest to make the business as respectable as possible. Now the saloons are owned largely by the big brewers, and are run by hired men who get a percentage on the business done, and it is their policy to take all in sight, regardless of right or decency. This is one reason for the growing opposition to the saloon.

The brewery trust is also responsible for the organized entrance of the saloon in politics. The saloon now has more "owned" men in the Minnesota legislature than any other big interest. They vote these men of theirs solidly on all questions concerning the liquor traffic. Nor are they satisfied with their services for themselves alone. They hawk their services to other interests. It is a clear case of legislative prostitution—of barter and sale.

How long does the voter believe such conditions can exist without bringing public disgrace to the fair name of the state?

Now is the time to stop it. Mr. Eberhart is receiving the support of the big brewers and liquor dealers in the state. Are you going to add yours? Will you lend your aid to this work?

Do you want Minnesota to be of the breweries, for the breweries and by the breweries?

Does not the fact that all the railroad presidents are supporting the Republican candidate for governor bear out La Follette's charge that "Eberhart is nothing but the errand boy of the railroads?"

Who did Eberhart and the state administration support in the primary fight of the progressives against the standpat candidates for congress in Minnesota?

NON-PARTISANS CONDEMN EBERHART

Distinguished Republicans and Democrats Tell Story of His Enslavement by the Interests.—Ed. Smith Would Weld His Hold on People of the State.

Four distinguished citizens of Minneapolis have performed a public duty. They have issued a statement over their own signatures running through the record of Senator E. E. Smith, who is chairman of the Republican state central committee and campaign manager for Gov. Eberhart. These men are former Gov. John Lind, Democrat; D. C. Bell, a prominent investment banker and philanthropist, Republican; S. A. Stockwell, former state senator and civic leader, Democrat; and A. W. Rankin, head of the college of pedagogy at the state university and widely known educator, Republican. These men are actuated solely by a sense of public service. None is a candidate for office and one (Gov. Lind) only recently declined a nomination which meant an election as governor. All these are men identified with the state, its people and its future welfare.

They tell the story of the shame of Minnesota. They disclose the existence of a pool or combination which has for at least four years absolutely dominated and controlled the enactment of every piece of legislation. They show beyond any doubt the existence of this combination. They recite the record of Senator Smith, its recognized head and guiding spirit, and trace his steps from the management of this sinister organization to the enlarged field wherein by the election of Gov. Eberhart he will fasten his hold upon the entire people of the state. The story is told calmly, dispassionately and with truth so convincing that no argument can successfully assail it. The election of the present governor, surrounded as he is by these influences which made him their willing servitor as lieutenant governor, will bind the people of the state to predatory interests for years to come.

The men who issue this statement do not suggest a remedy. They but point out the danger that confronts Minnesota. The Democratic state central committee believes in these men. It has faith that they would not make these charges if they were not true. It offers as its candidate for governor James Gray, a man against whom nothing has been said in this campaign and nothing can be said. Gray has taken the people of the state into his confidence. He has told them where he stands on every issue. Gov. Eberhart has evaded every issue. If he has any views on any public question he has not given them. The Democratic party offers Mr. Gray as a candidate believing that with him as governor there will be no legislative pool, there will be no special service for special interests and that popular government will be restored.

The statement signed by Gov. Lind, Mr. Bell, Senator Stockwell and Professor Rankin is appended:

THE STATEMENT.

"For several sessions the Minnesota legislature has been dominated by an organized band of most unprogressive politicians. Through the manipulations of these men such special interests as the Minnesota Liquor Dealers' Association, the railroad ring, a number of public utility companies and other predatory corporations have controlled legislation and prevented reforms, both moral and economic.

"Believing that the great mass of the people were in ignorance of these conditions, Lynn Haines, Secretary of the Minnesota Citizens' League, published a book, 'The Minnesota Legislature of 1909,' which exposed the personnel and purpose of the politicians who had so grossly misrepresented their constituents.

"This volume, together with other reform influences, so aroused the people that at the primary elections they defeated, with few exceptions, the members of the old stand-pat machine who were candidates for re-election.

"Some whose pernicious political acts and affiliations had been exposed did not dare to ask the voters for another term. Among the professional politicians who thus retired voluntarily or were defeated at the primaries are included practically every member who had been a leader or lieutenant of the stand-pat machine. These eliminations mean that the Aldrich-Cannon kind of machine has been almost completely demolished in the Minnesota legislature.

"But here is the rub. The recognized leader of all these special interest-professional political forces in the legislature was Senator E. E. Smith of Minneapolis. He and his organization have been driven out of the legislature, but they are now attempting to fortify and perpetuate their reign higher up—in the governorship. Senator Smith, the discredited legislative representative of the breweries and public service companies, is in absolute control of the Eberhart campaign and, if it is successful, will undoubtedly be the guiding force of the Eberhart administration.

SENATOR SMITH'S RECORD.

"In the chapter in which members of both House and Senate are characterized, Mr. Haines says of Senator Smith: 'The recognized leader of the corporation forces in the legislature; needs no detailed mention here because preceding chapters have shown his powers and pernicious public character; voted for the Hinton bill.'

"No informed person will dispute that Senator Smith commanded and controlled the special interest machine in the legislature. His vote on a few questions furnishes corroborative evidence that he was an unprogressive politician who stood consistently for predatory corporations:

"REFORMING THE RULES—Smith voted against the attempt to change the Cannonized methods of legislation, the change being designed to prevent the smothering and distorting of bills in committees.

"ELECTION MEASURES—Smith voted to repeal the primary election law and to repeal the corrupt practices act; he voted against extending the primary and against the direct election of United States Senators.

"LIQUOR LEGISLATION—Smith voted with the organized brewery influence on every proposition. He supported the Alderman bill which operates to give big breweries a firmer hold on communities, both commercially and politically.

"THE HINTON BILL—Smith voted for this infamous measure which was framed in the direct interest of the breweries and railroad ring as to make it a misdemeanor for any individual or reform organization to secure pre-election pledges from candidates.

"RAILROAD REFORMS—Smith voted against the people and for the railroads as often as he had opportunity. He voted against bills to regulate and prevent discriminations in freight rates; he voted against the 16-hour resolution; he voted for amendments to the two-cent fare bill which made it more favorable for the railroads; he voted against 'the full crew bill;' he voted against railroad employees also on the bill providing for automatic couplers; he voted against the reciprocal demurrage bill.

"AGAINST ROOSEVELT—Smith voted in the negative on a resolution endorsing President Roosevelt against the slurs and accusations of Harriman and urging congress to support the president and pass laws giving the government more control over the transportation trusts.

"We believe that the voters of the state should understand about the legislative life and influence of the politician whom Governor Eberhart insisted should manage his campaign.

"Governor Eberhart is notoriously weak and pliant in the hands of such brewery representatives as Senator Smith. As Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Eberhart not only did nothing to oppose the operations of the Smith machine, but he gave direct assistance to their schemes by placing Smith and other reactionaries in charge of the important committees.

"The signers of this are a self-constituted committee whose interest in the campaign is that of non-partisan citizens who desire that politicians like Smith shall be driven out of control of the governorship as they have been driven out of the legislature.

"JOHN LIND, "S. A. STOCKWELL,
"DAVID C. BELL. "A. W. RANKIN.

Red Tape and Matrimony.

Some of the reasons why a Frenchman may not marry are given by a correspondent of a Paris newspaper. He has been trying to get married for three years and has not yet succeeded. French marriage law is a tricky thing to deal with. If the prospective bridegroom has not lived more than six months at his address at the time of the marriage he must get a certificate signed by the landlord and concierge of every house where he has lived previously till he gets back to one where he did live for six months. Birth certificates are required and the written consent of parents.

As no paper must bear a date more than two months old, it often happens that the marriage must be postponed to get the papers renewed. The man who had been foiled for three years once succeeded in making all his papers correct, when he was called up for his periodical term of military service, and this threw his papers out of date.

Another time he arrived before the mayor with his bride, but the ceremony was not performed, as a certificate of his first wife's death was not forthcoming.

Fascination of the Third Rail.

"You can talk all you want about the way some people want to jump off tall buildings, but the men who walk the elevated tracks can sympathize with them," said a man the other day whose business it is to work along the elevated railroad lines and see that everything is in good condition.

"Trackwalkers often have the same impulse to step on the third rail that climbers have to jump. You walk along and see that shining rod of steel and watch the sunlight glisten on it, and then the thought comes to you, 'If I step on that it will kill me,' and then you wonder how it would feel to just put your toe on it. Of course a fellow shakes those ideas off his mind, but they keep coming back, and I have known more than one man who has quit his job because he was afraid that he couldn't fight off much longer the impulse to stand on the track and put the other foot on the third rail, and when I hear of a trackwalker being killed by the third rail I wonder if the fascination of the third rail got the better of him."—New York Sun.

The Title "Esquire."

The title "esquire" is derived from the French word ecuyer (a shield bearer) and originated in the old days of chivalry, when, as is well known, each knight appointed one or more persons of gentle birth to carry his shield and perform other honorable services. These persons were known as squires, or, more accurately, esquires, and were of such birth as would permit of their being in their turn created knights when they should have merited the distinction by deeds of valor or otherwise. In the reign of Richard II. the status of an esquire was granted for the first time by letters patent as a title of honor merely, no duties being attached. This method of creation is now obsolete, but it marks an advanced stage in the decay of chivalry, which decay resulted in the titles "knight" and "esquire" becoming wholly honorary.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Parson Bird.

Among the feathered inhabitants of New Zealand there is a bird called the parson bird, or tui. It is about the size and shape of a blackbird, but has a pair of delicate white tufts at its throat and is a glossy dark green otherwise, which looks black in the sunshine. It can be taught to crow, to speak, to whistle tunes, and, besides these tricks, it has a repertory which is not often equaled by any other feathered songster. At vespers it has a note like the toll of a bell or the clear, high note of an organ. It can mimic every bird in the bush to perfection. It will break off in the middle of an exquisite melody and indulge in a strange melody of sounds which are impossible to describe, but if you can imagine "the combination of a cough, a laugh, a sneeze, with the smashing of a pane of glass," it will be some approach to the idea.

DAVID SANDERS, PUBLIC OWNership (Socialist) Party Candidate for Congress, 9th, Congressional District

Having been approached by many voters of this District, asking what I would do if elected, I make this statement: My aim would be to serve the people of this district. to the best of my ability, and abide by the principles of the Public Ownership platform of Minnesota. Further: secure in the knowledge that the majority of the voters of this district were backing me, it would be an incentive for me to do my duty, persuant to the principles of our party.

My signed and undated resignation is, even now on file with our party Secretary, and as soon as I was founduntrue to the people, and the principles of my party, that recall would be dated, and I would be discharged from the Socialist Party.

Do your old candidates sign their recall, subject to the will of the voters? Ask them. The Socialist candidates could NOT 'dodge' voting on important labor questions, such as the present Congressional incumbent has been in the habit of doing. "He has made good". Look up his record, Mr. voter. He dodged the vote on the eight hour law; voted against compulsory pilotage; against the sixteen hour law; voted for the 'Dick Military' bill; a law which makes every able bodied citizen in this free(?) country of ours, subject to military duty. A law more drastic than the conscript laws of Russia. This infamous law was railroaded thru Congress in 1903 and in 1908 was up for reconsideration to increase the original appropriation of two million dollars, to four million seventy five thousand. And it took just forty minutes to saddle this extra two million seventy five thousand dollars on the voters of this country.

And the present Congressman voted for it.

Why did Mr. Steenerson dodge the eight hour law? In the 9th district, with but very few exceptions, labor unions are unknown. Did our present Congressman lack the moral courage to vote either for, or against this law? But he seems to have suddenly accumulated a wonderous love for the homesteader in this district. We all know they are in need of more than sympathy. They are real pioneers of our country, whether of our timber belts, or our prairie country. During the four years Mr. Steenerson has been in Congress, has he ever shown any inclination to help enact any laws that would benefit the working class, whether of the farm or factory, in any way?

But when it comes to Military, or Navy appropriations, involving millions, (and this in time of peace) Mr. Steenerson is always found voting. HE DOES NOT DODGE THEN. Now Mr. Voter of the 9th district; think just ONCE. Do these military, and navy appropriations help you? The public Ownership (Socialist) Party stand for you. As YOUR representative I shall work for YOU, and not for, and at the dictation of some corporation. The principle demands of our party platforms are: 1st. The immediate government relief for the unemployed, by building schools, by reforesting of cut over, and waste lands, by reclamation of arid tracts, and by extending all other useful public works. All persons so employed on such works, shall be employed directly by the government under an eight hour day and at the prevailing union wages. 2nd. The collective ownership of all railroads, telegraph, telephone, steamboats and all other means of social transportation and communication. 3rd. The extension of the public domain to include mines, quarries, oil wells, forests and waterpower. 4th. The absolute freedom of press, speech, and assembly. the improvement of the industrial condition of the workers. 5th. By securing a more effective inspection of workshops, and factories. 6th. By forbidding the employment of children under sixteen years of age. 7th By forbiding the interstate transportation of the products of child labor, and all uninspected factories. 8th. By abolishing official charity, and substituting compulsory insurance against unemployment, illness, accidents, invalidism, old age and death.

POLITICAL DEMANDS

1st. The iniative and referendum, proporational representation, and the right of recall.

2nd. The abolition of the power usurped by the supreme court of the United States to pass upon the constitutionality of legislation enacted by Congress. National laws to be repealed or abrogated only by an act of Congress, or a referendum vote of the people.

3rd. That the constitution be made amendable by majority vote.

4th. That all judges be elected by the people for short terms, and that the power of injunctions shall be curbed by immediate legislation.

5th. The free administration of justice.

EBERHART BACKED BY THE INTERESTS

Ed. Smith, Corporation Political Leader, Manager of "Errand Boy's" Campaign.

WORKED FOR "THE SYSTEM"

Legislative Record of the Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

In making a choice of candidates it is necessary to take into consideration the character of the men, their reputations for honesty of purpose and fidelity to public trust. The best method of determining this is by scrutinizing the past public record of the candidate.

This holds good with respect to the candidates for governor as well as for other offices.

In this campaign Mr. Eberhart must be judged by what he did or failed to do as a member of the state senate and as lieutenant governor, and by the character of the men with whom he has chosen to ally himself.

As we have pointed out before, the last legislature was to all intents and purposes controlled by a combination of big business interests, including the Steel Trust or Standard Oil, the Railroads, the Brewers' Trust, and the Twin City Rapid Transit Company. This combination may be called The System. Its principal agent was Senator E. E. Smith of Minneapolis, who commanded and directed the band of politicians who manipulated things in both houses of the legislature. Lieutenant Governor A. O. Eberhart was one of Smith's lieutenants, as the record clearly shows.

Smith Organized the Senate.

Theoretically, the lieutenant governor appoints the committees of the senate, but in the last session it is a well known fact that Smith named the committees which Eberhart was permitted to announce. The same was true of the patronage of the senate, or the appointment of men to hold the petty jobs, such as committee clerkships, etc. No senator thought of going to Eberhart, the presiding officer, for a place for a constituent or friend. He went to Ed. Smith, and Smith decided his fate. He dictated the slate that was put through.

Smith placed himself at the head of the committee on taxes and tax laws. D. S. Hall of Renville county, a reliable member of the pool, was made chairman of the railroad committee, Calhoun of Minneapolis, the faithful slave of Chief Smith, headed the committee on municipal corporations, the committee which dealt with franchise matters; Dunn, representative of Billy Hamm, the brewer, headed the committee on elections. And so on all through the list of committees. The representatives of Big Business headed and dominated every committee, nominally appointed by Lieutenant Governor Eberhart, actually dictated by Ed. Smith.

If anything further is necessary to prove the absolute subserviency of Smith to the corporations, and his faithlessness to the interests of the people, just consider his record on bills. Here are a few instances:

H. F. 1190, A Bill for an Act relating to Railroad Freight Rates in the State of Minnesota, and defining certain duties of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. (See Senate Journal 1178, 1907). This was a bill to regulate freight rates in Minnesota. When the bill was considered in the Senate 3 votes were cast against it. These three senators were Calhoun, Dunn and Smith.

On Saturday, April 20th, a resolution endorsing President Roosevelt against the slurs and accusations of E. H. Harriman, and urging the senators and representatives to congress for Minnesota to assist the president in passing laws for the control by the government of railroads of the United States, and to regulate all corporations engaged in interstate commerce, was defeated. Senator Smith voted against the resolution endorsing President Roosevelt. Page 1421 Journal of the Senate 1907).

On Feb. 26th, 1907, an attempt was made to amend the 2 cent fare bill, so that the railroads would be able to charge 2½ cents a mile. Only ten votes were cast for the amendment. Among those voting for the amendment were Senators Dunn and Smith. (Page 417 Senate Journal 1907). On the same day an attempt was made to give the Railroad and Warehouse Commission power to raise the passenger rates on railroads when the railroads could prove that 2 cents a mile was too low. Senator Smith was one of the three senators who voted for this amendment.

On March 12, 1907, Senate Journal Page 578—H. F. 5, which was a bill for an act to authorize and empower the Board of Control of State Institutions to establish and maintain a factory for the manufacture of rakes, mowers, harvesters, binders, etc., at the state prison at Stillwater. The bill passed by a vote of 38 to 10. Senator Smith was one of the ten senators who voted against the bill.

On Thursday, March 27, Senate Journal 1907, p. 830, the senate was considering for final passage H. F. 2, known as the reciprocal demurrage bill, which provided for a penalty upon railroads for their failure to furnish cars and transfer the same. There were 9 votes against the bill. Senator Smith was one of them.

During the session 1909 H. F. 334, which was a bill declaring that the state of Minnesota was the owner of all mineral lands lying beneath the waters of public meandered lakes. The Steel Trust was very much opposed to this bill, for it did not want the state to own any of this land. However, the bill passed by a vote of 34 to 26. Senator Smith voted against this bill, which was against the rights of the people of Minnesota and for the Steel Trust. (Page 344, S. J. 1909).

On March 11, 1909, S. J., page 604, Senator Smith voted for a bill that would have legalized trusts in Minnesota, and which would have been against the interest of the people.

It may be asked, "What has this to do with the candidacy of Eberhart for the governorship?

It has everything to do with it.

Smith's influence over Eberhart did not cease with the close of the legislative session. Seeing the handwriting on the wall, Smith failed to become a candidate for re-election to the senate, whereupon, at the insistent demand of Eberhart and against the open protests of other candidates on the same ticket, he was made chairman of the Republican state central committee and is now managing Eberhart's campaign.

Since Eberhart was made governor by the tragic death of John A. Johnson, Smith has been the executive's chief confidential adviser.

Should Eberhart be elected Nov. 8, Smith, the personal representative of the Big Business interests, will continue to dominate the affairs of the executive department of the state government in the same manner that he dominated the last legislature.

Eberhart Weak and Vacillating.

The weak, vacillating character of Eberhart is most clearly shown in his record and present attitude on the question of county option. Here is the record again, from the journal of the senate, session of 1903:

Voted for County Option.

S. F. No. 298. "A bill for an act to provide for the submission to the legal voters of the counties of Minnesota the question whether license to sell intoxicating liquors shall be granted within such counties, to suppress places in such counties in which intoxicating liquors are handled in violation of the law and to provide suitable penalties for violation of this act." (A county option bill).

Introduced by Mr. Sundberg March 4, 1903

Reported for indefinite postponement by the temperance committee April 3, 1903.

Motion was made to adopt report.

Motion was made by Senator Sundberg to print Senate File No. 298 and place the same on general orders. Ayes 14, noes 40.

Senator Eberhart voted "Aye."

Later, when presiding officer of the last senate, submitting to the dictation of Smith, he appointed a temperance committee packed eight to one against county option, knowing that a bill providing for that proposition was to be presented.

Now he comes when a candidate for governor and straddles the question by declining to say whether he is for or against county option. He was first for, then against, and now on both sides of the question. Could a more weak and vacillating record and attitude be imagined?

Record Furnishes Real Issue.

The matters of record herein referred to may be easily verified by any one sufficiently interested to look them up in the senate journal. They are facts and cannot be controverted. In the light of these revelations Mr. Eberhart's candidacy must be judged. The issues are befogged by pleas for party loyalty, and big talk about conservation. The record furnishes the only real issue. Do you wish to continue in the office of governor, the highest and most honorable in the gift of the people of the state, a man whose official record and his present political associations prove him to be bound hand and foot to a combination of big business interests hostile to every movement for reform?

This is the real question to be decided by your vote on Nov. 8.

Millions Against Gray.

The Sleepy Eye Herald-Dispatch says the big brewery interests of the United States, the Anhauser Busch-Schlitz-Pabst-Hamm, and other great interests, representing hundreds of millions of dollars, will place a million dollars in Minnesota to defeat Gray. Well, maybe they will succeed, but the whole people will not lay down this fight until brewery domination in American politics is crushed. This paper is not advocating the principles of so called county option, but we do protest in the most vigorous manner all forms of corporate influence in politics in this state, together with Billy Hamm and his emissaries in their effort to beat Gray.

GRAHAME-WHITE WINS

Captures International Event at Aviatian Meet.

Belmont Park, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Claude Grahame-White of the English team was the winner in the James Gordon Bennett international speed trophy. His time for the 62.1-mile course was 1 hour, 1 minute and 4.03 seconds.

Alexander Ogilvie of the English team essayed the flight, but gave it up after covering several laps.

The best French challengers and American defenders are in the hospital because of accidents. Brookins of the Wright team lost control of his machine and shot to earth, whirling end over end at terrific speed. His machine is a total wreck.

Le Blanc, the champion of the French team, was tossed from his course in a gust of wind, cut his machine in two against a telegraph pole and was hurled to the ground.

Latham, in his 100-horsepower Antoinette, got such a fright when the wind almost blew him into the crowd that he quit precipitately in the fifteenth round. The tips of his great wings came not ten feet from the heads of the crowd which lined the turn into the far stretch.

BAIL IS FIXED AT $40,000

Deitz Will Be Released When Bond Is Furnished.

Hayward, Wis., Oct. 27.—John F. Deitz can once more, for a short time at least, ramble through the meadows and woodland at Cameron dam unmolested by the officers of the law, provided he can secure an acceptable bail bond in the sum of $40,000. Judge James Wickham, contrary to the expectations of many, but with the full consent of J. C. Davis, district attorney, and L. M. Sturdevant, associate counsel, decided that the famous defender of Cameron dam was entitled to his liberty, pending his trial for the murder of Oscar Harp, if he could secure bondsmen.

The bail of Leslie Deitz was fixed at $10,000, and Attorney W. C. Zabel says that a suitable bond in that sum will be immediately forthcoming from his friends in Milwaukee.

The bond of Mrs. Deitz was fixed at $4,000, and was immediately furnished by W. W. Deitz and Henry Deitz, brothers of John F. Deitz. Mrs. Deitz, however, created no little surprise by refusing to accept her liberty, preferring to remain in jail with her husband until he, too, secured his temporary release.

FIVE LABORERS ARE KILLED

Twenty-one Others Injured in a Collision.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 28.—Five laborers were killed and twenty-one injured in a collision between a runaway work car and a flat car on the United Railways, about twenty miles northwest of Portland. The men were all foreigners.

The accident occurred at the west portal of the Toalitan tunnel, on the Tillamook extension of the road.

BIG STEAMER IS WRECKED

Vessel Had Cargo of Coffee Valued at $1,500,000.

New Orleans, Oct. 30.—The steamer Santos, with a cargo of coffee valued at $1,500,000, was wrecked off the southern coast of Cuba, according to a cable received here by agents. The crew and forty passengers were removed and taken to Savannah. The vessel is a total loss.

To Inspect Cuban Stations.

AERONAUTS SAFE

Hawley and Post Landed in the Wilds of Canada.

MADE NEW WORLD'S RECORD

New Yorkers in America II. Traveled Approximately Thirteen Hundred and Fifty Miles.

New York, Oct. 27.—Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post, the aeronauts of the balloon America II., for whom search had been prosecuted in the Canadian wilds, are safe, and have established a new world's record for sustained flight. They traveled approximately 1,350 miles, and came to earth in Chicoutimi county, Quebec, on Wednesday last.

Two messages from Hawley and Post were received in New York. One was to William Hawley, brother of the aeronaut; the other to Samuel F. Perkins, pilot of the balloon Dusseldorf II., which had been considered the winner. The message to Mr. Hawley read:

"Landed in wilderness week ago, fifty miles north of Chicoutimi. Both well. —Alan."

The Perkins message ran:

"Landed Paribonka river, north Lake Chilogana 19th. All well; returning. —"Hawley, Post."

With receipt of the news there ended a search which had come to be regarded by many as almost hopeless, and in which the governments of this country and Canada were indirectly participating.

The America II. was last reported passing over Maple City, Mich., Oct. 18. Sky gazers were able to read the name on the balloon, but thereafter all trace of her was lost. Various prophesies of the outcome were made, but the main contention was that the aeronauts had landed in an inaccessible region early last week—as in fact they did—and were unable to make their way to civilization. Those who took the gloomier view were inclined to think, as the days passed, that the men had perished from cold and hunger. The outlook was made darker by the suggestion of drowning, a fate thought not unlikely by the finding of a balloon basket on the shores of Lake Superior near Port Arthur, Ont., Wednesday.

SCORE OF VICTIMS OF GAME

Record of Casualties for Baseball Season of 1910.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—That baseball is not all child's play is evident from a list of deaths from the game compiled and published here. Twenty-one fatalities are credited to the national game during 1910, one of them being that of Philip Forney, an umpire, who met death from being hit over the eye by a pitched ball at El Reno, Okla.

The deaths of the season were chiefly among poor players. Swiftly batted balls and straight hard ones from the pitchers cost the most lives. Three of the deaths were not baseball fatalities, being due to a riot between negro teams in Georgia.

KETCHEL'S SLAYER IS HELD

Robbery Alleged to Have Been Motive of Murder.

Marshfield, Mo., Oct. 30.—Walter A. Dipley, slayer of Stanley Ketchel, and Goldie Smith were bound over to await the action of the circuit court. Dipley was held without bond. The woman's bond was fixed at $5,000. She was unable to give it and both prisoners were taken to jail.

Emmett Newton, a Springfield newspaper man, testified that Ketchel told him before he died that the man and woman had robbed him after the shooting. R. P. Dickerson, upon whose ranch the killing took place, corroborated the newspaper man's story.

NEGRO TO GET HIGH POST

Colored Lawyer of Boston to Be Assistant Attorney General.

Washington, Oct. 27.—President Taft, it is said, has decided to appoint a negro to the highest office ever held by a member of that race in an executive branch of the government. William H. Lewis, at present an assistant district attorney at Boston, is to be made an assistant attorney general of the United States.

What duties will be assigned to the new assistant have not been decided. Lewis is a graduate of Amherst and Harvard and played on the Harvard football team as center rush.

FORAKER QUITS THE STUMP

Refused to "Modify" His Remarks About Roosevelt.

Cleveland, Oct. 28.—Declining to accede to an alleged request of the Republican state executive committee to "modify" his speeches former Senator Joseph Benson Foraker has withdrawn from participation in the Ohio state campaign and has canceled all his speaking engagements.

The senator, in an address last week, made plain his opposition to the "new nationalism" described by Theodore Roosevelt, describing it as "treason."

Doesn't Know Her Age.

There is a glaring phase of unfairness in the position of the two sexes, despite all our struggles for the suffrage. A woman still dreads to tell her age, no matter how youthful she may look, while as long as a man looks youthful he is generally willing to admit and even to boast of how many milestones he has passed. There is at least one father who understood this problem in time and who gave his daughter a fair chance in life by never letting her know how old she was. He realized at her birth that a time would come when she would not want to tell her age, and he spared her the humiliation of having to prevaricate, so she was never told either her age or the place where she was born, and there were no birth records preserved in the family.—New York World.

Tearing a Proverb to Tatters.

One of our correspondents, to whom so far as we can remember we never did any injury, sends us the following:

Carlyle said that genius is an infinite capacity for taking pains. We venture to think this definition appropriate to a clerk.

But in a doctor genius is an infinite capacity for slaking pains.

In a commercial traveler, for taking trains.

In a literary man, for raking brains.

In a sanitary engineer, for making drains.

And in a Don Juan, forsaking Janes.

Oscar Wilde's emendation of the proverb was at once briefer and more obvious. "Genius," he said, "is an infinite incapacity for taking pains."—London News.

AGREEMENT ON POSTAGE RATES

Reached by President Taft and Secretary Hitchcock.

ACCORDING TO ADVERTISING

Magazines and Other Periodicals Will Have Their Postage Rates Set, if Congress Acts Favorably on the Recommendations of the President. Newspapers Not to Be Affected by the Proposed Change.

Washington, Nov. 1.—President Taft and Postmaster General Hitchcock reached an agreement on the recommendations the president will make to congress regarding a change in the second class postage rates as affecting magazines and other periodicals

Mr. Taft will recommend that the magazines be required to pay the present rate of 1 cent a pound on all reading matter and a much highter rate, to be determined later, on the advertising pages. Each magazine will be required to send a copy of its current issue to the postoffice department each week, or month, as the case may be. There the publication will be dissected. The reading matter and the advertising sections will be separately weighed and the amount of postage computed by the number of magazines sent out.

Newspapers will not be affected The average haul of the newspaper is but 200 miles, while the average haul of the magazine is 1,100 miles.

Mr. Hitchcock told the president that the plan of separating the reading and advertising matter in the magazines is entirely feasible, and he believed it to be the proper solution of the problem. The hauling of magazines in the mail has proved costly to the government, and both the president and the postmaster general believe it has entered largely into the deficit shown each year in the postoffice department.

Deficit Largely Reduced.

This deficit has been largely reduced during the past year, a saving of $11,000,000 having been reported as a result of economies put into effect by Mr. Hitchcock. The adoption of a new rate for the magazines, Mr. Hitchcock believes, will entirely wipe out the deficit and put the postal establishment on a self-sustaining basis.

President Taft is looking forward to a 1-cent rate for letter postage and hopes to recommend it before he leaves the White House. He hopes also to back up his recommendation with figures and estimates which will show that letter postage at this rate still will yield a profit to the government.

The establishment of the proposed new rates as to magazines, the president believes, will do much to bring about the penny postage plan. At the same time he thinks the magazines will be compelled to pay only their just share in the postal expense.

The president is determined to push his plan for placing second and third class postmasters under the civil service. He will make the recommendation to congress in his forthcoming message and hopes for favorable action. In addition to taking these classes of postmasters entirely out of politics the president believes the move will prove economical.

FALLS INTO A BURNING BOG

St. Paul Child Probably Fatally Injured.

St. Paul, Nov. 1.—The Van Buren street burning bog has claimed another victim. He is little Anton Derk, four years old, and he probably was fatally burned when he fell from a fence on the edge and rolled down the steep bank into the fire. The bog has been burning since early in the spring and it is known that four other people have been injured in three months.

The baby had toddled to the edge of the walk and became interested in watching the fire in the smouldering mass below. He climbed the board fence to get a better view and perched on the top board in huge delight. He had no thought of danger.

Suddenly his foot slipped on the boards and he rolled down the steep bank for ten feet to the surface of the bog. The crust gave way beneath his weight and he was buried in the fire. He would have perished in a few minutes but for the quick work of two older boys, who crawled to the edge and pulled him out.

His left arm and hand were terribly burned and Dr. H. T. Nippert, who was called and who sent the child to the city hospital, thinks he has only even chances for recovery.

Night Rush for Land.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 1.—The little town of Tekoa, Wash., just west of the Idaho boundary, kept Halloween with a picturesque stampede for lands. Three hundred homeseekers gathered to rush for the unclaimed lands of the Coeur d'Alene reservation, which were thrown open at midnight. Some of the settlers had small cabins mounted on wagon trucks ready to be transferred to their homesteads.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD MADE

Ralph Johnstone Sets a Mark for Aviators.

IN A BABY WRIGHT MACHINE

American Contestant in Aviation Meet at Belmont Park Attains an Altitude of Nine Thousand, Seven Hundred and Fourteen Feet, Beating the Record Made by Wynmalon of Holland

New York, Nov. 1—A "baby" Wright "cloudster," with Ralph Johnstone at the helm, glided gracefully to earth in the twilight at the close of the international aviation meet at Belmont park with the barograph registering a new world's record for altitude The little machine of only thirty-five-horsepower had been up 9,714 feet, exceeding by 528 feet the height attained in France on Oct. 1 by Henry W. Wynmalon of Holland.

But Johnstone's sky climbing feat was not the only notable incident of the closing day of the meet. Claude Grahame-White, the athletic Britisher, who carries away the Gordon Bennett trophy, which takes the next international tournament to England, sharpened the sporting appetite with a challenge to John B. Moisant of Chicago for another race from the park around the statue of Liberty in New York harbor and return.

Moisant, who won $10,000 for his fast flight around the statue, refused to consider the challenge unless Grahame-White agreed to fly in a fifty-horsepower Bleriot, a machine equal in power to his own.

Declines to Entertain Offer.

Grahame-White, who made the statue flight in a 100-horsepower Bleriot, declined to entertain this counter offer, so that the chance for another flight over Brooklyn is off.

Then Grahame-White, denied another chance for a visit to Miss Liberty, sent a thrill through the spectators when at the close of a speed race with J. A. D. McCurdy of the Curtiss team his propeller snapped, his monoplane dug into the ground in front of the grandstand, turned turtle and buried the aviator underneath. He was uninjured and won the race.

Moisant's winning of the $2,000 distance prize offered by the Aero Club of America was the other big event of the day. He traveled approximately eighty-seven and a half miles in two hours. In landing, after winning the event, he smashed his propeller and broke a running wheel, but escaped unscathed.

"I was in a pretty purple haze up there," said Johnstone after he had finished his record breaking flight, "and, say, but it was cold. I had a couple of sweaters on besides my rubber suit and face mask, but then at times I felt as if freezing.

"Several times I lost complete sight of the earth, but when I shot clear of the haze I could see away down below buildings and residences which looked like toy blocks."

The Wright brothers were jubilant at Johnstone's success. It was the first time he had ever flown their tiny machine and he had set a new mark for aviators of the world.

DAMAGES FROM DAUGHTER

Mother Awarded Large Sum by Milwaukee Jury.

Milwaukee, Nov. 1.—That Mrs. Jonna Huesselman is entitled to $9,800 damages from her daughter, the wife of Dr. Wilhelm Becker, was the verdict of the jury in the circuit court of Judge W. J. Turner in a $25,000 alienation of affections suit of mother against daughter.

Mrs. Hueselman and Dr. Becker were married in Chicago on March 17, 1900. She was then forty-six years old. He was thirty-one. She had two daughters. One of them was Mrs. Hattie Bott, aged twenty-six at that time. Mrs. Bott was then living in St. Paul. Her husband was Dr. Henry C. Bott.

Some time after the marriage Mrs. Bott came to Milwaukee to visit at the home of her mother and her new stepfather. The result was that on Sept. 29, 1905, Mrs. Becker and the doctor separated.

She alleges that he compelled her to leave, threatening to shoot her. On Nov. 3, 1906, Mrs. Huesselman got a divorce from the doctor. Her former name, Huesselman, was restored.

On Nov. 9, 1906, Mrs. Bott, the present Mrs. Becker, began suit for divorce from Dr. Bott. She got the divorce Nov. 2, 1907. Five days later, according to testimony, Mrs. Bott and her stepfather were married.

Infantile Paralysis Spreading.

Dickinson, N. D., Nov. 1.—Several new cases of infantile paralysis have developed in the southwestern section of the state. The first fatal case of that nature to be found in Stark county was that of Harry Hadson, sixteen years old, of Taylor. The health authorities in the several slope counties are taking precautions against the spread of the disease, and it is believed that they have the situation so well in hand no serious trouble will follow.

Drake's Death.

Some colored drawings of the coast of various West Indian islands are in the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris. The fact that makes the drawings of special value is that they were done from the deck of Sir Francis Drake's ship under his supervision during his last voyage. There is a mournful note on the margin of a drawing of Puerto Bello, off which Drake's flagship Defiance was lying:

"This morning, when the description notid or taken of this lande, beinge the 28 of Januarie, 1595, being Wedensdaie in the morninge Sr Francis Dracke died of the bludie fix righte of the ilande of Buena Ventura som six leagues at see."

Lord Stanley and the Scot.

The antipathy which Dr. Johnson bore to Scotland was not singular or unprecedented. Lord Stanley came plainly dressed to request a private audience of King James I. A gayly dressed Scotchman refused him admittance into the king's closet. The king, hearing an altercation between the two, came out and inquired the cause.

"My liege," said Lord Stanley, "this gay countryman of yours has refused me admittance to your presence."

"Cousin," said the king, "how shall I punish him? Shall I send him to the Tower?"

"Oh, no, my liege," replied Lord Stanley, "inflict a severer punishment; send him back to Scotland."

Season Opened Nov. 10.

The season for moose and deer has now been open two days. It is lawful to kill moose and deer Nov. the 10 to 30. It is unlawful to kill men during that time yet not a season goes by that they are not shot down in the northern woods by over-anxious hunters. The law of Minnesota, give the deer a chance moose a toberally even break. Only from Nov. 10 and including Nov. 30 may they be killed futhermore all the following are unlawful:

To hunt deer with dogs. To hunt on land of another without permission To use traps, snares, artificial lignts or set guns.

To kill a game animal in any other way than shooting with a gun held to the shoulder. To use sink boats, motor boats, launches, sail boats, floating butteries, sunken boxes, tubs or floating blinds when shooting, or to hunt or shoot between dark and daylight.

One mail antlered moose may be killed by each person (If one is found and then the aim is good) but must not be shipped from the state unless mounted.

Residents of state may kill two deer and non-residents one. Non-residents must face the game and fish commission and losen grasp on $25 before they can get permission to hunt big game.

The costs of license to a resident of the state is $1. There is no open season for elk or caribbu. If one of these animals even is found in possession of a man or women in Minnesota and the game warden learns about it some one will be given the opportunity of bowing next day and saying pleasently, Goodmorning Judge.

What the Settlement Is.

But to get back to Meadowlands. Most of this neighborhood once belonged to Duluth & Iron Range Railroad Co. Some of it the settlements along the rivers, and the open tracks outlying, was taken up years ago by men who worked in the woods in the winter, or in the mines upon the Range. Then came the railway and said, "See here, this is not getting us anywhere! We are not making a farming country out of this. We have no roads, no schools worth while, no markets no agriculture. We will change all that and put some farms on the map. And we'll put them there in such a way that the farmer can make good. Instead of letting Tom, Dick and Harry buy land where they please we'll sell them land inside the area we are developing. Instead of spotting them on the land to dig stumps or starve, and to build roads or go with out markets, when a man buys a tract of land we'll run a road to his door. If he needs help in clearing the land we'll help him clear it.

If he's got any gumption at all we'll help him make good.' We don't propose to isolate himself and his family. He needs school, church, market: the state needs his produce we need him—a satisfied prosperous settler, as an asset to us to help us sell other lands that we own.

And Orders Go Merrily On.

Pussyfoot Johnson has issued another stringent order in which he reiterates his former ones that the express companies must not ship any liquor into the territory covered by the Indian treaty. Ballinger has said otherwise and so there evidently is some interesting clash comming on. Ballinger has mussed things up in great shape in order to please the thirsty ones of Cass Lake and Moorhead. This discriminations business is contrary to the sacred constitutional right. Johnson is on the right tack when he includes the whole territory, a thing he should have done in the first place.—W. Forum

Basket Social and Dance.

There will be a basket social and dance given in Carlson's Hall Saturday Nov. 12th for the benefit of Clara Anderson who has for a long time been suffering with sickness.

We wish every girl would turn out with a basket to help this poor lady and every boy to come and take a helping hand in this case. A dance will be given after the basket social for those that wish to dance. A good time is extended to all.

Mr. Gehard Hemly was among the lucky ones to shoot a wolf on Tuesday.

Subscribers:

The undersigned who has for the past few months been running this paper for E. L. Quist has now leased it for one year. It will be our aim to get the paper up to a high standing as a live and enterprising newspaper and advertising medium.

We respectfully solicit your patronage; it will be our aim to deserving of the same as well as your good will in every respect. We give our friends and future patrons the assurance that every detail and business lines, in a straight forward.

After New Year we will publish our paper on Friday so the farmers can get it the same day, so it will be more interest for the farmer who does not receive it before the next week. The Plummer Pioneer was established about 7 years ago by Chas. W. Latta, who two years ago sold the paper to E. L. Quist of Thief River Falls. Mr. Quist was not well liked in this town on account his fight for county division and county option. This news will cause mingled surprise some of the people in Red Lake County where Mr. Quist for the past years had edited the Pioneer in an elminently succesful manner. Politically the Pioneer will be inpendent, we will use our influence for the futhering of the interest of Plummer and the county.

Hoping you will show me the same business courtesy that has been shown us in the past.

Very truly yours,
Odin Berg.

Notes on Potatoes.

The average yield of potatoes in Minnesota for the ten-years, 1899 to 1908, was 86 bushels per acre.

The average yield of potatoes in the State of Maine for the same ten years was 171 bushels per acre.

There are about ten thousand hills on an acre of potatoes planted in rows 3½ feet apart and 14 inches apart in the row.

One 8-ounce potatoe in each hill will produce a yield of about 88 bushels per acre.

Many times, one hill will produce six 8-ounce potatoes; which is at the rate of 520 bushele per acre.

The low yield secured, on the average must, be due to the failure of a large number of hills to produce.

Some of the things that cause the failure of hills are poor soil improper preparations, poor seed, irregular planting, poor cultivation, bugs diseases and poor weather. Many of these conditions are controllable; all of them may be influenced by proper methods of culture.

A hill of potatoes stripped by bugs or on which the leaves are injured by blight, cannot give a satisfactory yield.

Paris green or some other posin should be used to destroy the bugs before they have had a chance to seriously injure the vines. A few days delay means the loss of a great many hills.

The most successful growers spray from two to six times each year, with Bordeaux Mixture to prevent injury to the leaves from blight. Paris green may be mixed with the Bordeaux, thus spraying for bugs and blight at the same time.—A. D Wilson Extention Division, University Farm.

Soo Trains Start Monday.

On next Monday, Nov. 14, regular passenger, mail and fraight service will be inaugurated on the new Soo Line through Bemidji, from Moose Lake to Plummer.

Officials news for the startfng of a complete train service was contained in a letter received by the Pioneer to-day from Edmund Pennington, president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railway, in which he makes this statement.

We are now moving freight on the line but it will be regular opened on Nov. 14. On that date we shall inaugurate a regular local freight and passenger service.

The goverment has consummated contracts with the Soo for a mail service to start on that date.

There are 26 stations on this line but not more than half a dozen depots have been completed. In its desire to conform with the public's demand for service the Soo Line will utilize box cars and old buildings for temporary stations building substantial depots as rapidly as possible.

The depot in Bemidji which is to be a substantial $20.000 structure to be shared with the Minnesota & Internationol has not been started and the Soo tarriff will be handled out of the frame building on Minnosota avenue which has been the headquarters for the Soo construction force.

The depot agent for Bemidji has not been named and the time table has not been made up but on Monday a passenger train will be run each way as will olso a freight train and this service will be maintained every day with the aception of Sundap.

Beginning at Moose Lake, the new stations are: Findland. Lawler, McGregor, Round Lake, Pallsade, Bain, Swatara, Shovel Lake, Remer, Boy River, Federal Dam, Portage Lake, Cass Lake, Farris, Rosby, Bemidji, Scribner, Pinewood, Leonard, Clearbrook, Gonvick, Gully, Trail, Oklee, and Plummer.—Bemidji Pioneer.

Mr. Lars Klove and Miss Kristina Knutson were united in marriage at the home of the bride on Saturday Nov. 5th, Both young people have lots of friends who extend congratulations.

Fowls Flee From Cholera.

Rooks are not the only birds which are credited with having fled from cholera. When Malmo, in Sweden, was visited by the disease in 1834 the jackdaws and sparrows all disappeared. Mauritius has a similar tradition in connection with little native birds of her own. And British officers in India have heard from native servants that, while kites and vultures hurry away when cholera begins to rage, the surest sign that the epidemic is definitely on the ebb is the return of those birds. —London Chronicle.

Teddy isn't so big in New York as he was a few days ago.

The next National House of Representatives will be Democratic by about 30 votes.

Colonal Roosevelt and his "New Nationalism" were snowed under in the state of New York to the tune of 60,000 votes. We wonder if the colonel dosen't wish that he were back in Africa hunting big game instead of trying to "boss" American politics.

The open season for big game is now at hand and the list of fatalities has already enrolled several names. The greatest care should be exercised by all hunters as most of the accidents are preventable. In Wisconsin all hunters of deer are urged to wear bright red caps and many have agreed to do so.

U. S. SENATE LINE UP.

From a list of 32 state legislatures that will elect United States Senators, the following comparisons may be of interest, of the 32 states Formerly 24 had republican majorities thus insuring Republican Senators but the recent elections have so changed matters that the Democrats have gained a majority in at least 14 states with 5 in doubt of which 4 are probably Democratic, thus giving finals 18 Damocratie and 14 Republican.

This means an increased Democratic memberships in the Senate of practically ten more Democratic Senators.

Saugstad Defeats Senator Stephens.

Crookston, Minn.,

Complete Returns from Polk county give John Saugstad a lead of 210 votes, he polling 2905 to 2695 for Stephens, Commenting on this the Grand Forks Daily Herald says in part. Defeated in the primaries by a small majority, John Saugstad, the county option candidate for state senator from the Sixty-Second District turned around and in the general election defeated A. D. Stephens, the very candidate who bested him in the primaries by a majority of over 100. This is practically the first time such a thing happened and reflect great credit on the well conducted and strong campaign put forth by the county optionists.

For Representatives from the Sixty second district K. S. Aaker, republican, who opposes county option and John Holten, republican who favors county option were the victors.

The question of division of the county met with defeat by 218 votes but county petitions for division have been started by both McIntosh and Fosston. The first one filed with the secretary of state will call for a vote on that proposition.

Another suprise in the results was the strong gain made by the Socialist party who got by far the largest vote they ever polled.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION ISSUED BY PRESIDENT

By the President of the United States of America—A Proclamation:

• • •

This year of 1910 is drawing to a close. The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress, show vigorous national growth and the health and prosperous well-being of our communities throughout this land and in our possessions beyond the seas. These blessings have not descended upon us in restricted measure, but overflow and abound. They are the blessings and bounty of God.

• • •

We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world. In all essential matters our relations with other peoples are harmonious, with an evergrowing reality of friendliness and depth of recognition of mutual dependence. It is especially to be noted that during the past year great progress has been achived in the cause of arbitration and the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

• • •

Now, therefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wise custom of the civil magistrate since the first settlements in this land and with the rule established from the foundation of this government do appoint Thursday, Nov. 24, 1910, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, enjoining the people upon that day to meet in their churches for the praise of Almighty God and to return heartfelt thanks to Him for all His goodness and loving kindness.

• • •

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this fifth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten, and of the independence of the United States the hundred thirty-fifth.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

ANOTHER RAVEN.

Once upon a midnight quiet while I sought surcease from riot—
From the riot—don't deny it!—that we've had ten years or more—
While I slowly counted numbers, trying hard to woo my slumbers,
For I'd eaten some cucumbers, just half a day before,
Came a dull, insistent murmur like the echo of a roar,
And the word was "Theodore!"

Ah, distinctly I remember, 'twas the third week of September
And I wished it were December of the quiet years of yore,
Wished I were not in the White House, wished as keeper of a lighthouse
I were finding that the right house where no one could come to bore—
And that dull, insistent murmur came a-throbbing as before
And it shuddered, "Theodore!"

And I thought of poor Jim Tawney, and of Cannon so "dog-goney"
(Which is euphony, you gather, when you know of how he swore).
And I thought about the tariff, and I said I wouldn't care if I were constable or sheriff, for then I could sleep and snore.
There are woes that I might bear if I should hear this word no more.
This insistent "Theodore!"

Open wide I flung the portal and there stalked in like a mortal
Such a proud and pompous raven as I'd never seen before;
Not the least obeisance made he, nor my order "Halt!" obeyed he,
But determined to invade, he perched above my chamber door,
Perched upon a bust of Richard Ballinger above the door
And then shortled, "Theodore!"

Then the mystical insurgent, though I said my work was urgent,
That Ihad a date to go out on the links and hallo "Fore!"
Seemed to thing that I was jokingfor it set up such a croaking
That the very air was soaking with that dull, insistent roar;
O that raven needed choking—but it stayed above the floor
Still repeating,"Theodore!"

"Be that word our sign of parting,bird or fiend!" I cried upstarting—
"Get thee back into the tempestraging now from shore to shore,
Leave me now to my reflections onthe news from the election
Being held in all the sections; let me think about the score.
Tell me, tell me, though, the reason for the landslides, I implore"
Quote the raven, "Theodore!"
And the raven ,never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting
On the cherished bust of Richard Ballinger above the door,
And his eyes have all the seeming of eye-glasses I've seen gleaming
In the midst of all my dreaming—and I hear again the roar,
Hear that murmur growing firmer in a dull, insistent roar
And the word is "Theodore!"

STOCK AND GRAIN SHOW DRAWS WIDE ATTENTION.

Preparations are practically completed for one of the greatest afterharvest farmshows and festivals ever offered Northwestern farmers and for four days, November 15 to 18, South St. Paul will be the mecca of great crowds of farmers and their families from all parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Montana. For on these days will be held the fourth annual Northwestern Livestock show, in conjunction with it, the first annual Northwestren Corn and Grain show.

Plans for this years exposition at the great home market of the Northwest are far in advance of anything ever attempted here before and the fact that entries in all departments this year will be many times greater in number than at any previous show makes it certain that the show this year will be of far greater interest and value educationally to visitors.

The Northwestern is not intended as a mony-making institution and is supported entirely by voluntary contributions of stockmen and business men of the territory tributary to the market who believe that it is one of the best means of spreading the gospel of good farming that it is possible to devise. The admission fee to the show is therefore only a nominal one and the opportunity to share in the benefit of the displays and lectures is open to all. That these benefits may be accorded those most in need of them and as a means of interesting farmers who have never exhibited at any show outside their own locality or county the management has set aside a very liberal proportion of the $10,000 offered in preminbs to be given to amateur exhibitions and from this competion all professional breeders and exhibitors who have entered stock at state fairs and like expositions will be barred. Farmers are encouraged to offer their products as the experience gained will be highly beneficial and will pave the way for success later even tho it is not scored this year. The fact that there is always a ready market for livestock of all kinds at South St. Paul insures an opportunity to sell all stock at the conclusion of the show at good prices.

The show this year has a new and substantial home, housing facilities having been provided for all exhibits. The show now enjoyes the distinction of being the only one of its kind in the country to offer all its attractions under cover. Car load entries of livestock which have heretofore been shown in the stockyards will be displayed in a sheltered building, a feature that will appeal to both exhibitors and spectators. The show ring and pavilion has been enlarged and its capacity doubled in line with the general enlargement of the show.

The management has prepared a list of lectures to be delivered by leading speakers on farm topics from all parts of the country. These lectures in conjunctions with the displays of stock and grain will constitute an educational feature of far greater value to any farmer than the money it will cost to journey to South St. Paul to hear and see. Several counties of the Northwestern states will make displays of their products and these will be both interesting and instructive.

During the week of the show the annual meeting of the Minnesota Field Corn Breeder's association will be held at South St. Paul and also that of the Minnesota Livestock Breeders' association. Entertainment features and music will be provided so that visitors may not feel disappointed in any sense in attending the show.

On Thursday evening all exhibitors at the stock show and at the corn and grain show will be entertained at the annual banquet at the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, given by the Northwestern Livestock association. This will be one of the big events and will come at the conclusion of the judging of stock.

A capable and impartial list of judges has been secured to award the money and trophies and every exhibitor will be given an absolutely fair deal at South St. Paul. A good attendance is all that is now needed to make the Northwestern show this year the greatest success in its history. It is up to the farmers and their families throughout this territory to provide the attendance. The management will make good on its part of the program and provide four splended days of helpfulness and entertainment for its guests.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

"Above all, the conditions of farm life must always be shaped with a view to the welfare of the farmer's wife and the farm laborer's wife. To have the woman a mere drudge is at least as bad as to have the man a mere drudge. It is every whit as important to introduce new machines to economize her labor within the house as it is to introduce machinery to increase the effectiveness of his labor outside the house.

"I haven't the slighest sympathy with any movement which looks to excusing men and women for the nonperformance of duty and fixes attention only on rights and not on duties. The woman who shirks her duty as housewife, as mother, is a comtemptible creature; Just as the corresponding man is a contemptible creature.

"But the welfare of the woman is even more important than the welfare of the man; for the mother is the real Atlas, who bears aloft in her strong and tender arm the destiny of the world. She deserves honor and consideration such as no man should receive. She forfeits all claim to this honor and consideration if she shirks her duties. But the average American woman does not shirk them; and it is a matter of the highest obligation for us to see that they are performed under condition which make for her welfare and happiness ...nd for the welfare nad happiness of ...ldren she brings into the world."—Theodore Roosevelt's Address to Farmers at Utica, Aug. 23.

Big Fire at Red Lake Falls.

Yesterday morning at about four o'clock fire broke out in Freund's Confectionery Store at Red Lake Falls. The alarm was given and the famous Fire Fighters turned out to the rescue but in spite of their best efforts the fire soon spread to the next building occupied by Mrs. W. W. Zaiser's Millinery and the two buildings were both destroyed before the fire was brot under control. The greater share of the Millinery stock was rescued by willing neighdors.

We have not been informed whether the fire fighters saved the tele phone pole near the building or not.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $ 40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

It Ended Well

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

One summer's day the lightning rod man came driving along on the Red Bridge road to halt at the comfortable farmhouse of the Widow Glendening and say to her that as business in his line was a little slack owing to the scarcity of thunder and lightning he would make her a special rate if she wanted her barn protected. The widow was a pleasant faced, good natured woman, and she pleasantly replied that when she felt her barn needed protection she would hoist a clothes pole to the roof.

All in a good natured way, you know, and no one's feelings were hurt. The lightning rod man laughed and drove on. Ten miles away he stopped at the house of Deacon Shaw, widower. He offered the deacon a very low figure on rods, and the deacon intimated that the whole business of stopping thunderbolts was a swindle and a fraud. Nothing personal and nothing to hurt. Just a sort of a joke, you know—a joke to be returned. Two weeks later the lightning man was back at the widow's house. He had nothing to say about rods this time. What he did say was:

"Widow, I'm a man with a heart. I not only have a heart for myself, but for others. I have a heart for you. You are a lonesome, delicate woman. All widows are. Where there's no man around the house there is desolation. I can't marry you, but I can find you a second husband and warrant him true blue."

"Then bring him on," replied the widow, with a laugh.

"He's a deacon and a widower. He has one child. He's worth $6,000 or $7,000. These is only one drawback, and that I don't call a drawback at all. It's an advantage. He's deaf and dumb. No dumb husband can scold and find fault. He can't swear at his oxen. He can't yell at his wife from upstairs or down cellar."

"How did a dumb man ever get married?" asked the widow, with a show of interest.

"By sign. I can't tell you the signs, but that must have been the way. That's the way he talks to me."

"But I don't want no deaf and dumb critter around me."

"But let him come along and call."

"Oh, I can't keep him away, but how am I going to talk to him?"

"Same as he will to you—by signs."

"I'm not going to make any windmill of myself, and he needn't come. I do some scolding myself now and then, and if I had a husband I wouldn't want to be swinging my arms around to let him know that I was mad. You go and marry him to some old maid."

That same day the lightning rod man drove up to the deacon's again. The deacon was ready for him, but he didn't mention rods. Instead he said:

"Deacon, you are a suffering and lonesome man. All widowers are. The world would look different to you if you were married again. I am a man with a heart, and I'm going to tell you of a widow who weeps for you—that is, she waits for you, which is about the same thing. She's fairly handsome, not over forty and has as good a farm as yours. And to crown it all, deacon, she's deaf and dumb."

"Who'd want to marry a deaf and dumb woman?" demanded the deacon.

"Best wives in the world—best natured, hardest working and the most economical. Don't make no mistake, deacon. Marrying this woman means another good farm for you. Only one child and that a girl big enough to help do the housework. Make a call at the house anyway."

Three days later he decided to call. He had been told that if he ever did call he must talk to the widow in the sign language or her feelings would be hurt.

"Now, then, who in the lands is that?" asked the widow of herself.

Two minutes later there was a rap on the front door. As she opened it the man stood there with an anxious look on his face and pointed into the room. He wanted to enter. She nodded. He must be the deaf and dumb widower. She took a chair and he took one. Then they looked at each other. She smiled and he smiled.

They were doing famously well, and it was with a bland smile on his phiz that the deacon asked her in the sign language how her corn and potatoes were coming on. The sign was too much for her. She thought he asked if she ever had earache, and she shook her head. The deacon tried again. This time she thought he was asking if she had any children, and she nodded her head and held up one finger.

"What in Josh does the woman mean?" exclaimed the caller to himself, without knowing that he was going to speak.

"Sir, who are you, to come here and make a fool of me!" shouted the woman as she sprang up with angry eyes.

"And you've made a fool of me," was the reply.

It was some little time before matters were made clear and the blame placed where it belonged. Then they begged each other's pardon and fell into sensible conversation. Yes, it resulted in matrimony after a year or so, and when the lightning rod man heard of it he heaved a long sigh and said to himself:

"Yes, I'm a man with a heart for others, but I'm no humorist. My jokes turn out the other way."

SAVED FROM A TRAP

By EMMA D. TOWNE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The border line between Italy and Switzerland in several places crosses those beautiful lakes of northern Italy which are the resort of people from all over the world. The Italian customs officers are constantly on the alert to intercept smugglers.

One evening a postman was climbing one of the steep mountain roads that lead up toward the border line when he was accosted by a man with a stubble beard and small, cunning eyes.

"Anything for Antoine Cavalleri?" he asked of the postman.

The postman took a package of letters from his bag and looked over their superscriptions.

"Nothing for Cavalleri," he said and was about to return the letters to the bag when the man made a grab for one of them, seized it and ran away with it. The postman was at a disadvantage. His letter bag was so heavy that he could not hope to catch the letter thief while it was strapped to his back, and he dare not lay it down. He would not risk a large number of letters to recover one. He hurled a stone after the thief to vent his ire and kept on his way. He had not gone far before he met a young girl coming down to meet him.

"A letter for me today, Luigi?"

"Yes; there is one, I believe."

He looked over the letters, but found none for the girl. "I was sure there was one," he said. Then he stopped and thought, saying half to himself and half to her, "I wonder if that was the letter the rascal robbed me of?" He was looking at his companion and saw that she paled.

"Have you been robbed of a letter?" she asked quickly.

"Yes."

"By a thickset man with a short beard and eyes like a snake's?"

"The same. He asked for a letter for Antoine Cavalleri, and while I was looking over the lot made a grab for one and ran away with it. But what is it, Marie?"

"Oh, Luigi, Giovanni and his friends will be taken! The man who stole the letter was a customs official. It contains the hour and the place where they are tonight to run some goods over the border. This letter was addressed to me to deceive the revenue officers. This man has been told that I am the medium between the Swiss and Italian bands who are acting together—Giovanni and his friend collecting the goods in Switzerland and turning them over to the Italians, who run them across the lake. Giovanni sent it to me to deliver to Toni."

"But is there not time to warn them?"

"I don't know where either party is or the trysting place. That is given in the letter. Which way did he go?"

"He took the valley road up the mountain."

"I will go and seek him myself. He knows that a girl named Marie Polini is the go-between for these letters, but he has never seen me."

An hour later the letter thief was sitting under an arbor outside an Italian inn drinking a glass of wine and smoking a cigarette. Marie, who was ascending the road, saw him, and, taking a byroad—all roads in that country run between high stone walls—she entered the inn unseen by a back door. She knew well the people who lived there; they were friendly to her and the smugglers—indeed, friendly to any one who is interested in getting a living out of the two sources of income open to impoverished Italians, the government and Americans, though the flow of coin is usually to the government, while it is always from the Americans. She told them the story and her purpose. Going out to the official, she said, with a smile:

"Did the senore call for more wine?"

"I did not, but if so pretty a maid will drink it with me I will have a liter."

The girl brought the wine and modestly stood till the man asked her to be seated; then, showing her white teeth in a smile and darting her Italian black eyes at him, she took the glass of wine he poured for her and sipped it. The customs officer drained his own glass and refilled it.

A knowledge of drugs that will kill or stupefy has been handed down among the Italians since the days of the Borgias. Before bringing the wine Marie had slipped a powder into it, and the man had scarcely drunk when his eyes grew heavy. They closed, and, the pretty face of Marie, which now wore a smile of triumph, faded before him. As soon as he became unconscious she unbuttoned his coat, took the letter he had stolen from the postman, looked at the superscription and, seeing that it was for her, opened and read it.

Taking up the bottle containing the balance of the wine, she poured it on the ground, then, leaving the officer to sleep off the effect of the drug she had given him started up the mountain. It was growing dark when she came upon a man leaning on a stone wall, looking or pretending to look down upon a water course far below. As soon as he saw the girl his face brightened.

"Marie," he exclaimed, "what has delayed you?"

"That has delayed me which would have led to your capture tonight." And she told him what had happened.

"Ah, Marie," he exclaimed, embracing her, "how could we get on without you?"

DELVING INTO RAIL SECRETS

Commerce Commission Acts Along New Lines.

COST OF SECURITY ISSUES

Seeks to Secure Information Regarding the Charges Made by Banks for Floating Bonds and Stocks—Facts Requested Have Heretofore Been Jealously Guarded Even From the Stockholders.

New York, Nov. 9.—Financial circles are manifesting a lively interest in a series of questions which have just been put to all the great railway systems of the country in a circular issued on account of the proposed advance in freight rates. If all the questions are answered the public will get an opportunity to learn about all the commissions and profits on security issues which have been exacted from the railroads by banking houses which float these securities from time to time.

The commission is not limiting its inquiries regarding railroad capital issues to the operations of recent years, but is making a full report on all issues of securities made since the organization of each of the railroads. It wants the text of all authorizations by stockholders and boards of directors and the terms of all mortgages. In addition, the commission requires that the railroads report on every issue of stock, bonds or other obligations except loans for one year or less, "including a statement of all fees, commissions and other things of value paid or to be paid to such agencies for their services in such sale or distribution."

This is information which has heretofore been guarded even from stockholders. The railroads are also called upon to give a complete record of all the interest paid by them on bond issues, of all dividends paid since the organization of such company, and the value of all subscriptions and other rights granted to security holders.

BELLE ELMORE SURELY DEAD

Friend of Actress Takes No Stock in Printed Story.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Bruce Miller of East Chicago, friend of Belle Elmore, the actress wife of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, who is under sentence of death in London for murdering his wife, takes no stock in the story that the woman is alive.

Miller appeared as a witness in the Crippen trial to disprove the accusation that he was unduly friendly with Mrs. Crippen.

"It's a canard, pure and simple," said Miller. "Crippen had cast insinuations that I might know the whereabouts of his wife and I went to London to prove that I had not seen the woman for over six years. She had two of my pictures in her room, but there was no attempt to conceal her friendship for both me and Mrs. Miller."

MARRIES HER ADOPTED SON

Ohio Woman of Forty-nine Weds Youth of Twenty.

Wellston, O., Nov. 9.—Mrs. Sarah Stewart, forty-nine years old, married James Turner, twenty years old, her adopted son. As guardian of the young man Mrs. Stewart first appeared before the license clerk and signed the necessary permission for a minor to marry.

The bridegroom was adopted by Mrs. Stewart when he was a baby. He was given a good education and when he grew up he decided that he could not do better than enter into a closer relation with the woman who had cared for him all his life.

SENSATIONAL BANK ROBBERY

Beattie (Kan.) People in Running Fight With Bandits.

Beattie, Kan., Nov. 9.—Five bandits robbed the vault of the State bank of Beattie and escaped on horseback after a running fight with a score of townspeople in which more than fifty shots were exchanged and one of the bandits wounded.

Big "Bite" Capsizes Boat.

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 9.—William McNaughton, aged seventeen, and Ernest McCauley, aged sixteen, were out fishing in a duck boat. While in the swiftest part of the Mississippi river below the Northern Pacific railway bridge Willie got a bite and pulled so hard that he upset himself and companion into the river. They struck out for shore and would have perished in the icy waters had they not been picked up by Mike Goedderz, who came to the rescue in his gasoline launch.

No More Census Recounts.

Washington, Nov. 9.—No more reenumerations of populations will be made in connection with the thirteenth census unless on account of fraud. This announcement was made by Director Durand of the census bureau. He was speaking of the demand of Baltimore for a recount.

FACES ANOTHER TROLLEY TIEUP

Philadelphia Again Threatened With Strike.

ARBITRATORS IN DEADLOCK

Men Vote to Go Out Unless Agreement Is Reached Within a Certain Time—Interpretation to Be Put on the Term "Loyal Men" the Point on Which Mediators Are Deadlocked.

Philadelphia, Nov. 9.—Philadelphia is threatened with another street car strike. At two meetings of motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company it was voted to go on a strike at a certain hour to be named by the men's executive committee unless arbitrators agree on one of the points still at issue. The men, it is declared, wanted to go on a strike immediately, but a strike was halted by the leaders.

The arbitrators are Raymond Robins of Chicago, representing the men, and John G. Vogler, representing the company. They are authorized to call in a third man if they cannot agree.

The point upon which the two arbitrators are deadlocked is the interpretation to be placed upon the term "loyal men." When the last strike was settled the company reserved the right to give the preference in runs to men who had remained "loyal" to the company.

DOZEN MEN ARE INJURED

Frightfully Burned as Result of Boiler Explosion.

New York, Nov. 9.—Twelve men are under the care of hospital physicians in Brooklyn as the result of a boiler explosion. The men were working on a "dead" boiler in an electrical lighting plant near the water front when another boiler ten feet away exploded, covering them with scalding water and steam.

All the men were knocked down and three of them were rendered unconscious by their injuries. The other nine, frightfully burned, rushed blindly out of the boiler pit, while a squad of volunteers from among the stokers in an adjoining room went to the rescue of the three who had been left behind.

GIRL ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Said to Have Passed a Number of Bad Checks.

St. Paul, Nov. 9.—Charlotte Pooler, alias Kennedy, aged sixteen, is under arrest charged with trying to pass a forged check for $25 on a down town department store.

The police say they had been looking for the girl several weeks for other forgeries.

According to the police the girl proffered a check with the signature of a St. Paul railroad official, claiming that she was his daughter. The cashier had been warned of a girl forger and called the alleged father on the telephone. The girl's arrest followed.

RETURNING TO THE STATES

Vessels Carrying Thousands of People From Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 9.—Nearly 2,000 more people left Nome than entered the Bering sea city during the navigation season just closed, according to figures compiled by the United States customs officers. The report shows that seventy-six American and foreign vessels entered the northern port, taking in 2,154 passengers and bringing out 4.069.

The gold shipped out during the five months of open navigation amounted to $8,467,608.54.

NEGROES SEIZE A BOOTH

Oklahoma Blacks Insist on Voting Despite "Grandfather" Clause.

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 9.—A telephone message to the Times-Democrat from Coweta, Okla., states that negroes took possession of a voting booth in a schoolhouse in a negro settlement four miles from Coweta. The white election officials were thrown out of the polling place, the negroes declaring they would vote despite the "grandfather clause."

Dies of Gunshot Wound.

Washburn, N. D., Nov. 9.—The accidental discharge of a shotgun while he was endeavoring to gain possession of it by pulling it from a load of hay, barrel first, resulted in the death of Ivan Bingler, aged twenty-eight years. Bingler received the entire charge in his abdomen, but with remarkable pluck crawled back on the wagon and succeeded in lashing the horses into a mad gallop for home.

Mistakes Friend for Deer.

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 9.—When A. D. Chappel, a member of a party hunting deer near Fort Worth, saw a movement in a clump of bushes as of approaching game he opened fire. Thomas Johnson, tax assessor of Coke county, who was driving the game, received the full charge of shot, death resulting instantly.

CANADIAN ASYLUM BURNED

Six Hundred Inmates Removed Without Loss of Life.

Winnipeg, Nov. 6.—A woman inmate playing with a box of matches caused the destruction of the insane asylum of the Manitoba government at Brandon and rendered 600 inmates and 100 attendants homeless.

The loss is estimted at $500,000. Inmates were from Alberta and Saskatchewan as well as Manitoba. Hon. G. R. Caldwell announced after a careful investigation that no life had been lost.

GREAT UNREST IN SPAIN

Government Reinforcing Garrisons at Certain Points.

London, Nov. 4.—Despite the official denial that there has been any revolutionary activity in Spain it is known here that the government is heavily reinforcing the garrisons at Barcelona, Saragossa and Sabadell

Moreover, the troops sent into these revolutionary centers are being drawn from portions of the army that are recognized as intensely loyal to Alfonso and still uncorrupted by the Republican agents.

In the meantime a strike has been ordered all over Spain and the order is being generally obeyed. Thousands of workmen have laid down their tools and business is being greatly depressed.

A dispatch from Madrid says that the Republicans have been tampering with the garrison at Badajoz in an effort to win the soldiers over to the revolutionary cause. High officials are said to have been implicated in the plot, Mayor Santos being under arrest for trying to gain the officers' consent to the revolt.

FIFTEEN MINERS ENTOMBED

Little Hope for Safety of Men In Washington Colliery.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 8.—Though little hope is held out for the safety of any of the fifteen men who were caught by the terrific gas explosion in the Lawson coal mine at Black Diamond rescuers are working heroically to reach the entombed miners. They have reached the first level, at a depth of 350 feet. The work is extremely hazardous owing to crumbling walls.

The explosion completely wrecked the workings of the mine, causing the walls to cave in and hurling heavy timbers and steel supports out of the mouth of the shaft with such velocity that they were shot hundreds of feet about the mouth of the mine.

MEXICAN BURNED AT STAKE

Texans Lynch Murderer of Ranchman's Wife.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 5.—Antonio Rodriguez of Los Vacas, Mex., aged twenty years, was burned at the stake by a mob at Rock Springs, Tex., following his confession that he shot and killed Mrs. Lem Henderson, wife of a ranchman, because she "spoke mean" to him.

Three Boys Burned to Death.

Hartington, Neb., Nov. 6.—Three boys, Ernest Peterson, aged three years; Clarence Peterson, aged five, and Leo Peterson, aged fourteen, the latter a cousin of the first two, were burned to a crisp in the farm home of Peter A. Peterson, living three miles northeast of this place.

DEITZ FREE A SHORT TIME

Released on One Charge, but Is Immediately Rearrested.

Hayward, Wis., Nov. 8.—Attorneys Sabel and Schultz, head of the Deitz defense committee, arrived here from Eau Claire, where they had been to receive Judge Wickham's approval of bonds of $40,000. The bond was approved and recorded, after which procedure Deitz was notified that for a time at least he was again a free man.

His wife and Clarence were overjoyed, and, quickly bringing his overcoat, Clarence assisted his father to put it on, and Deitz stepped out on the porch of the jail, where he proceeded to inhale a few whiffs of the brisk November air. During this time he was smiling, chatting happily with the people around the jail porch. However, his period of freedom was very short.

Barely had the overcoat been placed on Deitz when Sheriff Madden said, "Come here, John." Deitz complied, and a warrant for the shooting at Patrick McGin on May 8, 1904, was read to him before he had left the porch of the Sawyer county bastile, and once more the famous Cameron dam defender was placed behind the bars.

WRECK ON GREAT NORTHERN

Eight Killed in Collision of Trains in Washington.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 8.—Eight are known to be dead and four injured as a result of a freight wreck on the Great Northern railroad near Chatteroy, Wash.

The wreck was the result of a head on collision on a sharp curve between two heavily loaded trains running at high speed.

Nineteen cars caught fire and three trainmen were burned to death.

Traffic on the main line of the Great Northern will be blocked probably until night.

FAMINE FOLLOWS STRIKE

General Tieup Cuts Off Supplies of Spanish Town.

Cerbere, France, Nov. 6.—Advices from Sabadall, Spain, say that the town is stricken with famine as a result of the general strike, which has cut off supplies. The population is excited and disorders are frequent.

IOWA'S POPULATION SMALLER

Total Is 2,224,771, a Falling Off of 7,082 in Ten Years.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The population of Iowa is 2,224,771, according to the enumeration in the thirteenth census. This is a decrease of 7,082, or .3 per cent, under 2,231,853 in 1900.

Mystery of the Egg.

An egg for one thing is a succession of bags, bagged up in one another, a series of envelopes enveloped in one another, bags and envelopes without joints, seams or openings. Puzzles, ships built up and full rigged in bottles, flies in amber, are simply simplicity itself as puzzles when it comes to how these bags wrap one another up, bag in bag. In a hen's egg there are eight or nine or ten of the sacks in sacks ensacked. Everybody thinks he knows what an egg is, and after weary reading and study in many languages he only begins to learn that nobody knows a tiny fraction of all the world of secrets and mysteries hidden in an egg. "As full of meat as an egg" is not the true comparison, but "as full of mystery as an egg" is nearer the truth. Eggs are the greatest puzzle in all nations.—New York Press

Poor Pay, Poor Preach.

Once upon a time there was an Indian named Big Smoke. A white man, encountering Big Smoke, asked him what he did for a living.

"Umph!" said Big Smoke. "Me preach."

"That so? What do you get for preaching?"

"Me git ten dollar a year."

"Well," said the white man, "that's d—d poor pay."

"Umph!" said Big Smoke. "Me d—d poor preach!"

So runs the world—poor pay, poor preach.—Minneapolis Tribune.

"Eating Crow."

The term "eating crow" comes from an ante-Revolutionary story. A soldier of an English regiment stationed in Virginia shot a pet crow belonging to a farmer. The latter entered a complaint with the colonel, who sentenced the soldier to eat the crow. The farmer was left alone with the soldier to see that he did it. After the soldier had consumed a portion of the bird he took his gun, presented it at the farmer and told him to eat the remainder of the crow or he would shoot him. This was the origin of the eating crow story.

Orchids.

There are seven distinct tribes of orchids, hundreds of different genera and thousands of species.

A PRAYER.

Give us courage and gayety and a quiet mind. Spare to us our friends; soften to us our enemies. Bless us, if it may be, in all our innocent endeavors. If it may not, give us the strength to encounter that which is to come, that we may be brave in peril, constant in tribulation, temperate in wrath and in all changes of fortune and, down to the gates of death, loyal and loving one another.—R. L. Stevenson.

When a Man's Great.

"I would like to ask you one more question," said the youth.

"Let it come," rejoined the home grown philosopher.

"When," quoted the youth, "would you say that a man has achieved greatness?"

"When he deserves his own opinion of himself," answered the home grown philosopher.—Chicago News.

The Disk Plow

From Lessons in "Agricultural Engineering" in The Farmer, St. Paul

THE disk plow a few years ago was presented to the public and heralded as a plow bound to replace entirely the moldboard type. This it has not done, yet it has found certain conditions under which it will work much more satisfactorily than the older type of plow. These conditions are two in number, as far as the writer has been able to determine. The hard dry soils of some of the western states are more easily subdued by means of the disk plow than any other. These soils at certain times of the year are turned out in lumps by the plow and the disk plow cuts its way through the lumps and breaks them up. Yet the disk plow cannot be used in extremely hard ground such as might be found in a road, as it could not be kept in the ground.

The other condition of soil to which the disk plow is well adapted is where it is so sticky that the moldboard plow cannot be made to scour well, as in heavy clay or gumbo soils. The black, waxy soil found in Texas and other parts of the South is such a soil. The disk plow with its scraper to clean the disk will turn a furrow, regardless of the scouring properties of the soil.

Where the moldboard plow will do good work, it is to be preferred to the disk plow. As generally constructed, the latter is a very clumsy implement and very heavy, the weight being necessary to keep the plow in the ground. Claims for its lightness of draft cannot be substantiated by tests when compared with moldboard plows under favorable moisture conditions. Often the disk plow is given credit for doing more work than it actually performs, in that the bottom of the furrow is not flat and measurements should not be made at the deepest point.

The disk plow does not have a tongue and does not make as good corners as the modern high class sulky plow. If the disk is of proper shape and size, the plow pulverizes and mixes the soil thoroughly, which are essential features of good plowing. The plow will cover standing weeds to good advantage, but loose trash is troublesome. It cannot be used at all in tough sod.

The size of the disk proper varies from 20 to 30 inches in different plows. A 24-inch disk will do the most satisfactory work under usual conditions. It pulverizes the soil to the best advantage—more than a smaller disk, and is not of as heavy draft as a larger disk. A disk blade, 26 or 28 inches in diameter, can be used for a longer period, as much more metal is provided for wear. It is a mistake to try to cut too wide a furrow with a disk plow. A furrow wider than eight inches results in more or less "cutting and covering." It is common to see plows cutting 12-inch furrows which bearly meet each other.

The vital part of a disk plow is the disk and its bearing. The former should be constructed of the best of material, for which the faith of the manufacturer must be taken, and the latter should have plenty of material to resist wear and reliable means of excluding dirt and providing lubrication.

The Deep Tilling Machine

This is a new machine which has come upon the market within the last two years, and as far as providing a means of plowing the soil to a greater depth than hitherto, it is a success. The machine is a disk gang plow with the second or rear disk set to plow a furrow in the bottom of the furrow made by the first. In this way, it is entirely possible to plow to a depth of 16 inches. The disks are large and do the best work when cutting a furrow 12 inches wide.

The draft of this tool is surprising. When tested in a loam soil with a clay subsoil, the draft, when plowing a 12-inch furrow and 16 inches deep, was between 800 and 900 pounds. A 16-inch sulky plow, when forced to its capacity for depth,—eight to nine inches—gave a draft between 900 and 1,000 pounds, or about 100 pounds more. By comparing the sizes of these various furrows, it is to be noticed that the draft of the tilling machine was very satisfactory. Again, it would be quite impossible to plow so deep with anything except a special plow of this character.

It is not purposed to discuss the merits of deep tilling here, yet it is to be surmised that certain soils will be very receptive to such treatment and give paying results in increased yields.

Reversible Plows

The reversible plow was formerly confined to the hillside type, yet there is a tendency at the present time to make a more extended use of this type of plow. Its use in the irrigated sections, where dead furrows are to be avoided if possible, is of great importance. The advantage of dispensing with dead furrows in any field and thus leaving the surface level, is worthy of consideration. In Europe, the reversible plow has been in more extended use than in this country.

The moldboard type of reversible plow consists of two plows, a right and a left hand, which are used alternately. These plows do not have many of the conveniences of the high lift sulky and do not make the usual provisions for relieving the landside friction by placing the load on the carriage. It is, however, an entirely practical tool. The reversible disk plow is so arranged that, by swinging the team and hitch about to the opposite direction, the inclination of the disk is changed, but the carriage is left unchanged and is simply drawn across the field in the reverse direction. It would seem that this implement has reached a higher state of development than its moldboard mate.—From The Farmer, St. Paul. All rights reserved.

NOTE: [This article appears as Lesson No. 2 in a special course in agricultural engineering now being published in that splendid farm paper, The Farmer of St. Paul. In its introductory note, referring to this series, The Farmer says: "A farmer's efficiency today is directly related to a definite knowledge of the proper utilization of mechanical assistance. The Lessons in Agricultural Engineering, having to do with the intelligent use of farm machinery, including the gasoline engine, are prepared by Prof. Davidson, and will prove of interest and value to both the experienced and the inexperienced farmer."]

He Didn't Tell.

The lawyer for the defense found it necessary to weaken the testimony of the main witness for the prosecution.

"Mr. Skybo," he said, proceeding to cross examine him, "did you ever live on the seacoast?"

"Yes, sir," responded the witness; "I have lived half my life in a seacoast town."

"You are familiar, then, with salt water fish?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, just as a matter of information, will you please tell me how a flounder swims—whether horizontally or vertically?"

"Well—er"—

"That is all, Mr. Skybo; you may stand aside."—Chicago Tribune.

Angling and Fishing.

The true angler does not care much about the size of the catch, and let it be remembered that to angle and to catch fish are very different things. There are debased creatures in human guise who will attach an assortment of murderous hardware to the end of a rope and with it pull fish from the water by sheer strength, but such methods are unrecognized by the angler who has imposed upon himself a rigid code of honor and to whom even the use of live bait as a last resort is the occasion for severe self examination. The angler does not go forth to catch fish, but to fish, and only those with the angler's nice sense of propriety will recognize the difference.—Philadelphia Times.

"Great Expectations."

Charles Green, one of Dickens' illustrators, had two models, one of whom was a likable fellow, while the other, Gregory by name was a greedy, self seeking character, always thinking of himself and his perquisites.

When Green was on his deathbed Gregory was very officious, and one day Green, noticing this, said to him:

"Oh, I haven't forgotten you, Gregory; got you down in my will."

At the funeral Gregory invested in a wreath and duly attended to hear the will read.

Green had kept his word, and the model was not forgotten.

"To my dear friend Gregory," ran the document, "I leave, for his kindness to me, an illustrated edition of 'Great Expectations.'"

PATIENCE.

Cultivate the ability to be patient at all times. Whoever loses his patience loses more than his patience. He loses his hold on the very crisis that made him lose his patience. He loses the ability to think and the balance of judgment which he ought to have at their best in order to face rightly the thing that has thrown him into confusion.

Foundation Walls.

Stone makes the best foundation wall for a house, and it should be used unless the price is prohibitive. Brick foundation walls must be well plastered with cement mortar on the outside. This is because brick is very porous and requires protection. Stone for a foundation should be fresh quarried and should be laid on a natural bed. Large stones are required for jambs and corners if the wall is to be properly and thoroughly bonded. No soft surface rock should be used. The top of the wall should be carefully leveled to receive the plate and joists, and in cold climates beam filling between the joists should be required.—Beautiful Homes.

Welsh Red Indians.

Eight or nine hundred years ago a band of adventurous Welshmen landed on the American coast and planted a colony. They never went back, but according to Mr. James McLaughlin in "My Friend the Indian" "became in some sort the ancestors of a tribe of Indians, for the Mandans are thought by some writers to be the descendants of the lost Welshmen. Some philologists have endeavored to prove this to their own satisfaction, and it is said that the Mandans to this day retain in their vocabulary a great many distinctly Welsh words. And for hundreds of years they maintained physical and mental characteristics that have raised them above their fellows."

AGENTS DUMP LIQUORS AT BEMIDJI.

In an expedition latt evening against two Bemidji saloons, which had ignored the goverment's order to close, agents of the Indian bureau faced a shot gun in the hands of one of the liquor men who, a monent before had hit Agent Matulys on the head, knocking him from a high platform where he landed on a broken beer bottle inflicting a gash on the leg.

The work of destruction began at once, barrels were broken open casks dumped and bottled goods smashed.

The list of stuff destroyed in this place was 21½ barrels of whiskey, 2 barrels of alcohol, 11 cases of bottled goods, 3 cases of bitters, 10-gallon keg of whiskey, 4 cases of fancy whiskey 4 cases of champagne, 4 baraels of wine.

From the Dudley and Mahan place the agents marched on the Lakeshore saloon of Louis Anderson on Second Street. Mr. Anderson had no resistence to offer and after taking a drink of his own whiskey, turned the place over to the goverment agents, who quickly destroyed five barrels of whiskey, 10 cases of bottled whiskey, 2 cases of Rock and Rye, 10 gallons of wine and 10 gallons of gin.

Louis Anderson wishes the Pioneer to say that the agents also dumped a barrel of cider and he intimates that inasmuch as cider is not a liquor, that someone will have to pay for it.

No beer was destroyed as the agent have been instructed to see that this thirst quenching commodity is re-ured to the brewery

Another interesting development of the day was the closing of the Markham Hotel bar.

The closing of this place is due simple to the fact that the license expired to-day and has not been renewed.

So there is light ahead. Not enough to see clear thru to the other side of the problem, but enough to justify a start. If the Northern Minnesota problem, with all its tremendous weight of human suffering and joy could be bounded by your vision and mine, there would be no need for this attempt at its solution. But we have failed Forty—fifty--sixty years have passed, and the forest is unconquered Hundreds of its victims are dead; thousands of them are poor; other thousands have gone to lands where opportunity opens wider doors. At last we know that this thing we have been doing all these years is not the conquer the wilderness. For the feebly effort of the individual we must substitute the organized effort of society.

The Rev. Irl R. Hicks Almanac for 1911, that gaurdian Angel in a hundred thousand homes, is now ready.

Making the Hen-House Ready for Winter.

One great essential in getting winter eggs is to make the hens entirely comfortably. The first thing to do is toget busy now and clean out the house thoroughly. Remove every useless article and leave the floors entirely free from anything that will obstruct their free use as a scratching place. Clean down the walls; and, if necessary, whitewash or spray thoroughly. Clean the droppingboards, and make repairs on them and the roosts, so that droppings can be easily removed at all times during the winter. Remove every bit of litter from the floor; and if it is a dirt floor, take out at least a couple of inches of the old dirt, which should be replaced with clean loam. Make ready a corner in each pen, that can be kept supplied with the sine siftings from hardcoal ashes, and will be much enjoyed by the whole flock. If it can be placed where the sun will shine on it, so much the better.

Do not close the windows untill the weather gets real cold. Let there be one glass window for each pen of 10x12 or 16 feet, and one muslin-covered frame, with at least 12 square feet of surface for each pen. This may look like a cold proposition, but it will be found the muslin does not make the pen any colder than does the same amount of glass surface, and at the same time gives a steady supply of fresh air. This muslin will help greatly in keeping the poultry house dry during the winter, and will make it much more comfortable than a closely shut-up house can ever be.

For colder nights, have a curtain of cheap sheeting running across the front of the roosting space. This does not need to fit tightly, except at the top, and may hang out some inches from the dropping-boards, giving plenty of room for the fowls to pass to and from the roosts. On the very coldest of nights the roosting-place will be found to be entirely comfortable and in the morning the hens will come out ready to scratch and hustle for their breakfast.

Above all things, be sure to keep a good six inch of perfectly dry straw on the floor, for scratching material.

There can be very little comfort for the hen in scratching through a pile of dirty, damp litter that has been on the floor for a month or more.—C. H. Welch, Extention Division, University Farm.

A Mississippi editor makes this appeal to delinquent subscribers:

"Fish down into your pocket and dig up dust, the editor is hungry and the paper about to bust, we trusted you for several months and did it with a smile so just return the compliment and trust us for a while. Our wife she needs some stockings and baby needs a dress, Jimmy needs some breeches, and so does Kate and Bess Pud is on the hog train and Peggy sick with grief good gosh almighty, can't you give a man relief. Shell out those nickels and turn loose the dimes, turn'em loose and whistle and we'll have better times, there will be fewer patches on the bosom of our pants and we make the paper better if we had half a chance. Don't give us that old story, long gone to seed about taking more papers than the family want to read; but help to feed the printer and he'll help the town to grow, and thus escape the sulphor in the regions down below.

His Chance to Vote.

The chronicles of our vice presidents are notoriously barren of incident. This probably was the reason for the way Adlai Stevenson secured the exercise of a constitutional prerogative. It was one sleepy day toward the end of his term as vice president. The United States senate was plowing through the calendar and passing many bills. Bills are considered agreed to in the senate if no oral objection is raised after they have passed through the preliminary stages, but the usual form of asking for the yeas and nays is followed by the presiding officer. The vice president had said:

"Senators in favor of the bill will say 'Aye.'" Pause. "Contrary, 'No.'"

Not a single response.

"The vote is a tie," announced Mr. Stevenson.

The senator in charge of the bill paused on his way to the cloakroom and looked surprised.

"In case of a tie the vice president may cast the deciding vote. In the exercise of his constitutional privilege the vice president votes 'Aye.'"

Lengby Lad Kills Another.

Late Saturday afternoon August Klasse was shot and killed accidentally by his brother Sefup while they with Gustav Berg, a young Norwegian just over from the old country, were drilling as soldiers under the direction of the latter at the Klasse farm home three miles north of Lengby.

Sefup during the drill suddenly pulled the rifle he was carrying, a 30-30, to his shoulder, and not knowing it was loaded, pulled the trigger, the bullet piercing his brothers breast which resulted in his death an hour later.

Deceased was 23 years of age and Sefup 18, and they are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Klasse. The brother who did the shooting is prostrated with grief over the terrible tragedy.

The Irishman's Resource.

In his volume of essays, "Dreams Dead Earnest and Half Jest," Mr. Coulson Kernahan compares his compatriots, the natives of the Green Isle, with the English:

"That your Englishman never knows when he is beaten is the verlest platitude. In all the world there is no nationality which can play a losing game with such desperate doggedness. I venture to think, however, that the Irishman—and therein is perhaps a reason why he excels in the art of war—is more resourceful, is quicker to think and quicker to act.

"An Englishman, finding himself in a corner so tight that any one else would decide at once that there was nothing for it but surrender or retreat, says, 'Here I am, and here I'll stick to be shot at till I'm killed or till relief comes.' An Irishman in the same place would say: 'It's the mischief's own hole I'm in! But wait now! What way 'll I be getting out?' And get out the Irishman generally does, for he is so resourceful that his resourcefulness might sometimes be better described as slipperiness."

A Prison Ship.

"The prison ship is not a thing of the past," says a letter from Germany, "but the one which I have discovered has no resemblance to the Jersey of Revolutionary times, where American patriots suffered martyrdom. This one is maintained by the city of Luneberg. There are usually from thirty to forty offenders of the minor class confined there. At night they are locked in cells, and in the daytime they work under overseers on the dikes. The ship looks like one of our American canalboats, and the interior, while it contains no fancy furniture or decorative features, is light and well ventilated and probably more comfortable than the habitations which the inmates call home."—New York Tribune.

Distilled Gold.

The investigations of a French chemist show that gold in the electric furnace boils freely at a temperature of 2,400 degrees C. In two or three minutes, it is said, from 100 to 150 grams of gold pass into the state of vapor. In condensing upon a cold body this golden vapor forms filiform masses and cubic crystals. At its temperature of ebullition gold dissolves a little carbon, which at the time of resolidification is deposited in the form of graphite. In an alloy of gold and copper, copper distills first. In an alloy of gold and tin, the tin distills more abundantly than the gold, and when a large quantity of these mixed vapors is taken the tin burns on contact with the oxygen of the air, forming oxide of tin, colored purple by a fine dust of condensed gold. This is one method of preparing the color known as "purple of Cassius."—Harper's Weekly.

Before a meal they lift the chopsticks to their foreheads and bow in thanks, whether their parents are present or not, for the meal set before them. Before going out to school or elsewhere and on returning they must kneel before the mother and bow. When father or mother go out the children must go to the porch, kneel down and say "Deign to go forth" or "Honorable return," as the case may be. As soon as infants can bow their heads the nurses train them in these respectful salutations.—Exchange.

A SONG OF HARVEST

O painter of the fruits and flowers!
We thank Thee for thy wise design
Whereby these human hands of ours
In Nature's garden work with Thine.
And thanks that from our daily need
The joy of simple faith is born:
That he who smites the summer weed
May trust Thee for the autumn corn.
Give fools their gold and knaves their power:
Let fortune's bubbles rise and fall;
Who snows a field, or trains a flower,
Or plants a tree, is more than all.
For he who blesses most is blest;
And God and man shall own his worth
Who toils to leave as his bequest
An added beauty to the earth.
And, soon or late, to all that sow,
The time of harvest shall be given;
Th eflower shall bloom, the fruit shall grow,
If not on earth, at least in heaven.

—Whittier.

There are many things that the people of Northern Minnesota might need and want from the next State Legislature, but foremost of our needs is ample protection from forest fires rather than fluent speakers on "Conservation." Second only to this is the question of re-apportionment. It is not a question of whether or not the three large cities get more representation or not. It is a question of "Are the PeopleJustly Represented." We in Northern Minnesota have such small representation that it has become a burning question at almost every gathering. Ye, Legislators, See to it that we get just representation. We ask for no more.

The strike of garment makers in Chicago has aroused sympathy among many Chicago club-women who are undertaking to assist the women workers with their influence as well as financially. To any one who is familiar with the extremely low prices at which "readymade" shirt waists, dresses and other garments may be bought, wonder has come again and again as to how they can do it but few, we venture to say, of those who buy would object to paying enough more to enable the maker, the under paid shop girl to earn at least a living instead of starving wages.

According to the state constitutions now being drafted by the conventions in Arizona and New Mexico, the people of Arizona will have the initiative and referendum from the beginning while New Mezico will be even as the rest of us until progressive sentiment impels them to amend their constitution and follow the lead of their sister state.

Andy Stephens, of Crookston, who has been a member of the state senate for a number of years was defeated on Tuesday by John Saugstad, of Climax. Mr. Saugstad was defeated by Mr. Stephens at the primaries, but his friends pursuaded him to run on "stickers" and the result was his election. This is a distinct victory for good government and the defeat of Stephens removes from the Minnesota Senate one of the strongest corporation men that body has ever had.

A FIFTH STAR

Miss Inez Mulholland, lovely in flowing white, stepped forward and pinned a fifth star on the flag, and the house went wild.

What flag is it that has but five stars? The woman suffrage flag of course.

The first four stars stand for Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho. The fifth is for Washington. At the recent election every county in this state voted in favor of the amendment enfranchising women.

The starpinning happened in New York at the Cooper Union jubilee. Mrs. Catt commanded, Mrs. Blatch and Mrs. Belmont contributed.

On the same day Oregon and Oklahoma said No. So did South Dakota. But never mind, say the suffragists. Washington went right. The avalanche is under way. Washington is on the far edge, true, but it is a pretty good state as states go—no cowboy business, no sage brush. A state of intelligence, progress and prosperity. And it's the first capture in fourteen years. Take it all in all, it is not strange that the Cooper Union meeting was in a happy mood.

SENATOR "LAFE" YOUNG.

Governor Carroll of Iowa has appointed Editor Lafayette Young of the Des Moines Capital to be United States senator in place of the late J. P. Dolliver.

If Iowa wants a standpat senator, it couldn't get a better. If it wants a consistent, true blue, hew-to-the line senator who will stand by the tariff until lakes of fire grow coats of ice, its want couldn't be filled better than by "Lafe" Young. Even those who disagree with him must admire the staunchness of the convictions and the vigor of his standing by them.

The Iowa legislature meets in January, and Senator Young will stay senator at least until then, maybe longer. If the legislature elects Dolliver's successor wholly on personal merit, and without regard to big issues, it will re-elect "Lafe" Young. But Iowa is not a standpat state, even though its leading newspaper is a standpat newspaper; and unless the standpatters have by chance gained control of the legislature, the chances are that another man than Young will fill out the remainder of the lamented Dolliver's term.

Nevertheless, in the meantime Iowa will be represented by one of its first citizens, one of its finest characters, and one of its most marked personalities.

JUST REAPPORTIONMENT.

When reapportionment was before the last legislature Senator Wright of Meeker county raised the point that legislative representation should not be based on population but on area; that people living in cities should not have so large a representation proportionately as people living in the country.

Senator Wright, happily, has been kept at home by his constituents this year, and it is to be hoped that his place has been filled by a broader-minded man.

Senator S. D. Works of Mankato, who was re-elected, is quoted as having declared himself for practically the same principle. A published intreview contains these sentiments: "Down our way we are unalterably opposed to giving control of the state over to the three big cities. I am in favor of a plan that will enlarge the constituencies of the city legislators. It isnot fair that the three cities should legislate for the state at large, the chief interests of which is based strictly on population would give the cities domination over the country. There should be a larger contituency in the cities, and then north and south would get a fair play for the people."

It is to be hoped that Senator Works, who has shown himself to be a fair-minded man, a good citizen and a sound legislator, has been misquoted.

Such a principle as he is credited with advocating can be justified on no ground of reason of justice: On the other hand it is amazingly unjust and can be the fruit of nothing but a bitter prejudice that bodes ill to the state.

What this plan means is that a citizen who lives in a city is not entitled to the same representation as a citizen who lives in the country. Representation is not to be of people, but of property.

No man can compare the condition of the people in the larger cities with the condition of the people in the country without having every instinct of justice shocked by such a proposal. There is more comfort more content, more prosperity and a better average of personal wealth in the country than there is in the city, ten times over. There are more needs of legislation for the common good in the city than there are in the country, ten times over. The presumption, too, that city legislators will be hostile to legislation for the good of the agricultural interests is unfair and wholly unjustified by the history of the legislature.

Besides, a just reapportionment based wholly on population would not by any means give the cities control of legislation. The three counties of Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis now have in the legislature fifteen senators out of sixty-three andthirty four representatives out of 120. Reapportionment would add a senator and a representative to St. Louis county, two senators and about four representatives to Ramsey county and about the same to Hennepin county. The cities, assuming that there is any division between city and country, would still be far short of having control.

Senator Works is quoted as saying that the people of his section are unalterably opposed to reapportionment that will give the cities more power. We do not believe that the people of Blue Earth county take any such position.

INCREASED POSTAGE RATES.

Those newspapers which are endorsing the Hitchcock plan of charging increased postage for the advertising of the magazines are only digging their own graves, for they will be the next sufferers. Administration proposes to save at the spigot, by advocating increased postage on second class mail matter and a reduction on first class mail from two cents to one cent for letters, while wasting millions at the bunghole. But very few people have been benefitted by the decreased postage on foreign letters from five cents to two cents, the banks and importers being the principal beneficiaries of the decrease. Comparatively few Americans write to or receive letters from foreign lands, so the reduction in postage is for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many who pay by far the most federal taxes in proportion to their incomes.

To increase the postage on magazines will be likely to force the ten cent magazine to increase the price to fifteen cents per copy, and the yearly subscription price will be increased from one dollar to one dollar and fifty cents or even to two dollars. There again those with small incomes will suffer.

While millions are annually wasted on extravagant appropriations for the army and navy; for expensive commissions for this thing and that thing; for highly paid attorneys to investigate corporations by the Department of Justice, which has never resulted in one malefactor of great wealth being put behind the bars, the saving by the Post Office Department is a mere flea bite. The evolution of the determination to make the postal service self-sustaining should be a lesson to newspaper proprietors.

The so-called reform began by refusing the cent a pound rate to what the department's 1908 report called "trashy publications, issued principally for advertising purposes." There was not much objection to that; but it was just the opening wedge, for the next reform was to curtail the issue of sample copies; the next, to cut off the giving of credit for subscriptions. Now the next "reform" is to charge extra rates for the advertising pages of magazines.

All this, however, is but preliminary to the real object, which is to cut off the free postage on the weekly newspapers within the county where published, and to increase the second class rate from one cent a pound to something near what the department declares is the approximate cost that is, 8 2-3 cents per pound. Why it costs so enormously to carry second class mail will not be considered at this time, but it is evident that there must be great waste somewhere for the express compainies, which are notorious extortionists, do not average such high rates, and they call for and deliver parcels free to their patrons in the large cities.

It is of importance to newspaper publishers to investigate this proposed increase on the postage of magazines, for there is no reason why the Sunday papers, at least, should not be dealt with in the same manner. But the metropolitan papers are amply able, as are most of the magazines, to take care of their own interests, and it is the smaller dailies and the weekly newspapers which must be prepared for higher postage rates in the near future unless they take the necessary steps to protect their interests.

If postage rates on magazines and newspapers are increased, the publishers must increase the price of their publications, and the public will have to pay the bill.

R. R. Refuse Liquor Shipments.

Enforced prohibition of the strictest and most uncompromising nature has stalked suddenly and unannounced into the very midst of the northern section of Minnesota.

Something bigger than has yet been counted on has been started by "Pussy-foot" Johnson, by the action of the government in prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors into that portion of the state of Minnesota ceded to the United States by a treaty made with the Chippewa Indians.

Hibbing, Bemidji, Brainerd and some more of the towns of the range and surrounding territory are wondering what they are going to do when the supply of liquor runs out.

If these towns and many others cannot get liquor of any nature from outside, and it cannot be manufactured in the limits of the territory that comes under the federal ruling it begins to look like a real drouth and Northern Minnesota is just beginning to realize it.

Yesterday and today the Great Northern and the Duluth, Messabe & Northern railroads refused to accept consignments of liquor, the destination of which was the territory that has come under the stern and somewhat rigorous rule of "Pussyfoot" Johnson. The law has given the railroads their instructions, and the liquor sent here by connecting lines has been turned back to these lines, They will probably haul it back to the original shippers.

In the "desert" country there are three breweries. It might be better said, there were three. One of the wet goods foctories has given up the fight. It has capitulated to the stern and inexorable rule of Mr. Johnson. This was the brewery at Bemidji, which has been rendered hors de combat, for the time being. There is a brewery at Brainerd and another at Perham. Both are greeting friends and filling orders, at last reports, but both have shown signs of distress, and are due to go out of business if the present drouth continues.

There is a wholesale liquor house at Hibbing. This is the only house of its kind in the dry district. If the bars are kept up—not open—against the entry of liquor, it looks as if this heretofore thriving house will be obliged to sell toys or sausages.

At the present time the "desert" country is but entering on the first stage of long drouth, even as the Egyptians of Phareah's dry rule, did enter on the seven years of dry doings, with but little conception of the big and long thirsts that were to parch and burn their palates.

Predictions are extremely bearish for those who love their morning's morning or their evening's nightcap. Even the most cheerful shake their head and mutter that the law is again' 'em.

August Fitger of the Fitger Brewing company of this city stated this morning that his company was not shipping a single bottle of beer to the great "Northern Desert."

The district includes Becker, Hubbard and Cass counties and parts of Crow Wing, Aitkin, Pine, Carlton, St. Louis, Itasca, Koochiching, Beltrami, Clearwater, Mahnomen, Polk, Norman, Clay, Ottertail and Wadena counties. The chief cities and towns are Brainerd, Hibbing, Ada, Bemidji, Hawley, Lake Park. Detroit, Frazer, Perham, Cass Lake, Grand Rapids. Park Rapids, Aitkin and Walker.

Bemidji, Minn., Noc. 15.—(Special to The Herald)—At Kelliher, forty miles northwest of Bemidji, in Beltrami county, where seven saloons in operation, a car load of beer consigned by the Hamm Brewing company may be the cause of not only closing every saloon there but of causing government agents to dump all the liquor into the street. The car of beer was unloaded. When W. H. Gemmel, general manager of the Minnesota & International, on which line Kelliher is located, learned that the beer had been taken from the car he conferred with T. E. Brents, in charge of the Indian bureaus sub-agency in Bemidji, who told Mr. Gemmel that unless the beer was reloaded and on its way back to St. Paul by the time his men could get to Kelliher he would close every saloon and confiscate every drop of liquor.

In Bemidji, the largest city to be directly affected by the no-shipment order, things are going badly for the saloon men. Already their supplies are becoming exhausted.

A squad of secret service men and agents of the Indian bureau have arrived and the town is being closely watched for any attempt to smuggle in liquor.

The city council was scheduled to meet in regular session last night to consider applications from two men for liquor licenses. It is taken as significant that no quorum was present.

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."

How Plants Remain Upright.

If a flowerpot is laid on its side the stalk of the plant growing in it gradually curves upward until it resumes the vertical position. This is called geotropic curvature, and the question is by what means the plant is stimulated to change its direction of growth. One theory avers that movable starch grains in the plant cells fall to the lower side as the position is changed and by their pressure influence the mechanism of growth.

Wesley and Tea.

In his younger days John Wesley found it difficult to stop drinking tea. He wrote in 1748: "We agreed it would prevent great expense, as well of health as of time and of money, if the poorer people of our society could be persuaded to leave off drinking of tea. We resolved ourselves to begin and set the example. I expect some difficulty in breaking off a custom of six and twenty years' standing, and accordingly the first three days my head ached and I was half asleep from morning to night. The third day my memory failed almost entirely. On Thursday my headache was gone, my memory as strong as ever, and I have found no inconvenience, but a sensible benefit in several respects from that day to this."

Later in life Wesley returned to the use of tea, as his big teapot preserved in his house in London shows.—Chicago News.

A Runaway Stagecoach

By WALTON WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"The stagecoach of the past," said one of a party discussing the comparative dangers of different methods of travel, "had its advantages. True, a reckless driver would once in awhile swing round a sharp curve on a mountain side and spill a load of passengers down a precipice a few thousand feet, but such occurrences were rare. I remember one close call I had out in Colorado half a century ago when I was a youngster that I wouldn't like to go through again. If an accident of equal importance should happen to a railroad train, even on comparatively level ground, it would be awful.

"On the particular occasion I'm going to tell you about we started from Georgetown, in the mountains, to go down to Denver. There's a loop railroad at Georgetown now, but at that time there was nothing but a turnpike. A green hand at driving, an Irishman, Mike Rourke, from the stables, had been put on the box, the regular driver, Dan Patterson, having been laid off for illness. Patterson was inside the coach, going down to Golden City, where he lived.

"It was a fine day, and we were regaled with many extensive views of the plains at the foot of the range, appearing for all the world like an ocean. Indeed, geologists say that it was once an ocean bottom. From the brow of an eminence where we were admiring one of these views we could see the road before us winding down a steep incline and at the bottom rising a shorter distance to another summit. A few moments after we started down we noticed that instead of going slow, as was necessary for safety on such inclines, we seemed to start off with a quickening pace and were soon rolling downward at a furious speed. Patterson thrust his head out of the window and drew it in again, white as a cloth.

"'What is it?' we all asked breathlessly.

"'Don't know, but we're all likely to be dashed to pieces.'

"Coming from a trained stage driver, this set us all wild. Some of the women grasped frantically at the doors, but two of us men, one on each side, knowing that to jump would be certain death and remaining inside might mean life, held the doors shut. But the inside of that stagecoach was the wildest scene I ever witnessed—women shrieking and men (some of them) trying to reassure them, while others were holding on to something as if in that way they could hold the coach back.

"But looking outside was worse then the inside. The few scrub trees there were beside the road shot by like arrows. The coach swayed, and as every curve in the road we felt sure it would upset, and sometimes an upset meant a spill over the side of a precipice. We kept hoping that there would be some slackening of speed, but instead of slackening the pace was continually growing faster, and the quicker the pace the more the coach reeled.

"By this time the babel among the passengers was deafening. Some were praying, while others were shouting at us two men who kept a strong grip at the doors to let them out. One big strong man, maddened by terror, hammered me unmercifully to make me open the door. But I held on with a death grip. I think that having something to do helped me to retain my own equanimity. If anything more was needed it was supplied by the sight of men crazed by fear ready to do any foolish or selfish act. Passing a house beside the road, I saw a man standing in the door looking at the coach with his eyes and mouth wide open. But I saw him only a moment, for he flew by like a cannon ball.

"Then the swaying of the coach grew less and the terrible speed at which we were going seemed to be lessening I put my head out the window and, looking forward, saw that we were near the bottom of the incline and in a few moments would be rolling along a comparatively straight ascent. The sudden transition from almost certain death to sure safety produced a very singular effect on me. The blows of the big man who had tried to force me to open the door had produced no effect on me of any kind. Relieved from the strain, my first act was to stretch my arm and plant my fist against his eye and knock him sprawling on the seat behind him. Then I cried:

"'Hurrah! We're safe!'

"From this moment our pace slackened, but we went far up the hill before it was reduced to anything like a quiet run. The coach was a long while coming to a full stop, seemingly as though it must do so of its own weight. When it did we all tumbled out. The driver, too, came down from the box and stood at the head of his trembling leaders.

"'What was it?' we all cried in a breath.

"'It wor that,' replied Mike, pointing to the tongue that lay on the ground at the heels of the wheelers. Patterson, who in addition to being ill had been on a terrible strain, saw it and, realizing what we had escaped, had to hold on to a wheel to avoid dropping down. I went up to Mike and asked him what measures he had taken with the horses after the tongue dropped.

"'I licked 'em all the way down, sor,' he said."

Sure Sign.

"What is the sign when a man parts his hair in the middle?" said the old fellow in the front row of the orchestra to a friend loud enough to be heard by the young man behind them.

"It's a sign that he's not baldheaded," replied the young man, leaning forward.—Yonkers Statesman.

Something about Earmers Institute.

The institute management furnished Competent instructors for all meetings and take care of all their traveling and hotel expenses as well as salries, The Institute instructors are men who have been very successful in their special lines of farming followed out their lines of work to a successful end.

Instutes are held in the towns where the business men show sufficient interest to push the advertising and can be resonable certains of a large enough audience of farmers to warrant holding the meeting. The business men are expected to see that a hall is furnished well warmed up and seated to its full capacity put up the posters we will send, furnish a list of 200 farmers living within 8 miles.

A committee of three to five business men should be appointed and make responsible for pushing this institute. In many towns the business men make arrangment for the special entertaiment of the farmers. At many places Institute day is made a bargain day by the merchants. Some times the different business men get gether and decide what articles shall be sold by each one at a special price at any rate the report is that whatever plan is followed, it always means a big business day and institute day.

We wish some one would take a hand in this and help us with a institute it will help the farmers merchants and all other business men.

CRIPPEN TO HANG ON NOV. 23

Law Requires Two Weeks to Elapse After Appeal Is Dismissed.

London, Nov. 8.—It is officially announced that Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, will be hanged Nov. 23.

He could not be executed Tuesday as originally arranged for the reason that the law provides that two weeks must elapse between the dismissal of an appeal and the carrying out of the sentence.

Meantime Solicitor Newton, Crippen's counsel, is drafting a petition for a reprieve.

Crippen was overjoyed when the high sheriff informed him of the postponement.

FARMER FATALLY INJURED

Thrown Under His Wagon and Badly Crushed.

Bowman, N. D., Nov. 15.—John Herron, a farmer residing north of here about fifteen miles, was seriously if not fatally injured when he was run over by a heavy load of flax, which he was hauling to Bowman. Herron was driving a yoke of oxen and attempted to cross a creek, the banks of which were very steep on each side.

The team was unable to hold the heavy load as it was going down the incline and turned out of the road, jerking the driver, who had the lines around his body, from the load. The front wheel of the wagon passed over his body, crushing his chest and breaking his arm. The unfortunate man was picked up soon after the accident and taken to a neighboring farmhouse.

Improving the Farm Home

Appliances for the comfort and sanitation of the farm home, as well as for the saving of "steps" and labor in almost every one of that home's varied industries, are now so numerous and so cheap that—whatever the case may have been in years gone by,—there is to-day practially no excuse for the premitive conditions which yet prevails in too many house-holds.

The coarse jest that womens time, like hens', ain't worth nothin'," long since lost its point—if it ever had one in the presence of the patent fact that on the use made on the womans time depends the question, not merely of her family's advancements in a pecuniary sense, but of its standing in the community. Her time is now recognized, by every man gifted with the faculty of thought as something extremely precious—something that she should never be forced to waste when a small expenditure of money will effect a daily saving. Such a saving is effected whenever, for instance a kitchen sink connected with a drain takes the place of a clumsy "dish pan or a table" whenever the pump is brought close to the door, or, better still, inside the kitchen, whenever a bathroom is introduced; whenever an inexpensive engine is made to run the churn, the wringer, the washing machine or the sewing machine; when even a meat-chopper, costing only $1.25 takes the plece of the old chopping-bowl, and enables a dish to be prepared in half the former time; whenever a steam canner enables her to get through in an hour with canning processes that once took a day and when the purchase of ready "made" garments relives her of long hours now uncessarily spent over the sewing-machine or needle since such garments may often be purchased for little more than the price she pays for the material.

If a study of this question is made, many a farmer will be surprised at the smallness of the outlay necessary to cut his wife's household burdens in half while increasing the comfort of the home affording its members opportunities, now seemingly lacking for social and other enjoyments.—C. [illegible] Barns, University Farm.

Cream Buyer Arrested.

H. A. Lindenberg, state cream inspector has arrested Max Ingber at Red Lake Falls for testing cream without a license for which he was fined $25 and costs.

He also arrested Jos. Belland, of Lambert, who was taken to Brooks and fined $15 and costs for selling adulterated milk.

It is understood that Ingber will fight the case and make a test of the law, the company for which he is buying standing behind the case.

WARSHIP ON THE SCENE

Honduran Rebel Leader Warned Not to Molest Foreigners.

New Orleans, Nov. —The United States gunboat Princeton, at anchor off Amapala, Honduras, is cleared for action and its guns are trained upon the governor's residence, now occupied by General Jose Valladares, leader of the revolt against the Davila government, according to a special cable to the Picayune from San Salvador.

The dispatch states that Valladares insulted the American consular agent at Amapala, George Schmuck, and threatened to shoot up his residence. Immediately upon being notified of this Commander Hayes of the Princeton prepared his ship for action and sent word to the revolutionist that if foreigners were molested he would shoot the governor's palace full of holes.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

The infantile paralysis scare which has been so systematically worked up and kept alive the past few weeks by certian physicians has caused more conflicting ideas and reversals of opinion among doctors in general than any epidemic of fear that has been started in a long time. The only thing that it can be compared with is the "crime wave" that a municipal police department stirs up when an enlarged appropriation or new laws giving it more despotic power are needed. On such occasions some ordinary crime is featured and covered with a mantle of mystery. The police discover new and more sensational clues hourly and this goes on untill the propuse back of it all is achieved. Then the alarming spectres fade away and are forgotten.

Infantile paralysis is not a new bugbear, although it has been widely heralded as the most modern of myserious diseases. As a matter of fact it was known and commented upon by doctors thirty or forty years ago. No one worried about it very much untill lately. As a money-maker for the medical profession it has entirely eclipsed pellagra or the hook worm.

When this excitment was first started it was asserted, for instance, that infantile paralysis sought its victims exclusively among the children of the poor. This theory received a set back the other day when the two daughters of Congressman Frank O. Lowden, of Oregon Ill. were taken ill with what eminent Chicago specialists called anterior poliompelitis which is the fear in spiring Greek name for the disease. These little girls are the grand-daughters of Mrs. George M. Pullman and is said with inherit her vast wealth. Congressman Lowden, their father is very rich also. So the poor children theory was dropped overboard.

Hardly a day passes without theory after theory being exploded and other more pictuaeque taking their plase. It reminds one of a deotive bureau that is avid for advertisement and while pretending to seek an alleged criminal spends more time in thinking of fresh ways to keep in the days news.

It is unethical for doctors to advertise but a certain class of physicians get around that very cleverly by taking advantage of the excitment over every much talked of disease. He lets it be known to the newspapers that he has made some important discovery or has envolved some sensational theories in regard to its origin treatment or cure. He allows himself to be interviewed, reluctantly of course. When he has done this several times he becomes a famous specialist—something he would not have achieved had he spent much

The State Indusrial Contest.

How a "good thing" grows, when people are found appreciative enough to "push it along," is illustrated in the remarkable success attending the "State Industrial Contest for Boys and Girls," held in St. Paul during the last days of October. It is only six years since Principal Mayne first proposed the organization of these contests; and now they are held in all quarters of the state, with a constantly increasing interest in their proceedings.

For the State Contest this year—to which only winners in local contests were admitted—there considerably over 2,000 entries. This is a number considerably in excess of the entries of an ordinary county fair.

The exhibits of the girls, in needlework, etc., were divided into three classes; one for girls under 13 and one for those between 13 and 18, in common schools; and one for girls of all ages in high schools. Exhibits of agriculture products, from boys and girls alike, were classed together.

Prizes to the value of $1,000 were distributed; and the Contest was unvoted a "great success." The Contest work will be promoted more extensively than ever during the coming year, under the auspices of the Extention Division. Those desiring to participate should send for Extention Bulletin No. 3, of which, a revised edition is in course of preparation.

If I had the time to find a place
And sit me down full face to face
With my better self, that stands no show
In my daily life that rushes so
It might be then I would see my soul
Was stumbling still toward the shining goal—
I Might be nerved by the thought sublime,
If I had the time!
If I had the time to let my heart
Speak out and take in my life a part,
To look about and stretch a hand
To a comrade quartered at no-luck land,
Ah, God! If I might but just sit still
And hear the note of the whip-poor-will,
I think that my wish with God would rhyme—
If I had the time!
If I had the time to learn from you
How much for comfort my word would do;
And I told you then of my sudden will
To kiss your feet when I did you ill—
If the tears aback of the bravado
Could force their way and let you know—
Brothers, the souls of us all would chime,
If We had the time!

THE GAME OF POLITICS.

We doubt whether anybody ever made the old-fashioned game of politics and the ludicrously foolish part the people have played in it more clear than it is made in this illuminating comment in Life by Ellis O. Jones, a clear thinker with a sharp wit and precious little respect for hoary old conventions with nothing to commend them but their age:

> Although there is much talk of a new political party, there is no settled conviction that one is necessary. Indeed, we cannot be absolutely certain that we need any political party at all.
>
> We have, to be sure, long acquiesced in the unwritten tradition that we needed two political parties in our republic, one to struggle for the offices which are held by the other. The result of this struggle is to place parties before policies, partisanship before patriotism, platitudes before particular purposes, plums before performance and politicians before people.
>
> In the meantime the office-holders, who are always as wise and as progressive as necessary continue to regulate the governmental running gear according as conditions develop and public sentiment arises. If, then, the people should gradually decide that they did not want their office-holders to be indentified with any particular party, the off their tags and throw them away, and thereafter they would take into account only two interests—that of themselves and that of the people—eliminating the third interets, that of the party. Such a 33 1-3 per cent condensation of interst is well worth striving for, and it is respectfully called to the attention of our publicists.

A lot of stodgy individuals are going about declaring that there must be government by parties in this country, and a lot of unthinking people are echoing creed. But why? Why need there be government by parties in this country? Just because this country mostly has had such government? That's no reason at all.

So far, government by parties has only confused the issues and delayed their solution.

The object of government is to serve in the best possible way the best interests of all the people. No party has that for a platform; no party ever will have that for a platform; yet it is platform enough.

If two parties could be formed, one on that platform without any trimmings, and the other running on a platform to the effect that the purpose of government is to serve the few at the expense of the many, matters would be simplified. only on such a division by party lines could party government work successfully to keep things moving ahead.

But of course there will be no such parties, and no such platforms. Mostly, parties are excrescences on the American system of government, designed to confuse the issues, to head the people off into side paths and prevent them from going ahead, and so to beguile the people with the excitement of office-chasing that they will have no time to give to the really vital issues.

With government by parties, necessarily we have government for parties and that is always at the expense of the people. Without government by parties, there might be a chance for government for the people's sake.
—Duluth Herald.

OUR FIRE TAX ASSESSMENT.

The insurance commissioner of Massachusetts asserts that the premium fire tax payers have been "eliminated" from the fire insurance business—that local agents have succeeded in increasing their annual income $7,500,000 more than they received on the lower commission basis of a few years ago.

Bulletin No. 15 issued by the Property Owners' Federation, published on another page, is the most clear and concise outline of the fire insurance situation that has ever come to our notice.

It is a bad and vigorous citation of facts that calls for the earnest consideration and careful attention of those who are paying the $9,000,000 annual fire tax of this state.

The Federation officials claim that the premium payers of the smaller cities and towns are assessed to help pay large city conflagrations a hazard to which the smaller communities are not exposed and that the millionaire risks are rated below their loss line, the smaller property owners generally are forced by the fire insurance combine to pay an assessment to make up the deficit. Are we always to submit to carrying "the rich man's burden."

Under the heading "Stock and Mutual Assessments" the Property Owners' Federation in their Bulletin No. 15 published on another page, put a new and vivid light on fire tax assessments.

DEER PARK NUBBINS.

Too Late for Last Week.

Hyland transacted business at Red Lake Falls last Friday and Saturday

S. B. Swanson and Cash Waldron left for Park Rapids last Wednesday.

Rev. E. A. Mostue transacted business at Thief River Falls last Saturday.

Mat Baker and M. E. Hyland delivered some cattle to Plummer last Friday that the St. Paul cattle buyers had purchased from them.

Mrs. E. A. Mostue left last Friday for a short visit with her parents out there.

The Nesland brothers finished up their work on the Rolandson barn last Saturday.

J. A. Duffy was up this way on business metters last week.

Mr. Gray the Democratic candidate for governor of Minnesota lost by a few thousand votes—but that does not say that County Option is dead. Ask A. D. Stephens of Crookston and he will tell you the rest.

Olof Tande from Garnes was over this way a day or two before the election in the interest of the Red Lake Falls side of the county division matter.

Ed Havick from Grit was over this way on business matters last week.

Olof Ramstad from Thief River Falls called on the settlers last week

It is now two years ago since our present Supt. of Schools took his oath for office but somehow up to this time he has failed to show up at our schools. From last account we hear that he still draws his salary in full together with the additional allowances made for expenses visiting the rural schools.

The joint debate that was to come off at our school house last Saturday evening before the election was a partial failure. We got the two sides of the question, minus the joint .

Chas. W. Johnson returned from St. Thomas, N. Dak., last Thursday where he has been for the last two months.

Ed Singer started up his gasoline saw rig last Tuesday: he also runs a feed mill in connection.

Some of the fellows that made the statement before the election that in case the county was divided why they would sell out and leave the country; will now have to pull stakes and go or take back water.

It does not pay to advertise say some merchants who have done but little of it and that without keeping it up. The incident of the boy and the pump illustrates the matter very well. The boy was sent after a pail of water. He poured in the priming and poured out as much as he poured in. Then he stopped to rest and the priming ran down. After some time of alternate pumping and resting he concluded it did not pay to pump and quit in disgust. The merchant who does not believe in advertising is like the boy who did the pumping. He advertised a few weeks, stopped a-while and allowed the people to forget him and his business before he advertised again and then concluded advertising didn't pay.—Lindstrom Press.

MINNESOTA CAN RAISE CORN

Minnesota Car to Tour Eastern and Southern States.

St Paul, Minn., Nov., 23rd.

There was a time when Minnesota was regarded as being too far North to produce good corn and it was believed that wheat always would be the main crop of Gopher State farms. At the great Northwestern Live Stock and Grain Show, which has just come to a close in this city, after what probably was its most successful run, it was demonstrated that Minnesota bids fair to take high rank in corn production before many years have passed.

Professor Andrew Boss of the state agricultural college speaking before an audience of 1000 persons in the live stock pavillion in South St. Paul, said in part: "Minnesota has earned for herself an enviable position among those states included within the famous corn belt of the United States, and her rank and importance in the production or this grain is growing yearly."

"Our state was for many years regarded as too far north to produce the higher grade of corn. It is taking patient effort, but this belief is being eradicated gradually from the minds of our farmers. They have been afraid to stake their profits on a corn experiment, and it has fallen to the lot of the state experiment stations to prove beyond doubt that the soil and climate of Minnesota are favorable to the production and good yield of the best corn.

"The experiments carried on for a period of ten years with test seed, has shown an average of 62 bushels to the acre in rotation plots and 52 bushels field grown. Instances of 100 bushels to the acre in counties in Northern Minnesota are not rare, and, in fact, wherever corn has been properly planted and cared for the yield has been creditable."

Minnesota's growing greatness as a live stock and grain state never was more impressively emphasized than at the present time at the show just closed. William Magivny, manager was hughly pleased at the large number of visitors. He considered it a good sign of the prosperity and advancement of the Northwest that so many excellent exhibitors should have been made at the show this year.

One of the features at the show that attracted much attention was the Minnesota Car. This big passenger coach which has been provided by the Great Northern Railway Co., is filled with the products of the farm, mine and forests of Minnesota. This car is to tour the Eastern and Southern states and probably will travel 10,000 miles before it returns to St. Paul. The idea of the Minnesota car is the result of a speech which Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern made before the Consolidated Publicity Bureau last February. Mr. Hill said he would provide the car if the state would equip it. George Welch, immigration commissioner of Minnesota, accepted on behalf of the state and as a result this car loaded down with evidence of the productivity of Minnesota soil is now on its invasion of the East and South.

Governor Eberhart has been resting after his strenuous campaign but has been at his office every day. There is some apprehension among certain officials who owe their postions to appointment by the governor as to whether they will hold on. Especially is this the case among several Democrats. It is expected that the governor will take action on these matters in a few days.

Meantime Governor Eberhart is preparing for the conference to be held at the St. Paul Hotel, December 5 and 6 on the forest fire question. It was first planned to have Governors Davidson of Wisconsin and Warner of Michigan attend the conference. Governor Davidson, however, was not a candidate for re-election and he expressed the desire to have the man who was chosen his successor attend instead. Accordingly Governor elect McGovern will be here as the representative of Wisconsin, while Eberhart and Warner will represent Minnesota and Michigan.

It is believed that much good will result from this conference as the program prepared by J. E. Rhodes, president of the Minnesota Forestry Association provides for discussion of the subject from its various angles. In addition to addresses by the three governors there will be speeches by Mayor Keller of St. Paul, H. S. Graves, chief forester of the United States; E. T. Allen, forester, Western Forestry and Conservation Association; R. H. Campbell, forester, Dominion of Canada; Filbert E. Roth, University of Michigan; E. M. Griffith, state forester, Wisconsin; C. C. Andrews, forestry commissioner, Minnesota; R. H. Aishton, vice president Chicago & Northwestern Railroad; Thornton A. Green, Ontonagon, Mich.,; W. B. Douglas of the minnesota Forestry Board; E. G. Cheyney, Minnesota Forestry School; Charles W. Garfield, president, Mich.-Forestry Association; Williams M. Bray, chairman committee on forestry; assembly, Wisconsin legislature; and John Lind, member Minnesota Forestry school.

From the suggestions these speakers will make it is believed a well defined plan for the prevention of future life and property destroying fires will result.

EXPECTS TO LEAVE RED LAKE FALLS.

Attorney Grady of Red Lake Falls was in the city last evening to rent an office building, and contemplates moving to Crookston and engaging in his practice. —Crookston Times

Faster Than an Aeroplane.

The Survey: A dirt road 380 miles long, and stretching across the entire state of Iowa was built in one hour's time by a force of 10,000 men. It seems that at a good roads meeting in Des Moines last spring the suggestion was made and received with general approval. Preliminary planning and organization followed, the Republican and Democratic local committees working in friendly rivalry for the common end. When the word was given, the long army of builders went to work and in an hour the road was finished.

ROSEAU COUNTY MAN EXPIRES ON A TRAIN.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taken suddenly ill on a Great Northern train en route here Saturday night, John Erickson, a well-to-do merchant of Fox, Roseau county, expired before the train reached this city without uttering a word. He was probably stricken with apoplexy. Sister Dorothy of St. Vincent's hospital, a passenger on the train, first thought he had fainted and sought to revive him with a stimulant but he was beyond human aid. He was 65 years old and leaves a wife and several children When Coroner Stenshoel telephoned Mrs. Erickson, his wife, she fainted also from the shock. Deceased had been ailing and was en route to Rochester, Minn., for a diagnosis of his trouble. He was prominent throughout this section.

Warning to School Boards.

State Superintendent Schultz is warning school districts to look out for agents who are selling maps and other school supplies for two or three times what they are worth. This warning is periodically extended. Most of the trouble arises from the fact that trustees act as individuals rather than as a board. Book agents map agents and others having things to foist upon the districts, first see one member of the board and get his promise and so to the other members, until a bargain between the district and the agent is entered into, tho the law does not recognize it as a binding contract. Working the game in this way boards are sometimes victimized by the unscrupluous. There is only one way in which trustees of the common schools can guard the interests of the district and that is to transact no business involving the district except at meetings of the board of which all have had notice. Boards should not enter into contracts made piecemeal.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $ 40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 10 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now hale, hearty and gay. It has been three years since he had the last spell. I shall give Dr. Miles' medicines praise wherever I go. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit and anyone writing to me I will gladly answer if they enclose stamp for reply."

The Scleroscope.

This little American invention has been described as a kind of mechanical finger intended to discriminate by delicacy of touch between various substances submitted to it. The ready detection of the degree of hardness and elasticity of various surfaces is its special function. It consists essentially of a light weight, like the hammer of a pile driver, which is allowed to fall inside a tube placed upright on the surface to be tested. The bottom of the hammer, which weighs only a few grains, is finished with a blunted diamond, intended to give it the requisite hardness. After a fall it rebounds, and a carefully graduated scale on the tube, indicating the height of the rebound, shows the degree of hardness of the surface experimented with. On a piece of ordinary steel the hammer rebounds nine-tenths of the height of its fall.—Youth's Companion.

money in advertising. To physicians of this class a typhoid-fever smallpox or diphtheria scarse is a Godsend and an infantile paralysis alarm a Golconda. The adherents of the "medico-political school scorn the "old fogy" methods of the doctors of the past generation—the men who placed their skill and humanity above all else and to whom pecuniary reward was only accidental. The excuse of the doctor of this school is that his profession is overcrowded and that the man with the most imagination gets the business. It is this same commercial spirit that is back of the movement to form a National Department of Health, with its head a Cabinet officer, which would place the direction of the doctoring of the inhabitants of the United States in the hands of one particular school of medicine and give it a proctical monopoly.

The history of this infantile paralysis scarse is one of the most interesting of any of these alarms. It displays a breadth of imagination that rises above the mere picturesque. The conflicting theories of methods of the various eminent experts who have "permitted" themselves to be interviewed on the subject show with startling clearness how absurd and impossible it would be to direct a National Health Department with such physicians at its head.

The cause of infantile paralysis has been assigned to scores of different things. Last summer it was gravely asserted that germ-laden dust was at the button of the whole matter. Hardly dad one set of eminent physicians announced the dust discovery before another, jealous of their fame, said that it was not dust at all but that chickens were to blame. They pointed to several cases of infantile paralysis in Montgomery County, Maryland, and te the deaths of a large number of chickens in the same reigon, both apparently from the same cause. This chicken idea was a brillant one and it was speedily followed by other eqnally fanciful surmises as to the origin of anterior poliomonyelitis. It was successively ascribed to tree-blight, soothing syrup, heredity, dampness chilled food, Bufialo gnat, dissipation, and a score of other things.

The District Medical Associations, of Washington D. C., became so alarmed about "epidemic" that a resolution was offered at one of its meetings that an appeal be made to President Taft to order an official inquiry into the disease. This motion, however, met with defeat. Certain cleer thinking physicians pointed out that there was no epidemic of infantile paralysis and that the disease was comparatively rare at the best, and was less prevalent this year than usual. But these sensible statements were soon drowned in a flood of alarming rumors. More doctors rushed into print with more theories. The health officer of Wasnington, D. C., annonnced that he disbelieved the chicken idea but favored a strict quarantine, as he considered the disease very contagious. It was therefdre ordered that pupils from homes where a case of infantile paralysis existed should not attend school for fourteen days following their last exposure. A canvass of all the houses in the District of Columbia to detrrmine the prevalency of the disease was ordered.

The crop of expepimenters in new serums for the cure of infantile paralysis has been quite as heavy as the crop of new theories. Every doctor who has spare time on his hands and an opportunity to use, free of charge, a hospital laboratory began making serums and injecting them in the monkeys and ether animals that could not get away. Try as they might, however, not one of these doctors was able to find a germ that they could charge with being guilty of infantile paralysis.

Force of Habit.

"A thousand stars are looking down on you this night," said the poetical young man to the girl.

And she unconsciously put her hands up to arrange the position of her hat.

Sparta Military Authorities Would Have Railroad Extended.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 29.—Lieutenant Gilmore, U. S. A., in charge of the national range at Sparta, and Colonel McCoy held a conference here with Congressman Esch concerning the securing of a right of way to be used jointly by the Milwaukee and the Northwestern railroads through the reservation near there. Every effort is being made to secure the building of the road to convey the troops to the range in case the national rifle meet, usually held at Camp Perry, O., is secured for Sparta next year.

A Letter From Cuba.

Cuba, Nov. 29, 1910

Editor, Plummer Pioneer:

I will now try according to my promise, to send a few lines from the land of eternal summer, it was winter and snow when I left Plummer, but the snow don't last very long for me I left Minneapolis Mov. 10th at 8 o'clock in the evening I traveled through Chicago and Niagara and come to New York Nov. 12th at 9 o' clock in the evening, I stopped of in Niagara Falls I visited the Falls and and the whill pool it is a great wonder it is worth to take a look at, I left New York City Nov. 16th on the Munson steam ship line on the boat Olinda, Nov. 18th we passed the Gulf stream and the weather was fine as it could be after we had past the gulf stream we passed in a warmer

On Nov. 20 we passed the bahama island the Island which Columbus first landed when he discovered America and the 21st day of Nov we landed in Cuba at Antila Bay, I felt pretty warm a few days before we landed here and on the coast I did not need to feel cold either, every thing is green and in bloom here, there are wild flowers in all kinds of colors and of course trees bushes and vines that I don't know any names for except a few which are the Palms Mahagony and some of the fruit trees are oranges, lemons, bannanas, limes an coffee grows very good here and and are very cheap because there is no market yet I have been here a week now and always got as much fruit as I like to eat without money, the only thing to depend on here is sugarcane but it takes lots of money to buy the land, get it cleared and planted into sugar-cane it will cost but 100 dollars an acre the land is rolley and blufs and heavy timber on it that is what makes it so expensive to get it in cultivation but very rich land everything grows. The roads here are in very bad condition it is next to impossible in the wet season to use them for wagons and it seems to be so over the whole island. The people travel mostly on horseback the buggy can-not be used the climate seems to be [illegible] here is no summers no winters here is the dry and wet season the days is warm but 90 degrees in the shade. The nights are cool enough to get a good sleep so I guess I can stand it if it don't get much warmer, well I have now tried to give you a little idea of the island of Cuba and the life here.

Seeks Licence at Bemidji.

There is at least one saloonkeeper in Bemidji who looks upon Pussyfoot Johnson as a bluff, and who apparently does not believe that Bemidji is to lose her saloons, for he made application at the meeting of the city council there last night for a liquor license

Ed Fay, who is proprietor of a place at 114 Third street, is the man who requests Bemidji to issue him a license to sell intoxicating liquor there.

Of course, the application must first be advertised, which is done at the expense of the applicant. After this it goes to the council for action. Just at present it is the policy of the council to lay such requests on the table. Should the saloons there close, and later be open, the applications on the table would be first in order for consideration.

THE CALL

For a Convention of the Progressive Republicans of Minnesota, to be held in Minneapolis, January 4, 11 and Banquet to be held in St Paul on the evening of the same day.

To the Progressive Republicaus of Minnesota:—

The Progressive Republicans of Minnesota are waging a vigorous fight within their party for clean goverment and popular rule. This is an uprising of the people that is spontaneous and not the result of any pre-arranged leadership or plan. It springs from causes that are deep seated and common to the whole state.

The voters of Minnesota are driving special interest from the control of the state goverment. They are driving business out of politics and politics out of business. They are restoring to themselves the power guaranteed in the State Constitution.

The essentials of success in this struggle comprise a complete organization of all the people, together with such progressive legislation as will give the people an even opportunity with predatory interests.

It is deemed wise and necessary that Progressive Republicans from all parts of the State shall convene for careful consideration of the best means of securing these desirable results. With this purpose in view the progressive Republican Leagues of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater have, through a joint committee, arranged for a convention to be held in Minneapolis on the fourth day of January, 1911, and a banquet to be held in St. Paul on the evening of the same date.

The Committee signing this call therefore extends an invitation to the Progressive Republicans of the State to be well represented at this convention and banquet.

This is the first political convention ever held in the northwest solely for the purpose of considering political principals. It is the hope of the Committee that every progressive Republican in the State will co-operate to make this movement a success.

FRANCE IS FLOODED

Practically Every Stream Out of Its Banks.

RAIN CONTINUES TO FALL

Hundreds of Villages Surrounded by Water Being Provisioned by Soldiers With Boats.

Paris, Dec. 4.—The dyke along the river Rhone, protecting Lapalud, has burst, submerging the town.

Several houses were demolished and it is feared that a number of persons were killed.

Military engineers were sent to Lapalud to render assistance.

Torrential downpours continue throughout France and the flood situation hourly grows more serious.

Hundreds of villages are surrounded by water and are being provisioned by soldiers with boats. Immense damage has been caused in the valley of the Loire by the breaking of the dyke near Nantes. The waters flooded farms and villages lying below the level of the embankment to a depth of six feet. The floods also invaded the lower quarters of the Nantes, rising to the tops of the lamp posts in the streets.

Practically every stream in France is out of its banks.

The Rhone is again rising at the rate of two inches an hour, overflowing its banks and driving the people of the neighborhood to the hills. The railroad lines are cut at many places and mails are being delivered in boats.

Caen, in the department of Calvades, is flooded.

JUDGE TAYLER DEAD.

Ohio Federal Jurist Is Stricken Suddenly.

ILL BUT A FEW HOURS

Federal Judge Tayler of Ohio Expires at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Nov. 27.—Judge Robert W. Tayler, United States district judge for Southern Ohio, who sentenced Cassie Chadwick to the penitentiary, is dead.

Judge Tayler was suddenly stricken while attending an entertainment and died within a few hours after being taken to the hospital.

Tayler's death occurred on his fifty-eighth birthday. He first entered politics in 1894, when he was elected to congress from the Eighteenth Ohio congressional district, being three times re-elected and nominated a fifth time, when he retired to engage in the practice of law.

While in congress Tayler handled the prosecutions of the Roberts polygamy case, winning thereby a national reputation.

SHORT COURSE FOR FARMERS.

The next term of this course provided by the Faculty of the Minnesota School and College of Agriculture to meet the needs of men and women of mature years who are actively interested in farm work—will open on Friday, Jan. 13, and will continue for four weeks, closing on Feb. 10, 1911.

At the last term, the attendance on this course was 236. The indications are that the enrollment next January will be between 400 and 500. To meet this influx, new arrangements are planned. The general lectures will be given in the large assembly hall of the School, while for other purposes the students will be divided into sections, meeting in various class-rooms.

The topics handled will cover the more important branches of agriculture, horticulture, live-stock, farm boatny, farm chemistry, entomology, poultry, dairying, etc. Ladies interested in any of these will find the dialy program arranged for their accommodation. Special instruction will be given in the judging of grains soils and animals.

It is planed to have a serious of special lectures every day and every evening, by specialists from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, and by others from the Agricultural Colleges of other states; beside some from distinguished men not so connected.

It is planned to have a series of to the Course will find their time fairly well "filled up." Indeed, as some one remarked, it looks as though the purpose was to keep them at work "all day and night."

The recent great enlargement of the dining facilities of the School will make comparatively easy the regular supplying of meals for the expected throng.

IMPROVING THE FARM HOME-1.

Appliances for the comfort and sanitation of the farm home, as well as for the saving of 'steps' and labor in almost every one of that home's varied industries, are now so numerous and so cheap that—whatever the case may have been in years gone by, —there is today practically no excuse for the primitive conditions which yet prevail in too many households. The coarse jest, that "Woman's time, like hens", ain't worth nothin'," long since lost its point—if it ever had one—in the presence of the patent fact that on the use made of the woman's time depends the question, not merely of her family's advancement in a pecuniary sense, but of its standing in the community. Her time is now recognized, by every man gifted with the faculty of thought, as something extremely precious—something that she should never be forced to waste when a small expenditure of money will effect a daily saving. Such a saving is effected whenever, for instance, a kitchen sink, connected with a drain, takes the place of the clumey "dish pan on a table;" whenever the pump is brought close to the door, or, better still, inside the kitchen; whenever a bath-room is introduced; whenever an inexpensive engine is made to run the churn, the wringer, the washing machine, or the sewing machine; whenever a meat-chopper, costing only $1.25, takes the place of the old chopping-bowl, and enables a dish to be prepared in half the former time; whenever a steam "canner" enables her to get through in an hour with canning processes that once took a day; and when the purchase of "ready made" garments relieves her of long hours now unmachine or needle—since such garments may often be purchased for little more than the price she pays for the material.

If a study of this question is made, many a farmer will be surprised at the smallness of the outlay necessary to cut his wife's household burdens in half, while increasing the comfort of the home and affording its members opportunities, now seemingly lacking, for social and other enjoyments.

U. S. CENSUS BY COUNTIES.

Shows Growth in Last Decade Of Over 18 per Cent.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 7th.—The Pioneer Press says: The census returns for Minnesota were eagerly awaited by those who were making the plans for a legislative reapportionment, made in 1897 on the basis of the 1895 state census, was not based entirely on state population. The federal census of 1900 and the state census of 1905 showed increased inequalities, but these are much more apparent now than ever before. Some of the districts in the Northern counties have five times as large population as some of the Southern districts.

Dodge county, which was the smallest district in the reapportionment of 1895, has decreased and has only 12,094 people, but has a senator and arepresentative. The largest district is that composed of Aitkin Carlton, Itasca, Cass and Koochiching counties, which was larger than Dodge county in 1895 and is now more than five times as large. Still it has only one senator and two representatives.

Waseca isnext to Dodge with 13,468, Nicollet third with 14,125 and Houston fourth with 14,297, yet each of them has a senator and a representative. The district composed of Clearwater and Beltrami has 58,842, the St. Louis county districts have an average of 57,540 each and several of the Twin City districts have about 50,000, yet they have no more representation in the senate than Waseca, Nicollet or Houston and most of them two in the house. Several other districts in the northern part of the state have about 40,000 people.

The folowing table shows the population of each legislative district under the population of 1910 and also in 1895, on which the last reapportionment was based:

Districts 38 to 44 are included in Hennepin county, whose population now is 333,480, or 49,640 for each of the seven senators. In 1895 the population was 217,798, or 31,114 for each senator. The county has fourteen members.

Experts on immigration state that there is absolutely no question but that the increase in Minnesota will be far greater during the next ten years than they have been during the past and some even go so far as to state that the entire northern part of the state a great part of which is still wild lands will be turned into finely cultivated lands by the end of the next decade; nothing seems more certain than that by the next national census Pennington county will have a larger population than all of Red Lake had at this count.

HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING COMPLETE.

Contractor Has Finished Work. Furniture Will Complete Accomodiations.

The new High-school building is complete and Lars Pearson the contractor who has constructed the building left on Wednesday evening for his home at Minneapolis. The building is all ready for the putting in of the furniture and it is expected that this will be done so as to have it all in readiness for use after the Holiday vacation.

This new school has been named the Lincoln School and a formal opening will be celebrated in the near future by elaborate exercises.

Matt Bakken has been assisting his father-in-law Per Reusla this week geting home his hay from Erie.

M. E. Hyland was down to Terrebonne for an other load of flour last Friday. Martin is doing a rushing business.

The Singer-Peterson gasoline saw rig returned from Kartka last Friday and they will soon grind feed at Rhoda.

Thomas E. Ronie left for Grit and other points last Saturday on an extended visit.

The grand ball held in the Kolski hall last Saturday evening was well attended.

Theodore Walseth, a young man residing at Oklee, was taken sick with typhoid fever about a month ago and on last Friday succumbed to the same. He leaves an aged mother and sister together with a host of friends that will forever mourn his loss.

Here are some fathers that are not much of an inspiration to their sons, and they by turn, while trying to folow "dads" footsteps, and have a good time, are called upon, in an un-looked for moment, tofill an untimely grave-than sickness or abuse-.

Thor Skreland, one of the Oklee carpenters, took a tumble the other day off from a scaffold while at work but as luckwould have it, Tony lit on the broad side of the over-alls and came out none the worse, but Oklee is shy a carpenter. He says, "that's snuff," for him.

What about having a series of Poverty Balls during the next few weeks, for the purpose of raising some funds for the poor and needy in our towns? The young people wouldenjoy the pleasure, and the poor would enjoy the proceeds, and really, we can't see where the harm would come in.

Pennington County is born, so they tell us, but from last accounts, from Deer River, the little infant is still very weak, and needs careful nursing in order to pull thru so,

Hush a bye baby, so sings Thief River,
For Dady is busy, preparing a new dope for baby,
In the Supreme Court.
When mother's milk is all gone,
Dady will come home,
So hush a bye baby, and that is all;
Whether you live or you die,
Your doom you will meet my dear, in St. Paul.

The new store of Oklee looks good, in fact, its a hummer. There are now four stores. Two hardware stores, one hotel, two resturants, meat market feed store, harnesshop, lumber yard, livery-barn, nice depot, blacksmith-shop one elevator but no saloon. That town starts out right.

TOP BERTHS LESS

New Rates Announced by the Pullman Company.

RESULT OF THE LOFTUS SUIT

Complaint of St. Paul Man Finally Brings About Reduction in Sleeping Car Charges.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—General reduction of the rates for upper Pullman berths and in certain instances for lower berths were announced before Commissioners Franklin K. Lane and E. E. Clark of the interstate commerce commission by G. S. Fernald of the Pullman company. No testimony in the cases before the commission was taken.

The reduction in upper berth rates offered is 20 per cent where the lower berth rate exceeds $1.50. Various reductions are announced for the rates on lower berths in specific instances.

The hearing, at which the promise of reduction was made, was a rehearing of the petition of George S. Loftus of St. Paul against the Pullman company, the point at issue being the upper berth rates between Chicago and the Pacific coast. Last March the interstate commerce commission ordered a reduction in the rates for both upper and lower berths and the United States circuit court enjoined the enforcement of this order. Instead, it directed that a rehearing be held.

The offer of the Pullman company proving satisfactory to the "plaintiff" before the commission no testimony in the rehearing was heard.

Minimum Rate Is $1.25.

"Hereafter the minimum rate for upper berths will be $1.25, instead of $1.50," said Mr. Fernald, who is assistant general solicitor of the Pullman company.

"We have not prepared all our tables establishing the new rates," explained Mr. Fernald, "but we are working on them as fast as possible.

"We decided that although the upper berths cost more to build, furnish and maintain than the lower public discrimination against the uppers required a reduction in their price. Where the lower berth is rated at $1.50 the upper berth will be $1.25, and in all instances other than this the upper berths will cost 80 per cent of the lower.

"Not a rate has been raised by this new schedule, but we are endeavoring to adjust all charges to correspond with the Eastern standard of 6 mills a mile.

"Lower berths from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Seattle and intermediate Pacific coast points are reduced from $12 to $11. The rate on upper berths was made $8.80."

SALOON FIGHT ON IN IOWA

Wets and Drys in Fierce Struggle in Hawkeye State.

Marshalltown, Ia., Dec. 6.—Within the next ninety days the forces of temperance and of the saloon will be entered in what gives promise of being one of the most stubborn fights over the traffic ever waged in the state.

On July 1, 1911, all the mulct petitions in the various cities and towns of the state that are wet expire and under them the saloons in those places can no longer operate. Before that date it will be necessary for the saloons in all of these places to circulate new petitions of consent, which must have a majority of the names of all the voters who voted at the last preceding election.

The saloon forces, backed by the brewery interests, are aligning their strength in preparation for the circulation of these petitions. The law gives the saloonists only thirty days in which to get signatures on petitions and, if they fail, other petitions cannot be circulated until the next calendar year.

FORMER RECORDS BROKEN

Long Casualty List of Hunting Season Just Closed.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The hunting season of 1910, which closed Wednesday, cost 113 lives. This is considerably more than were killed during any previous season of which there is any record. The loss of life in 1909 was eighty-seven, in 1908 fifty-seven, in 1907 eighty and in 1906 seventy-four.

The number of injured this season, however, is less than a year ago; only eighty-one have been hurt this year against 104 for the season of 1909.

It is likely the death list this year will be considerably increased later by reason of fatal termination in the cases of many of the injured.

NEW GOVERNOR APPOINTED

Order Restored in Portuguese Dependency in China.

Lisbon, Dec. 2.—Official advices received from Macao, the Portuguese dependency in China, state that complete order was restored following the granting of the demands of the rebellious soldiers and sailors.

The governor of Macao, who was suspected of protecting the religious orders, has been replaced by Judge Marques Vidal. The population acclaimed the change of administration.

CONGRESS IN SESSION

Speaker Cannon Given Ovation in the House.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Speaker Cannon received a remarkable ovation when he took up the gavel to announce the opening of the session of the house. The applause lasted several minutes and the Democrats joined with the Republicans in acclaiming the veteran legislator. Representative Champ Clark also was given a similar ovation when he entered immediately on the conclusion of the prayer, the Democrats hailing him as the speaker of the next house.

Both houses adjourned almost immediately after the formal assembling calls of the rolls and the adoption of resolutions on the passing of those members who have died since the adjournment of the last session.

Explorer Confesses He May Not Have Reached Pole.

MAY NOT HAVE REACHED POLE

Dr. Cook Admits He Might Have Been Mistaken.

New York, Dec. 1.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Brooklyn explorer, in an article which will be published in Hampton's Magazine, confesses that he does not know whether he reached the North pole or not. Dr. Cook, who hsa been in hiding for over a year, has informed the editors of the magazine publishing his story that he will return to the United States with his wife and children Dec. 22 in order to spend Christmas here.

The explorer states that it would be impossible for any man to demonstrate beyond question that he had been to the North pole. He characterizes the region as a region of insanity, where one cannot believe the evidences gathered by one's own eyes. He says that he had always looked upon the discovery of the pole as an achievement for his own personal satisfaction, for the satisfaction of a craving and desire that was greater than any other factor in his life. When he found how tremendous a sensation his statement that he had attained the pole created he was overcome with bewilderment.

Science and Cheese.

A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference unless he waits for results?

There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a conjurer.

For instance, there is the brand known as limburger.

But why pursue the subject?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade, I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured.

An Explanation.

"What is 'making both ends meet,' pa?" "Keeping your feet on your mind, my son."—New York Press.

Collar as a Verb.

The verb "collar" has long been used transitively, meaning to "seize or take hold of a person by the collar; more loosely, to capture." The verb was thus employed early in the seventeenth century. Steele in the Guardian, No. 84, wrote, "If you advised him not to collar any man." Other instances are Gentleman's Magazine, 1762, "His lordship collared the footman who threw it," and Marryat's sentence in "Peter Simple," "He was collared by two French soldiers."

INCREASE OF 20.9 PER CENT

Census of 1900 Showed a Population of 77,256,630, a Gain for the Past Ten Years of 15,977,691.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The population of the United States is 93,402,151. This is the total number of people enumerated throughout the states, territories, District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico in the thirteenth census, which began April 15, 1910. The total does not include the Philippine islands.

The increase in the country's population during the last ten years was 16,145,521, or 20.9 per cent, over 77,256,630, the population in 1900, compared with an increase of 14,276,864, or 22.7 per cent, over 62,979,766, the population in 1890.

The population of Continental United States is 91,972,266, an increase of 15,977,691, or 21.0 per cent, over 75,994,575 in 1900, when the increase was 13,046,861, or 20.7 per cent, over 62,947,714, the total in 1890.

The number of persons in the military and naval service of the United States stationed abroad and on naval vessels is 55,608.

Minnesota, which stood nineteenth in 1900, retains that position and Wisconsin still holds thirteenth place, the same as in 1900. Iowa, which was tenth in 1900, is now fifteenth. North Dakota, which stood forty-first in 1900, is now thirty-eighth, and South Dakota remains stationary, retaining thirty-seventh place.

The grand total, including the Philippine islands, Guam, American possessions in Samao and the canal zone is about 101,100,000. The population by states for 1910 and 1900 is as follows:

Population by States.

"Have you boarded long at this house?" inquired the new boarder of the sour, dejected man sitting next to him.

"About ten years."

"I don't see how you can stand it. Why haven't you left long ago?"

"No other place to go," said the other dismally. "The landlady's my wife."

The Family Scrap Book.

Mrs. Sauers (to Willy as minister calls to see Mr. Sauers)—Willy, is your father in? Willy—Yes; he's upstairs looking over your scrap book. Mrs. Sauers (puzzled)—You mean my family account book? Willy—Well, it's all the same. He and you always have a scrap every time he goes over it.

PLUMMER IS BUILDING A CITY HALL.

Our Village has now commenced to build an City Hall, and has so far advenced in construction as to give one a more definite idea of what appearence the structure will present when completed, and it is safe to say that there is no misrepresentation in the statement that the building will be one of the most imposing and eleborate building in Plummer.

It will be an ornament to our city, and our citizens can feel justly proud in having a city hall, not only from the view point of archiecture, but from the more lasting and greater significance of the object of attainment.

Mr A. Alrick have the contract for the erection of this building and they are rushing the work towards completion at fast as possible so as to have it ready for occupancy by Christmas or Newyear.

Its occupation, is intended, will be celebrated by the city firemen, and other popular parties, and dances which Will evidently occur during that time.

Two Women Kill Bear With Axe and Pitchfork

A story comes from Vita, a station on the Canadian Northhrn between Warroad and Emerson, to the effect that a big black bear was killed there by Mrs. Hyrenek and her daughter, who live on a claim three miles south of the station. During their absence from the house a bear wandered inside. There was a dog in the house and a fight ensued which brought the women in aamed with an axe and pitchfork, with which they attacked and killed the bear. The dog, however, was so bad'y used up that he died.

Auction Sale!

On Monday Dec. 19th there will be a auction sale at Plummer, of one carload of working horses, in waight from 1000 to 1400 lb. If you are in need of some working horses we wish you will come and look them over.

We will sell horses privately before and after the auction sale.

Mixing His Dates.

There is a story of a man who was so transported with joy as he stood up at the altar rail to be married that his thoughts reverted to a day when he stood up at the prisoner's bar in a court of justice to plead "guilty" or "not guilty" to a criminal charge. So powerfully did that, the most painful event of his life, obtrude itself upon his mind that when the clergyman put the question, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" and so on, the poor, distracted bridegroom answered with startling distinctness, "Not guilty, so help me!"—From Tuckerman's "Personal Recollections."

A Stubborn Opening.

The head of the household was going through her husband's pockets the next morning.

"What kept you out so late last night?" she suddenly demanded.

"It was the opening of the campaign, my dear," the lesser half replied.

"Well, it didn't take three corkscrews to open it, did it?"

And she drew the offending articles from his side pocket and waved them before him.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Riot of Ink.

Canon Nicholl used to tell how on one occasion he had visited the famous house of the Thrales in that suburb of London where Dr. Johnson was at home. "Johnson," said the canon in recalling his visit, "had occupied two rooms, and these were left as he last used them. The sight was an extraordinary one, for ink was splashed all over the floor and even on the walls. It was one of the doctor's habits to dip his pen in ink and then shake it."

WHITE BECOMES CHIEF JUSTICE

President Promotes Member of Supreme Bench.

VAN DEVANTER IS SELECTED

Present Judge of Eighth Circuit and Joseph Lamar of Georgia Named to Fill Other Vacancies.

Washington, Dec. 13.—President Taft has sent to the senate these nominations:

To be chief justice of the United States supreme court, Associate Justice Edward Douglass White of Louisiana.

To be associate justices United States supreme court, Judge Willis Van Devanter of Wyoming and Judge Joseph Rucker Lamar of Georgia.

To be judges of the new court of commerce:

Martin A. Knapp, now chairman of the interstate commerce commission, for a term of five years.

Robert W. Archbald of Scranton, Pa., now United States district judge for the Middle district of Pennsylvania, term of four years.

William H. Hunt, now a judge of the court of customs appeals, formerly United States district judge of the district of Montana, term of three years.

John Emmet Carland of South Dakota is to be judge of the new court of commerce for a term or two years. This is a change from the original slate, Arthur C. Denison, United States district judge for the Western district of Michigan, having first been selected for this place.

It was explained that the promotion of Judge Denison to the commerce court would have given Michigan three circuit judges, more than the president thought should come from one state. Accordingly, the president decided to name Judge Carland. He was recommended for the nomination by the South Dakota delegation.

Mack Gets Short Term.

Julian W. Mack, now judge in the appellate circuit court of the First Illinois district, term of one year.

To be members of the interstate commerce commission:

B. H. Meyer of Wisconsin and C. C. McChord of Kentucky.

The appointments to the interstate commerce commission are to be made to fill the vacancies caused by the elevation of Mr. Knapp to the commerce court and the forthcoming retirement of former Senator Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri. The commission will elect its new chairman.

The members of the commission who remain are Messrs. Clark, Harlan, Clements, Lane and Prouty.

The commerce court is a court created in the amendment to the interstate commerce act passed in June last by this congress.

The law provides for the appointment of five additional circuit judges by the president, who are to constitute the court, and no two or whom shall be appointed from the same judicial circuit. The judges so appointed are to serve on the commerce court and after being relieved from that service are to be assigned to work on the circuits as circuit judges.

LIBERALS HAVE GOOD LEAD

Majority of Fifty-six in New House of Commons.

London, Dec. 13.—Six belated returns bring the coalition aggregate up to 283, as against 227 Unionist seats in the new parliament.

The Liberals scored a gain in the Cricklade division of Wiltshire, giving Premier Asquith and his associates a net gain of one seat on the week's pollings.

The government's ranks are made up as follows: Liberals, 187; Nationalists, 56; Independent Nationalists, 7; Labor members, 33.

GRANTS NO CHANGE OF VENUE

Court Turns Down the Request of the Attorneys for Deitz.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 13.—The Deitz murder trial will continue as it began in Hayward, the county seat of Sawyer county, in spite of strenuous objections on the part of the attorneys for the defense.

Circuit Judge A. R. Reid denied an application for a change of venue to another community on the grounds that a change of venue had been allowed when he superseded Judge Wickham on the bench for this trial.

Most men talk about their principles but work for their policies.

Ballinger has been exonerated by the Senate Committee. This will, however, not exonerate him in the minds of the public.

Did it ever occur to you that the Lord Mayor of London, England was but a few years ago characterized as a 'prohibition crank.'

TENNESSEE BLIZZARDS.

Fierce blizzards and delayed traffic are reported in Tennessee, Ohio and other states in the south and east, while in Northern Minnesota there has been nothing approaching a blizzard and we have had ideal winter weather with barely enough snow for sleighing. Observant people are finding out that the climate of this part of the Union is not what it has oft times been portrayed by misinformed and predjudiced writers in the east. Come to Northern Minnesota and live in the most enjoyable and healthful climate in the Union. —Middle River Pioneer.

THE STATE LAND SYSTEM.

THE MOST earnest, the most thoughtful and the most valuable paper read at the Brainerd convention was that of Hugh J. Hughes, editor of Farm, Stock and Home. It showed the awful harvest of waste, both in money and life, from the present method of handling state lands.

Mr. Hughes laid down a broad basic principle when he said: "No matter if we build roads on every section line, no matter if we drain every swamp, and make fires a thing unknown; no matter if we sell every acre of state land and every stick of its timber, until we get producers onto the soil we remain poor."

What the state is doing under the present system he stated as follows: "We take the man on whom we depend to make the forest a farm, wring the hope out of him, damn him to the hell of poverty that our lands may increase in value, chase him off a quarter that looks good to us, burn him out, rob his family of that society which is their right, and then try and square the bill with God Almighty by tinkering up a road law or providing a few more politicalappointees to patrol the northern forests."

Mr. Hughes did not over-state the facts, as this northern country can prove by thousands of cases. But he did not stop with criticism; he followed this with outlining a constructive policy of community settlement.

The present system is little less than a crime; it is nothing more than waste, and the state's land department is a joke, which is as distasteful to the officials in charge as it is bitterly resented by those who experience its consequences.

Farm, Stock and Home has bee

as it is now doing in agitating this fundamental reform in the settlement of the state's lands.—Duluth News Tribune.

The so-called "progressive Republicans" will hold a convention in Minneapolis on January 4th for the considering of political principles, as they term it. A good many of the progressives are a lot of sourheads who supported Gray at the last election. They ought to go where they belong, to the Democratic party, or else organize a new party, for if such men as Youngdahl and Rachie can't rule they try to ruin, and the sooner such men get out the better it will be for the party.—Clara City Herald.

With the so-called Progressive Republicans out of the party ranks the remainder of the party would last quick without the Progressives to keep it somewhat in line with the will of the people.

CONGRESS NOW AT WORK

WASHINGTON, D. C., DEC. 15, 1910

That there will be a spirited contest this session over the Ballinger reports recently submitted to Congress is generally conceded. The majority report headed by Senator Nelson, exonerating the Secretary of the Interior, is not considered here as fairly representative of the sentiment of the country at large, and it is quite doubtful whether this report will be adopted, and certainly not without the hardest kind of a fight. If it comes to a vote in the House it is questionable as to whether it could muster sufficient strength to force its adoption, while on the other hand the Madison report, or the minority report of the Democrats, both of which upheld the charges preferred against Mr. Ballinger, would come nearer receiving favorable action. There is some talk of combining both the Madison and minority reports in one, thereby securing added support for its adoption. It is a dead-sure thing that the stand-pat Republicans will play a game of delay with the Ballinger matter and will do their utmost to side-track all efforts aimed at bringing it to a head this session. They want all this Ballinger unpleasantness forgotten and anything they can do to stifle Congressional action at this time, especially on the eve of the Democrats entering into legislative control of the lower branch of Con-gress, will materially assist in gaining their point.

Ever since Congress has convened the Progressive Republicans have been counting noses and estimating their probable strength in the next Congress. A conservative estimate places the number of Progressive Republicans in the next House at fifty Recently the significant statement was made by one who is prominent in the councils of the progressive wing of the party that if more insurgents had been in the running at the last election, the House of Representatives would have been saved to the Republicans.

This recalls the prophecy made last winter by Representative Lindberg of Minnesota, himself a true-blue Progressive, that the salvation of the Republican party was through insurgency. It is said that some of the organization Republicans are just beginning to see the Light and now realize that there was more of truth than fiction in this assertion.

While numerically the Republicans have lost the next House to the Democratic party, yet from the standpoint of the Progressive Republicans the result of the recent election was a net gain to the cause of Republicanism. This is the way one Progressive puts it:

"The majority of the stand-pat leaders of the party, the cogs in the party machinery, either voluntarily retired or were defeated. There is now new material in the party. We have now a new party leadership, progressive, which is sure to result to the ultimate advantage of the party and to restore it in the confidence of the people. The result of the fall's elections did not indicate a vote of confidence in the minority party. The people merely rebuked the party leaders who had subverted party organization for selfish purposes and for certain special interests.

Organization papers are still trying to convince the country that Roosevelt has been forever and a day eliinated from American politics. Organization Republicans and Tammany Democrats, both, by the way of the same brand, do not tire of harping on the recent New York elections and pointing out that it spelled defeat for Roosevelt and his future prestige as a political factor. One hears this talk about the Capitol from morning to night. It is in the air where ever organization Republicans, with the big business interests behind them, would like nothing better than to get Roosevelt out of the way, so as to have clear sailing for the renomination of Taft in 1912. Not that they like Taft's legislative program,-no, not in the least-but they have found out after nearly two years legislative experience with the genial Taft in the White House, that as between Roosevelt and Taft the latter is the more easily led. But, as one Progressive remarked, Roosevelt is still very much alive.

With the Democrats paving the way for control of the next House of Representatives, which will convene in December 1911, the question is being asked whether Champ Clark, who in all probability will be the next Speaker, will favor the selection of a committe on committees, which was the first state in which it stepped will have the power of naming committees. This proposition was a pet hobby with Representative Clark during the last session of Congress and one which he advocated in and out of session. Of course, it was good Democratic politics to talk and urge the committee on committes plan but now that the Democrats are about to taste of the sweet fruits of victory and to take the reins of parliamentary control in their own hands will they, it is pertinently asked, rule the House with democratic gentleness, or will it be a despotic rule. In other words. will Clarkism and Cannonism, so far as method of House procedure, is concerned be synonymous terms? Will the iron rule of Cannon be substituted by the no less despotic rule of Clark? These are the questions involved in the present controversy within the Democratic party.

There is good authority for the statement that a resolution to have the committes appointed by the House will meet with strong opposition from a large number of Democrats, and it is far from certain that Mr. Clark will not be among that number. The progressive Democrats, as a rule, are making a fight to further curtail the power of the Speaker and to lodge in a committee on committees the power of naming the House committees. They will be generally supported in this movement by the Progressive Republicans. On the other hand Democratic members of the House who are in line for important committee chairmanships in the next Congress see in this movement the possibility of defeating their plans and depriving them of a coveted position as the position as the head of an important committee. It is said that a canvass of the situation has convinced the conservative Democratic that they cannot successfully oppose this movement.

FALSE WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

CONGRESSMAN WILSON of Chicago is framing a law aimed to reform the habit of false weights and measurers. So is Senator La Follette, and there is hope for the buyers now paying for atmosphere and wrapping paper,

Mr. Wilson would like to hear from house-wives as to this subject. If all who find cans partly filled with air, jars with a vacant space under the lids, bottles whose corks do not reach and packages where paper counts, write to him, he will need to hire a dray line to deliver his mail. Possibly the baking powder, tea, coffee, spice and other cans that contain a half-inch or more waste space do not prove under weight or measure but if not that, then it does prove extravagant over-investment in tin.

When one of those pretty white crocks of condensed beef from Mr. Wilson's town, at 50 cents per, is opened and the far-reaching cork is found to fall considerably short of the contents, perhaps it only shows that the condensation was continuous after bottling. At the best it takes a microscope to find the beef.

But there is another feature of short weights complained of by butchers. The packers charge meat prices for all wrappers. Frequently indeed as a rule, so we are informed, this adds from a half a cent to a cent to the price of the package.

When meats wholesale at from 15 to 18 cents a pound, five or six pounds of paper and burlap add from 75 cents to a dollar to the charge of the package, which is a cent per pound on from 75 to 100 pounds of meat.

The wrapper is not edible, nor salable second hand. Neither is it worth 15 to 18 cents a pound new, nor over a fifth of that price. This is little less than fraud and beats saving the squeal of the pig. It adds to the apparent profit of the butcher, for, of course, it is paid for by the consumer.

In fact, this weight and measure fraud runs riot, apparently, and has an extent that certainly needs curb-jail penalty attached, and we wish Mr. Wilson success, though we see a rough road ahead for him and for the senator; the latter, however, is used to it.—Duluth News Tribune.

A PANIC IS A REFLECTION.

In his annual report, Secretary of the Treasury, McVeagh makes more than one suggestion that is worth the attention of the financial interest of the country. There is one point that he advances, however, that stands out in importance and deserves an emphasis that it loses in the volume of his recommendations. It is the necessity of such a revision of our currency system as will make it a panic preventive instead of a panic-breeder as at present. Panics, he says are no longer necessary and no longer respectable. He might have gone a step further and declared that panics are disreputable and a distinct reflection upon our monetary system, inevitably so when "it is for the government to say whether we shall have panics in the future or not." This being true, a panic carries with it the stigma of governmental incompetency. Other nations have so organized their currency system so as to make panics practically impossible; ours opens the way to conditions making panics easy. Where to lay the blame is a question answered.

Our banking method, as Secretary McVeagh points out, destroys and leaves us without a system of reserves. Reserves inevitably accumulate in New York, where the system steps in, compels the banks to make loans of them and abolish them. As fast as the reserve inclines to accumulate it is destroyed by the system. Stability and flexibility at the same time are impossible under the conditions.

With a situation so apparent, with the knowledge so general and with experience so often repeated, it is really a matter of marvel that the leading financiers of the country have not met and solved the currency problem, a solution concededly in their power. The necessity is obvious and urgent and there is no reason why factional contest or political difference should obtrude itself into the adoption of a system that will afford protection and assure the security. We should be removed from the possibility of the national disgrace of panics.—St. Paul Dispatch.

CO-OPERATIVE WASHING.

Mr. farmer next Monday your wife or daughter or some of the women folks of yaur family will be bending over the washing board. These women will work all day Monday and part of Tuesday doing the family washing and ironing. They will earn a total of about fourteen cents with their two day's work, since that is what it would average to do your family washing at a co-operative family laundry. Now think of the fourteen cents your wife and daughter are going to earn next week, and every week, and remember that it would cost $5.00 per family if all the families who patronize your cooperative creamery would make up a fund of $500 or $600 to buy laundry machinery and the labor cost would be fourteen cents per family for each week's washing and ironing.

We would like to see womens' right enforced in this case. We would like to see the women do the nice easy work of the farm for awhile, which consists of riding a gang plow, or hay loader or any other automatic machine, and let the men folks do the real drudgery of the farm, by doing the family washing and ironing a few weeks. It isn't fair to make the women do all the hard work of the farm just because they can earn fourteen cents a week doing it.—Northwestern Agriculturist.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

STATE NEWS IN STORY

ST. PAUL, MINN., Dec. 15, 1910. Reports received at the general offices of the Great Northern railway and Immigration commissioner Welsh continue to tell of the splendid impression being made on the people of Illionis by the Minnesota exhibit car.

The car has not left Illionis which fas the first statein which it stepped after leaving St. Paul. Immigration Commissioner Welsh was with the car for several days and he returned to St. Paul highly pleased with the interest taken in the car and the exhibits.

Mr. Welsh has received from Elias Warner who has just been elected to the state legislature from Cottonwood county the information that he realized $40.30 an acre from a field of flax he raised in the last season.

The 37-acre field in which the flax was raised had been pastured for several years when Mr. Warner platted his seed. He obtained 630 bushels when it was threshed and sold it for $2.37 a bushel, making $1493.10. About three fourths of this was profit as flax requires little work.

"This is one demonstration of what can be done on Minnesota farm-lands that are selling for $30. to $65. an acre," said Commissioner Welsh. It is things of this kind that we are trying to show to the people of other states on the Minnesota car. I wish to add that we are doing it."

One thing is certain, whatever else may be the truth, and that is that Minnesota has enough cartridges to do some shooting if such a thing should become necessary. The report spread through the offices of the handsome new state capitol a few days ago that ninety tons of powder had been stored in the basement. Naturally there was a little anxiety, especially on the part of the women clerks. "What if it should explode?" they asked one another.

But there is no danger, according to Adjutant General Wood. It is loose powder that is stored in the basement but there are about seventy or eighty boxes each containing 10,000 cartridges. This means 700,000 cartridges to say the least. And this is'nt all the state owns either. There's little or no chance of a fire in the marble, stool, brick and concrete work of the building and that is the only way there could be an explosion, says General Wood. His report had the effect of quieting those who were alarmed and the women clerks now do their work with little thought of being located over a "powder mine."

What Minnesota can produce in corn, peas, pumkins, squash, wax and string beans, pork and beans and tomatoes, was never shown to better advantage than at the convention of the Minnesota Canner's association which has been holding its annual convention in the old state capitol, St. Paul, the last few days. These products of Minnesota soil were entered in a contest for prizes amounting to $150. appropiiated by the state at the suggestion of Andrew French, state dairy and food commissioner. The scoring competition attracted unusual attention and various parts of the state represented by the contestants from fifteen canneries. The prize winners are:

Corn- Big Stone Canning Company, first ;Fairbault Canning Company, second; Minnesota Valley Canning Company, Le Sueur, third; Winthrop Canning Co., fourth.

Country Gentlemen Corn: Lanesboro Canning Co., first Cokata Canning Co., second.

Peas:- Lanesboro Canning Co., first; Mimesota Valley Canning Co., second;

Tomatoes: Olivia Canning Company first; Minnesota Canning Company, second.

The Minnesota Canning Co., won one prize for big beans, string beans, black beans and pumkins. Banners or honorable testimonials for canned corn and other products were awarded to The Olivia Canning Company, Plainview Canning Company, Minnesota Valley Canning Co; Lanesboro Canning Co., and the Winford Canning Co.

Minnesota is said to be the only state in the Union giving prizes of this kind. All of the goods entered in the contests must comply with the pure food laws. E. B. Heiberg state food inspector decorated and planned the canned goods exhibit.

William L Roach, Hart, Mich., vice president and Frank E. Gorrel, Bel Air, Md., secretary, National Canners' Association were at the convention and complimented the Minnesota exhibititors on their fine display of the state's products.

POULTRY SCHOOLS.

In holding a poultry school at Barnum, Minn., the Extension Division last month entered on a new line of educational endeavor. The school was held under the auspices of the Farmer's Co-operation Association of Barnum, Oct. 24 to 29. Tickets for the five-day course were sold at $2. each for individuals, or $3 for a family. The attendants numbered forty in all; their ages varying from ten to sixty-one years. They included representatives from five different towns. Regular "school hours" were observed, with the customary recess.

The school was conducted by Mr. N. E. Chapman, of the Extension Division, assisted by Professor Gaumnitz and Lane of the Schools of Agriculture, and by Editor Nourse, of the Poultry Herald. On each evening there was a lecture. One evening the Public School entertained the Poultry School; and on another the Poultry School reciprocated the courtesy.

The text-book used—"Bingham's Progressive Poultry Culture"—was presented to each pupil by the State which also supplied note-books and pencils, and a copy each of "egg Money; How to Increase It," and "Chicks: Hatching and Rearing," to every ticket-holder. In adition to the valuable instruction imparted during the session, he thus received about $2.50 worth of books in return for the price of his ticket.

At the close of the session, those in attendance organized the Carlton County Poultry Association. This body will hold monthly meetings, and will do much to foster the poultry interests of the section. It will also prove a valuable auxiliary to the County Fair.

The Extension Division proposes to hold similar five-day Poultry Schools in different parts of the state, wherever a sufficient number of persons can be found to pay the small fee required for the course, and it would no doubt be to their own interest if all the poultry raisers in this neighborhood could get together and secure such a school session this winter.

SUBSCRIPTION SWINDLERS.

Word comes to The Herald that subscription swindlers are using its name to defraud people in many parts of the territory in Minnesota in which this newspaper circulates.

These men are offering a combination of, The Herald, Colliers', the Ladies' Home Journal and other periodicals at ridiculously low prices. All those who are swindled get out of it is a receipt which is worthless.

The prices at which these fake subscriptions are sold are so low that they ought to be a warning in themselves, but it seems necessary to notify the public that they are swindlers pure and simple.

The Herald does not enter into combination with any publication whatever. It does not shade its subscription price for any purpose, nor does it give premiums of any kind. It is sold only at the prices quoted at the head of this page, and no subscriptions should be given to anybody not provided with proper credentials from this office.

Any person offering The Herald at reduced prices, on in combination with any other publication, can be set down as a fraud and should be handed over to the police.—Duluth Herald

People should take notice of these frauds that are being perpetrated on the Herald and other papers. If you want a paper send for it and don't depend on some swindler to give you a cheap rate.

LIKELY TO STAY DRY.

There is some talk of trying to get congress to abrogate the clause in the Indian treaties relative to the sale of liquor in territory ceded by the Indians to the United States in order that Indian territory in Northern Minnesota may enjoy with the rest of the states the full benefits and advantages of the liquor traffic. The suppression of it by methods adopted by "Pussyfoot" Johnson is not liked by those whose interests are affected, and is said to work an injustice to them, which, to some extent, is doubtless true.

But it may very well be questioned whether congress will take action in the matter. Naturally such a movement would be originated by the congressmen representing the affected district. These districts in Minnesota are the Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth. The representative of any of these districts especially of the Seventh and Ninth, would naturally hesitate about courting the opposition a movement to abrogate the particular clause in the treaties would evoke. Even supposing some congressman from this state did pluck up his courage to make a move in the matter, what probability is there that the representatives of other states would court trouble by co-operating with him? In the Middle West and throughout almost the entire South public sentiment has been aroused to a much greater extent than in Minnesota on the temperance question, and ordinarly for a representative to make a move to permit the sale of intoxicants in Minnesota Indian territory would be to sign his political death warrant. We may be sure that the president will leave the responsibility where the treaties themselves left it—with congress. In view of all the circumstances, everything points to the enforcement of the law as it stands. The relief anticipated from the courts is impossible. The provisions of the treaty are so plain that no judge is likely to give them any other meaning than that which appears on their face. Moreover, the courts have generally been severe on the liquor traffic, and it would be necessary to disregard all precedent to give it to a free hand in the territory in question.

On the whole it seems probable that for a time at least prohibition will be rigidly enforced in a large part of Northern Minnesota. If this proves to be the case it will afford an interesting object lesson. If there is anything in the teaching of the prohibitionist crime and poverty and unhappiness would be reduced here to a minimum and wealth should rapidly increase. It will be interesting to see whether Northern Minnesota is to develop into the Utopia of the idealists of the party.—Marshall County Banner.

Hard For the Eskimos.

One of the difficulties of the Moravian missionaries in Labrador is to make the Old Testament, with its wealth of pastoral detail, intelligible to the Eskimos, not one of whom has ever seen a horse. "Sheep and cattle," says Hesketh Pritchard in "Hunting Camps In Wood and Wilderness," "they cannot realize or conceive of, for there are no domesticated animals save dogs in that portion of the peninsula. They comprehend the story of Esau, the hunter, and that of Samson and the lion, which animal can be translated as polar bear, but of Abraham in the land of Mesopotamia they can form no picture. The nearest approach to these ideas is drawn from the harvest of the sea, seals and fish taking the place of flocks and herds."

Mistletoe a Menace.

Few people who know mistletoe only as a desirable feature of Christmas decorations understand that the plant is a parasite dangerous to the life of trees in the regions in which it grows. It is only a question of time after mistletoe once begins to grow upon a tree before the tree itself will be killed. The parasite saps the life of the infected branches. Fortunately it is of slow growth, taking years to develop to large proportions, but when neglected it invariably ruins all trees it reaches. The only method of extermination is the cutting down of diseased trees.—Exchange.

MAKES ATTACK ON THE TRUSTS

Governor Stubbs of Kansas Delivers an Address.

RATES ARE UNJUSTIFIABLE

Chief Executive of the Sunflower State Declares That the Advanced Freight Rates Demanded by the Railroads Were Agreed to by a Combine and Are Therefore Unlawful.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Governor W. R. Stubbs of Kansas made a sensational attack upon railroads and trusts at a banquet of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. He declared "the advanced freight rates demanded by the railroads were agreed to by the combined railroads and are therefore clearly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law" and were unjustifiable.

The speaker condemned the judge who fines corporations for violations of law and "discharges the officers who get the money and are the real criminals in the case." He asserted "the relation of the federal government to unlawful commercial institutions organized for spoils and plunder is one of the most humiliating and disgraceful chapters in American history." Governor Stubbs said in part:

"Every student of public affairs and every public official charged with the enforcement of law knows the alliance between professional politicians, corporation lawyers and the financial and commercial interests, which are concerned in shaping state and federal legislation to serve their own special interests, is a menace to the welfare and life of our republic.

"It is well known, for instance, that within reasonable limits the packing house trust exercises arbitrary power to fix the purchase price of cattle, hogs and other live stock and determine with accuracy the amount of profit which they will take as their share of the transaction. It is well known that the packing house trust was formed and is being operated in open and flagrant violation of moral and statutory laws.

Principle of Law.

"There is a well established principle of law which prohibits a man from doing indirectly that which the law forbids him to do directly. If penalties are provided by law for doing an act, the same penalties should attach when that act is accomplished by indirect means.

"The Northern Securities company, which was organized to consolidate the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington railways, all competing lines, was declared illegal by the federal supreme court. James J. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan and their associates proved themselves to be above the law and higher than the courts by proceeding immediately to destroy competition in railroad rates throughout the Northwestern states by indirectly doing what the supreme court had decided was unlawful for the Northern Securities company to do.

"The railroad is a government agency, and is therefore supposed to be subject to law. It is a creature of government, but the creature has grown to such proportions of wealth and political power that provisions of law and decrees of courts have proven ineffective in so far as they were intended to exercise direct control over the operation of these commercial giants.

"The advanced freight rates demanded by the railroads, and now being considered by the interstate commerce commission, were agreed to by the combined railroads of the United States, and are, therefore, clearly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

"The Sherman anti-trust law provides a combination in restraint of trade is a crime punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both. The judge on the bench who insists on holding the corporation responsible for violation of law, and, not being able to send the corporation to prison, assesses a fine against it as punishment for robbing the public of thousands of millions of dollars, through illegal combinations in restrain of trade, and discharges the officers who get the money and are the real criminals in the case, is wholly unfit to occupy so responsible a public office.

"I do not in any sense share the opinion sometimes expressed that the official acts of a judge are too sacred to be criticised. No citizen of this republic occupies a more honorable or desirable position than of a just judge who honors his office."

Balance of Power Changes.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 13.—North Dakota must, in pursuance of a provision of the constitution, reapportion the legislative districts at the session of the legislature which convenes in Bismarck in January. There has so far been almost no agitation of questions hinging on the reapportionment, but the people of the eastern part of the state are awakening to the fact that with this year's apportionment the balance of power will be shifted much further westward; that the Red River valley and the adjoining counties will no longer be able to dictate [illegible]

WILL NOT GRANT CHANGE OF VENUE

Court Turns Down Request of Deitz' Attorney.

WILL BE HELD AT HAYWARD

Murder Trial Will Continue as It Began in the County Seat of Sawyer County—Judge Reid Holds That Change of Venue Occurred When He Superseded Judge Wickham.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 13.—The Deitz murder trial will continue as it began in Hayward, the county seat of Sawyer county, in spite of strenuous objections on the part of the attorneys for the defense.

Circuit Judge A. R. Reid denied an application for a change of venue to another community on the grounds that a change of venue had been allowed when he superseded Judge Wickham on the bench for this trial.

Before a crowded courtroom the attorneys for John F. Deitz, his wife, Hattie, and son, Leslie, accused of the murder of Oscar Harp on Oct. 8 last, filed two applications, one for a change of venue and the other for a continuance for the term. After a long and involved session, in which the shade of disappointment became deeper and deeper on the faces of the three defendants, adjournment was taken.

A legal battle was then fought to settle the question as to whether, after a change of judge, the defendants could apply for a change of location. Counsel for the defense argued that every accused person had the right of a fair and impartial trial, whether it necessitated either concession or both. The state's counsel contended that a change of judge constituted a change of venue and that there could be only one change of venue. Judge Reid held with the state and the elaborate affidavits gathered by the defense to prove their contention of prejudice will go without examination in this trial.

Court in Alleged Error.

Attorneys W. B. Rubin and Moritz Wittig noted an appeal. "We feel better than we have since the trial began," Mr. Rubin said. "We have caught the court in an error of fact, and we have the prosecution where we want it."

The trial will be resumed and the application for a continuance will be argued.

Backing up their application for a change of venue the Deitz attorneys presented affidavits of the most sweeping and sensational nature to show that Sawyer county is so wrought up with enmity against the Cameron dam defender and his entire family that a fair trial is impossible.

In the affidavit it is attempted to show that although in the effort to get evidence as to the feeling in this county methods were taken which rival the romances of Conan Doyle, the defense investigators were met with silence or open hostility by the people from whom a jury in Hayward would have to be chosen.

The now famous "mouse-trap woman" gives the result of her detective work in the affidavits and tells how, by pretending to be a demonstrator of a certain style of mouse traps, she entered scores of homes in and around Hayward and listened to statements of prejudice against the Deitz family. Another investigator, Paul G. Dorsch of Milwaukee, who tried to get information from witnesses of the killing of Oscar Harp, recites in legal form that the deputies not only refused to talk but cautioned others not to tell what they knew of the shooting. Regarding the feeling in the town of Winter, which was the headquarters of the siege of the Deitz cabin the first week in October, it is set forth that one traveling man who ventured to speak favorably of the Deitz family was dragged through the streets with a rope around his neck, and that another man for the same offense was lowered with a rope into a cesspool and not brought out until he promised never again to say anything pleasant of the defenders of the famous dam.

MUST PUT UP A LARGE SUM

Heavy Bail to Be Demanded From Trust Officials.

Detroit, Dec. 13.—Bail aggregating $192,000 in the case of the United States against manufacturers of enameled bathroom fixtures—$4,000 for each of the forty-eight individuals and firms—probably will be demanded by the federal authorities, according to United States District Attorney Frank Watson.

According to lawyers for the defense they will take the position that the patent on a pneumatic tool with which the enamel is sifted onto the red hot tubs and other ware is a monopoly in itself. This patent is held by the manufacturers.

Many Recommendations for Action by Congress.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Currency reform; extension of the scope of the national banking laws, in the event of no immediate general changes in the monetary system; civil service retirements; a customs service free from "practical" politics; businesslike methods in the daily transactions of the government and a general abolition of red tape wherever it clogs the wheels of the government's business are among the recommendations contained in the annual report of Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury.

HIS ACCUSERS SCORED

Majority Report Exonerates Secretary of Interior.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Vindicating Secretary of the interior Ballinger upon all the charges brought against him and condemning his accusers as having been inspired by a deep feeling of animosity built upon a supposed difference in policy respecting conservation, a majority of the congressional committee which investigated the so called Ballinger-Pinchot case submitted its report to congress.

After stating that the evidence presented related in the main to charges of various kinds against Mr. Ballinger and that these came chiefly from two sources—L. R. Glavis and Gifford Pinchot—the majority announced the following conclusion:

"The evidence has wholly failed to make out a case. Neither any fact proved nor all the facts put together exhibit Mr. Ballinger as being anything but a competent and honorable gentleman, honestly and faithfully performing the duties of his high office with an eye to the public interest."

The report was signed by Senators Knute Nelson, chairman; Frank P. Flint, George Sutherland and Elihu Root, and Representatives Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts, vice chairman; Martin E. Olmstead of Pennsylvania and Edwin Denby of Michigan, all Republicans.

MRS. SHONTS' GEMS HELD UP

Federal Customs Officers Desire Further Explanations.

New York, Dec. 9.—Jewelry said to be worth $20,000, the property of Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts of New York, wife of the president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, was retained by customs officials when Mrs. Shonts returned from Europe on the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. Mrs. Shonts did not declare the jewelry, explaining that she had obtained it in Paris in exchange for old jewels on which duty had been paid when they were originally imported. For that reason, she said, she did not think the gems were dutiable. The customs inspectors were in doubt and, pending a decision in the case, the jewels were removed to the appraiser's safe.

Are You A Booster?

A Knocker is about the worst thing for any community, and some knockers are worse than others. There is the chronic knocker but no one who knows him pay any attention to him.

The hipocritical knocker is worse. He will sometimes make an awful bluff at boosting around home while he is doing the most scientific kind of knockers to people in other places. We expect to have something to say about this class later on, and the time is not very far distant either.

Times flies, and the seasons come and go, and now for the seventh time the PIONEER wishes its large circle of friends a Merry Christmas and a liberal supply of all the good things the season brings.

He Found His Man.

Englishmen are rather fond of poking fun at those parts of Great Britain where other than the Anglo-Saxon element is dominant, and a favorite subjet for jest is the prevalence of the Jones family in Wales.

One of the colleges of Oxford university was much resorted to by Welshmen. A man from another college looking for a friend went into its quadrangle and shouted, "Jones!"

All the windows looking on the quadrangle flew open.

"I mean John Jones," said the searcher.

Half the windows closed.

"I mean the John Jones who has a toothbrush," he explained.

All the windows closed but one.—Topeka State Journal.

A Stitch of Pain.

A stitch is a sharp, spasmodic pain in the muscles of the side like the piercing of a needle and is very apt to be produced if exercise is taken immediately after a hearty meal. This arises because the nervous energy necessary for the proper working of the muscles in exercise is engaged in another direction—namely, in assisting the digestion of the food. Anything that interferes with the proper supply of nervous energy required for exercise, whether it be debility or the process of digestion or exhaustion arising from overexertion, is apt to cause this spasmodic pain.

Adam's Sister.

The palm tree has always been venerated wherever it grows; in some places it is worshiped. "Honor the palm tree," says a Mohammedan writer, "for she is your father's aunt, for this tree was formed of the remainder of the clay from which Adam was created."

BLOODY BATTLE IN SYRIA

Seven Hundred Druses Reported Slain by Turks.

Constantinople, Dec. 3.—Seven hundred Druses have been slain in battle with Turkish troops at Hauran, Syria, south of Damascus, according to dispatches received here.

Despite the heavy slaughter the main body of the Druses, estimated to number 10,000, is still holding out and another fierce encounter is expected.

The present conflict is believed to be another long chapter of outrages growing out of religious hatred, that the Turks have perpetrated on the Druses, who withdrew from the Mohammedan faith centuries ago.

The Druses are reported entrenched in a mountain fastness that will make their dislodgment difficult.

THOUSANDS ARE AFFECTED

Conductors and Trainmen Demand Increase in Wages.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Representatives of approximately 55,000 conductors and trainmen employed on the sixty railroads west of Chicago, who have demanded an increase in wages averaging about 15 per cent, are holding daily conferences with the general managers in presenting their arguments for the advance in pay and improvements in working conditions. It is estimated that the new scales asked by the men will exceed in amount those asked by the engineers recently, which aggregated nearly $5,000,000.

Lease Alaskan Coal Fields.

"We hold that phosphate deposits underlying the public lands should be safeguarded for the American people by appropriate legislation; and we recommend the early opening of the Alaskan and other coal fields belonging to the people of the United States for commercial purposes on a system of leasing, national ownership to be retained.

"We approve of the continuance of the control of the national forests by the federal government and approve the policy of restoring to settlement such public lands as are more valuable for agriculture.

"We earnestly recommend that the states and federal government acquire for reforestration lands not more valuable for other purposes and that all existing forests publicly and privately owned be carefully protected by state and federal governments. We recognize the invaluable services of the forest service to the people and earnestly recommend that it be more generously supported by the federal government and that state, federal and private fire patrols be more generously provided for the preservation of forests and human life; and we appreciate and approve of the continuance of the services of the United States army in fire control in emergencies.

"We favor the repeal of the timber and stone law.

"We endorse the proposition for the preservation by the federal government of the Southern Appalachian and White mountain forest."

The Effects.

"I have come to you, my friend, for comfort. My best girl has treated me very badly. I was trying to explain something to her, but she gave me such sharp looks they cut me to the heart; she withered me with her scorn, crushed me with her coldness and stabbed me with her keen edged tongue."

Tricking a Game Warden.

When a game warden bought seven pounds of meat and paid a dollar a pound for it he thought he was getting some pretty convincing evidence against a man in Herkimer county whom he supposed to be a chronic violator of the game law. The protector found this particular piece of meat in an icehouse one hot August day, and he spotted it for venison.

"What will you take for that chunk of meat?" he asked the owner.

"That's a tender piece of meat," replied the woodsman, with a wink at the stranger, "and meat is dear way back up here. I wouldn't part with it for less 'n a dollar a pound."

"Well, give me a pound."

"Nope; couldn't do that. It would spile the piece for cookin' to do that."

The game warden had to take the whole thing, and he paid $7 for it, satisfied that he had caught one of the worst game law violators in the Adirondacks. Down to Albany he sent the meat for the forest, fish and game commission to analyze to prove it venison. But it wasn't. It was veal. The backwoodsmen tell the story as one of the best jokes ever played on a game protector.—New York Tribune.

Columns of St. Mark.

Two memorable granite columns, known as the columns of St. Mark, brought from the Holy Land in 1120 and standing in front of the quay and landing steps of the Piazzeta, have been associated with the fortunes of Venice for many years. At first they lay prostrate for a long time, while no one would undertake to raise them. But a reward offered by the doge at length induced one Nicolo Barratiero (Nick the Blackleg) to offer his services. He succeeded and claimed as his reward the privilege of carrying on between the columns games of chance, elsewhere prohibited by law. To neutralize this as much as possible it was enacted that all public executions should take place on the same spot. One column is surmounted by the Lion of St. Mark. The other carries a fine figure of St. Theodore, the patron saint of the city, who stands upon a crocodile and with sword and buckler gives token that the motto of Venice is "Defense, Not Defiance."

Montevideo English.

A letter from a concern in Montevideo, South America, to a Chicago firm:

"My dear sir: We know: you ask for agents. We can offer you this. Our office has the representation many articles we can offer the representation your's. We ought to know you; we have placemen and gadders whose business is only to sell our articles. Our business is diffused till some brasilian villages; where the american articles are worth of the hinghest attention. Our mind is that, the diffuse of the news is the best middle for the know; all things; and we don't stop in middles for its circulation; we have decided the appear of The Commercial Review next issue where you can be felow labourers; and we with no one expenditure; that is; to say always, you dispense us any cassines."

We like "gadders," as applied to traveling men, don't you?—Chicago Tribune.

Opportunity.

There is a story of a sculptor who once showed a visitor his studio, which was full of gods, some of them very curious. The face of one was entirely concealed by the hair, and there were wings on each foot. The visitor asked this statue's name.

"Opportunity," was the reply.

"And why is his face hidden?"

"Because men seldom know him when he comes to them."

"Why has he wings on his feet?"

"Because he is soon gone and once gone can never be overtaken," was the reply.

We all know the story of the man who sold the old farm which he had barely been able to get a living from during his entire life and his amazement and chagrin when the new owner discovered gold upon the land the first week of his ownership. A great many of us are in that very condition with regard to our opportunities if we did but know it.—Washington Star.

Pampered Pups.

The dog doctor was making out a bill for the month's expenses of a Japanese spaniel. The items were room rent, board, medical attendance and electric light.

"Electric light?" exclaimed his secretary. "What on earth does a dog need with electric light?"

"He doesn't need it at all," said the doctor, "but his owner has ordered it, and he has been supplied with two eight-candle power lights every evening he has been in the hospital. He is one of those spoiled pups who were put to bed in a light room in their infancy, and now he cannot sleep in the dark. We always have two or three of that kind on hand. They occupy a special ward where the lights burn all night long."—New York Sun

The Phrenologist and the Grocer.

Phrenologist—Here is a man out of his proper sphere. His head denotes high intellectual and spiritual qualities, yet he is spending his time behind a grocer's counter. Sir (to the grocer), I wish to ask you a question. Have you any aspirations?

Grocer (calling to clerk)—John, have we any aspirations?

Clerk—All out, sir; have some in the last of the week.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Well, now we always preferred an upper berth anyway.

If you agree to do a certain thing, do it even tho the job does not always prove as agreeable as you had anticipated.

Sometimes the right side of the market is the out side.—Wall St. Journal.

But its human nature to want to be on the inside.

Governor Eberhart has been at Washington, and as usual did a lot of talking. It is quite evident that he did very little thinking when he could not even keep the dates he had made with the Minnesota Congressmen.

In President Taft's message his plea for economy hardly harmonizes with his plea for the fortification of the Panama Canal. The Canal, too, that is built for the benefit of all nations and ought, if any place ought, to be forever neutral ground.

An exchange informs us that Ex-President Roosevelt's recent speech at New Haven contained no reference to the recent election nor to current political subjects. He may not have said things but we wonder what he thot, for speeches the past or future generally offer a better field than the present.

VICTOR L. Berger, the first socialist to sit in the national legislative body, is representing his congressional district subject to recall, that is, his resignation is in the hands of a committee of socalists, and he will get notice to step down and out should he ever speak or vote in a way that would be deemed disloyal to his party And the members of that committee will be the arbiters of his conduct. Perfection, thy name is socialism!—Wabasha Herald.

Waste! Waste!

Every public speaker, who aims to bask in the lime-light declaims loudly the awful waste of our resources, waste of labor, waste of capital, waste in schools, waste in the home; anything to "sound a note of warning" tho some scarce stop except with a full concert. For some reason this sort of fantastical scare-crow clap-trap is always good for the first page mention. It savors of muck-raking without accomplishing any possible good.

Mr. Angus Campbell, who has for the last twenty-five years been working on the problem of a practical cotton picking machine, has at last attained success and this success may mean as much to the cause of King Cotton as did Whitney's gin. To any one familiar with the cotton industry it is well known that to be successful a cotton picking machine must be able to pick only the ripe bolls without injuring the plant. How successfully Mr. Campbell has accomplished this was well illustrated when at its demonstration in Texas an observing farmer finished his ejaculations of surprise with the following: "Why, that thing looks like it was made to make sausage out of a live hog and its been over that hull row of cotton and ain't hurt a plant."

The Progressive Republicans of Minnesota are waging a vigorous fight within their party for clean government and popular rule. This is an uprising of the people that is spontaneous and not the result of any prearranged leadership or plan. It springs from causes that are deepseated and common to the whole state.

The voters of Minnesota are driving special interests from the control of the state government. They are driving business out of politics and politics out of business. They are restoring to themselves the power guaranteed in the state constitution.

The essentials of success in this struggle comprise a complete organization of all the people, together with such progressive legislation as will give the people an equal opportunity with predatory interests.—Fertile Journal.

"FARM SCHOOL" LITERATURE IN THE COUNTRY PRESS.

Since the Extension Division of the Agricultural Department of the University now supplies the country newspapers all over the state, free of charge, with articles especially designed to help the farmer in his work—to increase his gains from the soil and multiply the comforts of his home—there is another excellent reason why the farmer should subscribe for his home paper—that is, if it prints the articles here mentioned. The sheet containing the articles is not sent direct to farmers; the Division has no "subscription list" for this "news sheet." So this instructive matter is only available to farmers who take the papers in which it appears. Among these, he should always give the preference to his home paper.—University Farm Press News.

RED CROSS SEALS FOR RICH AND POOR.

In a western city, a well dressed gentleman stepped up to one of the tellers' windows in a bank over which hung the sign. "Red Cross Christmas Seals for Sale Here," and, after talking about the seal, and the purpose for which it was being sold, asked for ten dollars' worth. A little, ragged boy who came into the bank to sell his newspapers, who had stod listening to the story of the seal, stepped up, after the gentleman had gone, and laid a penny upon the counter and said, "Gimme one of those stamps; my mother died of it—and my sister's got it"

The custom that has sprung up of selling Red Cross Christmas Seals to aid in the fight against tuberculosis, is certainly a very appropriate one at this fastival season, commemorating the birth of Him who came to do good to humanity and alleviate and heal both their bodily and spiritual ills. At this season every person ought to be charitably disposed and willing to lend a helping hand to those in sickness and distress. Red Cross Seals or stamps cost only a cent apiece and are placed on letters and packages, besides the regular postage. The proceeds from the sale of these stamps go to help in the fight against the white plague. Most every body, whether young or old, rich or poor, can contribute a cent at least. All have a chance to help. These cents will make a large aggregate sum. Red Cross Christmas stamps are for sale by the merchants of the city and all who want can get them. Help the good cause by buying a few to place on the Christmas packages you send away.

FEEDING DAIRY COWS.

Prof. T. L. Haecker has prepared and the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture has issued, an extremely valuable bulletin on Feeding Dairy Cows. Its purpose is to "boost" the dairy interests of Minnesota by promoting an increase in the production of milk and butter-fat It is shown that, whereas the average amount of butter obtained from a Minnesota cow is now hardly 160 pounds per year, it can, by methodical feeding, be increased to 200 lbs or over, which would mean a gain to the farmers of Minnesota of many millions of dollars anually. Tables are given, by the use of which the proper ration for every cow may be easily determined. A study of the bulletin will mean dollars in the pocket of every owner of a dairy herd. Sent free on application to Extension Division, University Farm St. Paul.

EARTHQUAKE, FIRE, FLOOD,

Explosion, Hurricane, War and Massacre Called for Aid,

Six big disasters will occur in the United States in 1911. That is not the prediction of an astrologer but of the American Red Cross, the organization which conducts a larger work of relief among people stricken by great calamities than any other agency in the world. Experience has led the Red Cross to expect an average of five or six serious disasters in this country every year. It does not know where or when they will occur, or whether they will be caused by storm, or fire, or flood, or earthquake, or explosion. But it is sure that they will happen, just as onemay be sure that fifteen persons of every thousand now living will die in the next twelve months.

World wide service to humanity was shown in reports presented at the recent national meeting of the American Red Cross in Washington. This organization, of which President Taft is the president, is recognized by the federal government as the official channel for the conduct of relief work wherever in the United States people suffer from the results of great calamities. But the Red Cross does not confine itself to relief operations in this country. Its field is the world.

Experience proves not only that an average of five or six disasters, severe enough to call for Red Cross help, may be expected to occur every year in the United States, but that the demands from other countries may be expected to be equally numerous. Some idea of the character and variety of these demands may be gained from the disasters with which the Red Cross dealt in the last twelve months. These included, in the United States, one hurricane, one mine fire, two mine explosions and forest fires in Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington and Minnesota; in foreign countries, relief of starving captured soldiers in Nicaragua, floods in Mexico, France, Servia and Japan, the American massacres and the earthquake in Costa Rica.

In the disasters above mentioned which occured in the United States 506 lives were lost, while, approximately, 7,500 persons required immediate assistance. About 6,000 persons lost their homes by fire or hurricane. The money expended by the Red Cross in these relief operations in the United States was $196,000, and in foreign countries $66,500, a total of $262,500. Other relief funds expended in this country in conjunction with those of the Red Cross and according to its plans and methods amounted to $218,000, making the grand total relief expenditures of the year under Red Cross leadership $480,500.

THE TURNING OF THE WORM.

James J. Hill who shares with other railroad presidents the feeling that the country will go to the "bow-wows" if the Interstate Commerce Commission does not ultimately agree to the proposed increase of freight rates by the nation's common carriers, issued a pessimistic statement the other day in which he predicted a suspension of industrial activity next year.

On the strength of this gloomy prophecy the securities of most of the standard railroads dropped sympathetically next Monday from 3 to 5 points on the Stock Exchange. To every stockholder of the roads in question this shrinkage represented a loss of from $3 to $5 a share. In the aggregate it totaled a depreciation of many millions in value—all on the word of one man. As always in Wall Street, when stock fluctuates violently, what was the investors loss proved the gamblers gain. In the parlance of The Street it was "a bear market" and the bears who thrive on other people's misfortunes, as a vulture fattens on carrion, reaped where others had sown.

The instability and fundamental weakness of a system which makes it possible for the utterance of a single man out of the 93,000,000 inhabitiants of the United States to impair the value of securities of established merit, and sustained earning capacity, strikingly illustrates what can be done when a combination of powerful men undertake to influence the market in which a thousand millions of the public's money is invested. So long as Wall Street is constituted as it is and its best grade of listed stocks are made the playthings of men who accumulate riches by "rigging" the market to suit their needs of the moment investors in Wall Street stocks will continue to pay the pipers' bills. The widespread aversion to the predatory methods practised in the finalcial district of New York where everything is condemned that does not lend itself to frenzied speculation, however meritorious it may be, is shown in the increasing number of industrial corporations, being operated in the interest of their stockholders ond not of Wall Street, which nowadays decline to list their securities on the big exchanges.

A party of business men returning from a trip to Texas with John W. Gates filled with glowing reports of the prosperity and wonderful development of that state visited Wall Street as the stocks on the exchange began to tumble and declared it "the most depressed spot on the face of the earth." It does not take a very keen mind to perceive that its depression is due, not to general economic conditions, but, to a realization of the fact that it has lost its grip on the confidence of the American people. In the apparent disposition of investors to break away from Wall Street and seek investments of their own choosing, as did their forefathers who financed the building of Professor Morses first telegraph and Alexander Graham Bell's telephone which the astute financiers of New York decried as folly, though it afterward netted orginal stockholders millions, is discerned the turning of the worm. Wherefore Wall Street is sad, dejected and chagrined.

SELECTING SEED WHEAT.

According to a Kansas circular the popular idea that large kernels of wheat germinate better than small ones is a mistake. The germinating power is, rather, dependent on the density of the kernels. The selection of dense kernels, in the experiments reported, was made by the use of a wind-blast grader. The kernels were blown through a long tin tube into boxes. The densest—that is, those heaviest in proportion to their size—fell into the boxes nearest the tube, and were graded as No. 1; those in the sixth box, farthers away from the tube, were graded No. 6. When planted, kernels of No. 1 germinated an average per cent of 99.19, while those of No. 6 germinated an average of only 53.95. Between these extremes, the descent in germinating power of the kernels in the other boxes was remarkably regular, according to distance from the tube.

Here is another hint for the observant wheat-grower, bent on increasing the product of his land per acre. What he wants is a wheat with kernels not only large and plump, but also dense. The large kernels, when separated from the small ones by the use of the fanning mill, will very likely count a large proportion which are equally dense with the smaller ones. If these kernels, possessing both size and density, shall be separated from those which are large but light, it would seem that they will meet every requirement for the most perfect seed, in any variety of wheat. Minnesota Experiment Station Bulletin No. 117 gives full directions for the separation of the plump, dense kernels of wheat from the other less desirable kernels, simply by running the grain through a common fanning mill at the rate of from 20 to 40 bushels per hour. This bulletin will be sent free on request.

THE LAST CHRISTMAS SHOPPER

You must wake and call me early,
  Call me early, mother dear,
Tomorrow will be the busiest day
  Of all this strenuous year;
Of all this strenuous year, mother;
For I am going shoping, mother,
  So call me early, pray.
There'll be many a black, black eye,
    mother,
  But none so black as mine.
You'll find me braving the hatpin thrusts
  At the head of the surging line.
I know they'll call me cruel, mother,
  But I care not what they say;
For I am going shopping, mother,
  The foremost in the fray.

MANITOBA PIONEER IS DEAD

Employed James J. Hill as Freighter in the Early Days.

Winnipeg, Dec. 15.—William M. Smith, one of the sturdiest Portage la Prairie (Man.) pioneers, died at his home after an illness of one week. Mr. Smith was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, Christmas day, 1840, and came to Manitoba in 1860. In the early days he employed J. J. Hill and Pat Burns, meat king of Western Canada, as freighters on a flat bottom boat on the Red river, later establishing a grist mill in Portage, which he operated for years and which was the first mill in the West.

WHITE TAKES THE OATH

Becomes Chief Justice of Federal Supreme Court.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Edward Douglas White, for sixteen years an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, became the ninth chief justice of the nation. The simple public ceremonies of installation were held in the presence of the bench and a distinguished gathering that filled every available inch of space in the little courtroom.

The oath of allegiance was administered by Associate Justice Harlan just before the court took its place on the bench.

Judging from the size of the cream checks the patrons of the Plummer Creamery are receiving we predict that within 5 years there will not be an acre of good land anywhere within 10 or 12 miles of Plummer to be had for less than $40 or $ 50 per acre Red Lake county is fast getting to be know as one of the best dairy counties in the state of Minnesota and the immigration agents and Rail Road Companies predict that there in this county this coming year (1911) there will be the greatest movement in land with sales principally to actual settlers from southern Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois that this country has ever seen and they are certainly in position to know whereof they speak.

The Commercial-Normal School

Is Training Scores of Young Men and Women for Successful Life.

It extends an invitation to you. No matter what you intend to become; farmer, doctor, lawyer or minister; you will be better prepared for success if you secure a thorough business training in this well known school. It has a faculty of competent teachers, large and light quarters, and is equipped with everything necessary for the successful teaching of modern business.

Educated Heads and Skilled Hands Always in Demand.

All young men and women of character are ambitious to maintain themselves in independence, save money learn what to do with it that it may increase, create fortune, wisely providing for a "rainy day" or old age. Those who are ambitious to rise in the world will make slow progress without knowledge of the business usages of everyday life. The following studies are essential to success or self-maintenance and prosperity:

Business Writing—Under our method, the student in a very short time acquires an elegant, easy and rapid style of business penmanship while pursuing other studies.

Bookkeeping—The invention of newer, shorter and simpler methods of keeping books goes on year by year. We have kept pace with these improvements. The student is taught the usages of the best business houses and enters upon and conducts and closes many different kinds of businesses for himself and others.

Business Arithmetic—Quickness and accuracy are the essentials in good business figuring. Our methods of calculation are simple, easily learned and show wonderful results.

Spelling—In connection with the above, is also taught, so as to make it at the same time a special exercise.

Business Correspondence—The acquirement of a simple, terse and easy style is carefully taught by the giving of frequent exercises in writing business letters on various subjects.

Grammar—Persons requiring knowledge of this very necessary subject are given careful attention, it being included in the business course in connection with other studies, for those who need it.

Business Forms—Under the tuition of our skilled instructors, the preparation of all business forms, agreements, contracts, etc., are included in the course.

Actual Business—So thoroughly practical is the instruction in this institution that a great proportion of the course of study is as completely actual business as can be in the school room.

Commercial Law—All who want to conduct their affairs in a careful manner must have knowledge of commercial law. Many have lost fortunes by lack of just this kind of knowledge. We include with other branches, thorough instruction in this.

Our City.

Thief River Falls is a beautiful city of 5000 inhabitants, located at the junction of the Thief River with the Red Lake. It is the natural center for the adjoining territory, and is rapidly developing into a distribution point for the northern part of the State. The Soo railroad makes this city one of its division points, thus centering a large amount of traffic here that would otherwise pass by, and this traffic will be greatly increased with the beginning of the proposed transcontinental service that will be established in connection with the new Duluth line. The Great Northern also runs through the city affording excellent railroad connections with Warroad and Crookston.

The city has fifteen churches, representing nearly all denominations, and the moral tone of its citizens is not excelled anywhere. During the last summer a large municipal armory and Auditorium has been completed at a cost of $50,000. This is the largest and most beautiful municipal-owned auditorium north of the TwinCities. Every indication is that within ten years Thief River Falls will be the manufacturing, commercial, educational and social center of northwestern Minnesota.

To Backward Young People.

Some years ago, a Northwestern farmer said to his neighbor, "My boy thinks he wants to go to a business school; what do you think of it?" "Well," replied his neighbor, "It is a good indication, and I should let him go." The farmer took his neighbor's advice, and sent his boy to a good business school. A few years' schooling in a country school was all the education the boy had previously obtained. After finishing his course at the business school, he returned to the farm. By reason of the business training he had received, he was elected town treasurer, afterwards town clerk, then county clerk, and finally county Treasurer, an office which he held with credit for many years. His business education enabled him to draw contracts, deeds, wills, and other important papers for his neighbors, and he became a leader in his community, simply because of his business training.

Youny people should not hesitate a moment about entering a business school because they are backward in their studies. That is the very reason why they should be anxious to enter. There is no other kind of school in which they can so quickly, comfortably and cheaply make up the lack of early school advantages.

Tact vs. Talent

Despise small opportunities and you will never have large ones. Great opportunities are generally the wise improvement of small ones. Sometimes a "happy hit" may be made by a bold venturer, but usually the safest road to travel is the common highway of steady industry and close application—these qualities make men sharp to discern opportunities and turn them to account.

"Talent is something, tact is everything." Talent knows what to do, tact how to do it. Talent sells a man what he wants, tact sells him what he does not want.

At the bar talent talks learnedly, tact gets the hearers. In the house of legislation talent has the ears of the assembly, tact gets the bills through. Talent is honored with approbation, while tact is blessed by elevation.

How To Win Success as a Business Man

The Saturday Evening Post recently contained the following.

"It is a significant sign of the times that in the list of occupations in the graduating classes of both Harvard and Yale this year, business led.

"Business proclaims itself boldly and exceeds all other callings. It has come to its own. We find no surplus in this calling. Business is wide and broad enough for all graduates. It suffers not from overcrowding It even faces a plethora of positions. It is the age itself, with all its abounding activities and energies."

Business offers you more opportunities than do any of the so-called higher professions. It is the most honored and most profitable and most powerful of all pursuits in life. Business makes the professions possible.

Business offers its young stenographers wonderful chances. It takes them right into its confidence—dictates to them its business secrets—outlines to them its business methods—reveals to them its business successes. That is why some of the most powerful and prosperous men that this country knows today have risen from the ranks of stenographers. Business must depend upon its bookkeepers. They control the circulation of its life-blood—money. They take the observation of the thermometer of business—profit and loss. This is the reason why alert, energetic bookkeepers are promoted to the positions of credit men and managers. That is the reason why bookkeepers so often win such signal success when they go into business for themselves.

He succeeds best as a stenographer or bookkeeper who gets the best training in stenography or bookkeeping. He gets the best possible training in either or both of these branches if he attends our college. This is no mere advertising boast. No staff of bookkeeping or stenography teachers in this country are better paid or more able than our corps of instructors. No business college surrounds its pupils with every necessary appurtenance of business or office practice in any more thorough manner than does our college.

A visit paid to our college and a talk with our president will convince you once and forever of the truth of our claims. If you can't call, at least send for our free catalogue.

THE UNIVERSAL NEED OF A BUSINESS EDUCATION.

It will be noticed that the opinions of eminent men on the value of a business education bear upon its general rather than on its restricted value. They do not commend it so much for its use in preparing young men and young women for profitable business positions for the general preparation it affords for the practical duties of life that all must encounter. They take the broad ground that a knowledge of correct business principles is essential to all, and that the diverse relations of human life and the employments that must absorb human energies must be regulated and controlled by the best business methods. The school of experience is a dear teacher, and many of its lessons can be secured at far less expense and trouble in a good school where the curriculum of studies embraces branches that are essentially the product of human experience. Because business principles are so universally applied in human affairs, a business education is of universal value. The best place to get the education spoken of by the great men is this Business College.

PARENTS PLEASE HEED.

You cannot make a mistake by putting your boys and your girls in a reputable commercial school. No matter what vocation they are to follow in the future, a business training fits them for it. We will make it stronger; you will make a mistake if you do not send your boys and your girls to a good commercial school for at least a partial business education. As a means of earning a livelihood there is no other training that will fit them so quickly and so thoroughly. The average training given in a good business college will prepare a boy or a girl to earn more money and to get farther ahead in the world, than will four years of college training.

The Young Man Stenographer

The best business equipment for the young man today is a knowledge of shorthand and typewriting, coupled with a thorough training in bookkeeping. Do you wonder at this? Do you think as many men do, that girls have crowded you out? If such is the case let us tell you now emphatically and distinctly that the girls in the stenographic profession have not crowded the young men out.

Young men stenographers are scarce; they are wanted; they are in demand. There is where your opportunity comes in. If young men would only realize that the field of stenography offers them opportunities to be in daily touch with the master minds of the business world, where they will draw knowledge from the dictation of men who have spent years and years learning the very things that they dictate, we believe that more of them would take up stenography as a means of livelihood. Do you realize that the young man stenographer for a great concern is in a position to know more about that concern, its trade secrets, its special discounts, its way of getting business, and its manner of buying to advantage, than anybody else in the whole concern, except the proprietor himself.

Do you know that we have two calls for young men for every one we can fill, and they are the best positions in the business world? Any business man will tell you that the young man who knows stenography and typewriting can start anywhere at double the salary of one who lacks this knowledge, and that is not all, he rises faster.

Bookkeeping Encourages Honesty

The beginner must not get discouraged and say: "I shall never learn Bookkeeping, because I have no aptitude for figures." He must persist. He must remember that intelligent practice begets aptitude. Bookkeeping is of too great value to be omitted or to have any other study substituted for it; or to be given up after once begun.

After one learns to read, to write, and to make arithmetical calculations there is no science of so great a value to anyone, man or woman, young or old; in any calling or profession; from any viewpoint, financial, mental, or moral, as the science of double entry bookkeeping. It will furnish remunerative employment; it brings into play the best of one's mentality; it fortifies one against fraud or imposition in his dealings, it sharpens one's business acumen; it cultivates patience, fairness, promptness, and mathematical exactness; it gives exact poise to character; and there is no other science that forces so clear a view and so deep-seated a conviction of absolute honesty and fair dealing.

If one will reflect for a few moments he will fully realize that there has never yet been found a man so cunning or so profound but that if he attempted to go crooked, when the accountant or skilled bookkeeper was put on his track, his devious dealings were soon uncovered and all of his frauds laid open to prosecution and bared to public scorn.

The daily newspapers are full of instances of igorance or crookedness uncovered by bookkeepers and auditors. If one should attempt to go crooked in the face of such inevitable disaster in the end, he is open to conviction of insanity.

The young man that expects to attain any standing before the public, and to hold the positions of honor and trust, cannot afford to neglect the science of double entry bookkeeping.

Opinions Of Leaders

"I think a knowledge of shorthand and typewriting as almost an essential to success in these days."

HON. FRANK M. EDDY.

"The education I acquired in a business college, I consider as of the greatest practical value of any I ever received."

HON. LYMAN T. GAGE
EX-SECRTARY OF THE U. S. TREASURY.

The demand for men of brains and capacity is far and away greater than the supply. The man with the practical education is given the preference.

JAMES J. HILL, PRESIDENT
GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

No young man who looks ahead to the bright awards of a grand career should allow himself to be prevented from entering the race by unfavorable circumstances.

GROVER CLEVELAND

There is no place in the modern world for the unskilled; no one can hope for any genuine success who fails to give himself the most complete special education.

HAMILTON W. MABIE

With the vast extension of our business and the new methods in vogue, practical training is absolutely essential to success.

HERBERT H. VREELAND, PRESIDENT
METROPOLITIAN STREET RAILWAY, NEW YORK

There is no easy road to success:--I thank God for it. • • • • • • • • • • • •
A trained man will make his life tell. Without training you are left on a sea of luck, where thousands go down while one meets with success. Training, with brain work, is what will bring success.

JAMES A. GARFIELD

To succeed in business today, the young man must have the advantages of modern training, modern methods and modern ideas.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, PRESIDENT
THE UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION

"Adequate knowledge of any part of a business enterprise, will, with industry, enthusiasm and integrity, place any man in an independent position. In all cases such knowledge does not produce great wealth, but great wealth does not add one jot to contentment. Respectable occupation is the best, most wholesome, and satisfying thing a man can have".

ALEXANDER H. REVELL,
Chicago, Ill.

"Prepare for life's work. I first learned to write a legible hand in a business college during vacations, while attending public school. I regret that at the same time I did not take time to learn shorthand and typewriting, as a knowledge of the same is almost invaluable at the present time."

EDWARD DUNN,
Ex-Mayor of Chicago.

"THE QUALITY SCHOOL"

A school where good order and good companionship make study a delight; where character is considered as important as culture; where the needs of each student are studied and satisfied; where the most approved methods of instruction are employed; a school which is being built up on the recommendations of satisfied students; which produces certain and satisfactory results and is in close touch with the business world which enables it to place all competent students in good positions.

O. A. NAPLIN, President.
Commercial Law and Business Methods.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Dec. 10, 1910.

To Whom it May Concern:

During the time I attended the Commercial Normal, I found the school up to date in every respect. The courses are thorough, and the rooms well equipped, and the teachers take a personl interest in every student.

I can gladly recommend this school to anyone contemplating attending school and desiring a good business training.

Very truly yours,
Martin Lundgren.

To Whom it May concern:

Last year I took a course in the Commercial Normal School and I consider it the best investment I ever made. By reason of the knowledge of bookkeeping which I secured through your instruction, I was given a position in the First State Bank and am rapidly getting the experience that will place me in line for advancement.

I take this opportunity to say that any young man or woman, who plans on a business career, can do no better than taking a course in your school thereby getting the right start.

Wishing the Commercial Normal School all possible success, and its Proprietors continued prosperity, I am

Respectfully yours,
Ole C. Granum.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Dec. 14, 1910.

Commercial Normal School,
City.

Gentlemen:

We have one of your students in our employ, and we find him very satisfactory and competent help, and well qualified for the position he occupies.

From our knowledge of your students, we feel justified in saying that your methods of instruction are thoro and up-to-date, and as business men you are prompt and honest in your dealings.

We take pleasure in recommending your school to anyone desiring a thoro business education.

Yours respectfully,
Jackson & McGinn.

Appreciating as we do the necessity of concentrated effort, one of the first things we teach our pupils is how to work to the best advantage, how to accomplish the most with the least expenditure of time and money. We believe that a right start is half the battle, and the large amount of work accomplished by our students demonstrates the degree of our success.

The Woman: Here's a wonderful thing. I've just been reading of a man who reached the age of 40 without learning to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made scholar of himself in two years.

The Man: That's nothing. I know a man who was a profound scholar at 40. Then he met a woman and for her sake he made a fool of himself in two days.

UNGALLANT.

Most Southerners are gallant. An exception is the Georgian who gave his son this advice:

"My boy, never run after a woman or a street car—there will be another one along in a minute or two."

G. T. ALMEN, Treasurer.
Banking and Accounting.

EXPENSES.

The tuition rates at the Commercial Normal are lower than at any other institution of the same standing in the state. A whole year's tuition in Bookkeeping and Stenography will cost you $55.00 with us, while other schools charge you $75 or $85. Our monthly rate for the day course is $9, and at all other institutions it is $12 or $15. Evening rates with us from $3.50 to $5. per month depending on the work taken.

Board and room can be secured in private families at $12 to $15 per month. Any student can save from $50 to $75 by attending our school instead of going to another place.

Don't be fooled by what you read of free books, free fare, free board, etc. That may seem cheap, but alas, too many have found that it was expensive to accept an offer of that kind. Don't expect something for nothing. It is foolish.

Some schools advertise that all students are guaranteed positions. In that way they attract large numbers of unwary young people, who honestly believe such a thing possible. To fulfill their part of the agreement these schools make arrangements with some unscrupulcus business firm to take their students with the understanding that they are to be discharged after a few days trial to make room for another one. Often these firms are doing business in some far distant city thus entailing a heavy expense on the poor student.

We will place our Graduates in good positions, but we can not guarantee positions to anyone who may enroll. During the past year we had a number of calls for competent office help. We could have placed in positions every student enrolled had they been sufficiently advanced in their work. Come early and complete the work and then you need not worry about getting something to do when you are through at the Commercial Normal.

Fear of failure never started a man on the road to success.

Do good to them that hate you,—and pretty soon they won't.

What a sorry state the world would be in, if all men were great leaders!

Success is within the reach of everyone who is willing to make the necessary effort.

The difference between a compliment and flattery is whether you get it or somebody else.

It does not harm to let a little milk of human kindness slop over the sides of the bottle once in a while.

In entering upon business pursuits, as in most other things, it pays not to begin until you are ready, and the place to get ready is at the Commercial Normal School.

No alarm clock is going to ring when time strikes the hour of your opportunity. Fate never yet failed to turn down the man who waited for something to turn up.

Do not flinch however fierce the fire. Only the scorch of the flame can harden the steel for its work—can fashion the man for the responsibilities and problems, the successes and rewards of business.

The place to learn business practice is the business school, and not the business office. The place to put business practice into definite and practical use is the business office. The more you know before you undertake to fill a position in the business office the better will be your chances for success.

WHAT IS REAL EDUCATION?

Lots of apparently well educated people fail in practical life.

They have knowledge-but no POWER.

Success demands both. An education that does not develop both is a false education.

The branches taught by the Commercial Normal are designed to fit pupils for success by teaching them what they need to know, and develop in them the power to apply their knowledge.

If you want success, write to this school for information how to go about getting it. New term starts next month—so find out now.

A WORLD FULL OF OPPORTUNITIES is open to the young man or woman with a good business education.

Do you wish you were a stenographer, a bank cashier, a prosperous business man or woman? Wishing won't make you one. Putting off entering our school won't make you one. Every moment of delay gives opportunity for failure. There are hundreds of men and women today who would now give almost anything (and would now be receiving much larger salaries) if they had taken a course in a business school years ago. But they neglected their opportunity until it was too late. Be warned by their failure and seize the present opportunity to master shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, penmanship, correspondence, etc., and thus possess the knowledge for which business men are willing to pay well.

Begin right by enrolling in our school, and begin right away. Don't plod along in the old beaten path, that leads to failure, but strike out into the highway that leads to success and fortune.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR BUSINESS.

I.

Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but shalt pull off thy coat and go to work that thou mayst prosper in thy affairs and make the word "failure" spell "success."

II.

Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a bum, for thou shouldst know that thy personal appearance is better than a letter of recommendation.

III.

Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shalt thou say to those that chide thee, "I didn't think."

IV.

Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, for thus may thy days be long in the job which fortune hath given thee.

V.

Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine integrity, nor shalt thou be guilty of anything that will lessen thy good respect for thyself.

VI.

Thou shalt not covet the other fellow's job, nor his salary, nor the position which he hath gained by his own hard labor.

VII.

Thou shalt not fail to live within thy income nor shalt thou contract any debts when thou canst not see thy way clear to pay them.

VIII.

Thou shalt not fail to blow thine own horn, for he who is afraid to blow his own horn at the proper occasion findeth nobody standing ready to blow it for him.

IX.

Thou shalt not hesitate to say "No" when thou meanest "No," nor shalt thou fail to remember that there are occasions when it is unsafe to bind thyself by hasty judgment.

X.

Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last and great commendment and there is no other like unto it. Upon this commandment dependeth all the law and the profits of the business world.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Unusual, but still practical—a Christmas gift of a course in the Commercial Normal to an ambitious son or daughter, niece or nephew. That gift will help them to help themselves.

The commercial course teaches business by the laboratory method. Students learn business by doing real business; learn to keep books by keeping them. They learn easily, because learning this way is fascinating.

We have normal courses designed especially to help young men and women whose early training was neglected.

The English language taught to new comers in this country.

A school based on the peoples' needs—a school that's here to help, that's

"The Quality School"

Because Horace Greely was a great man without being a good penman it does not follow that the firststep in greatness is to have one's penmanship look like crow tracks.

WELL, THAT'S SO.

It was in the smoking room of an Atlantic steamer that a worthw Teuton was recently talking about weather forecasts.

"Look here," said he, "I dell you vat it is. You petter don't dake no shtoch in der wedder bredictions. Dose beople don't know nodings. Dey can't dell no petter as I can."

"But, my dear Sir," said a person present, "they foretold the storm we have just encountered."

"Vell, dat ish so," said the Teuton contemplatively, but I dell you vat it is, dat shtorm would have come yust de same if it had not been bredicted."

P. O. MYHRUM, Secretary.
Bookkeeping, Penmanship and General Subjects.

EVENING SCHOOL.

The school is open for evening work on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. It is in session from 7:30 P. M. to 9:30 P. M. It offers an excellent opportunity to those who work during the day to acquire a good knowledge of almost any subject on moments that would otherwise be wasted.

Foreigners, especially those unacquainted with our language, should seize this opportunity to learn to read and write the English language. A special class has been organized for their benefit and any one is invited to join.

We invite the business men of the city and others to join our evening class in Commercial Law. The course will consist of a series of lectures, thus requiring no preparation outside of the time spent at the school. By taking this course you can secure a good understanding of the principles of law that apply to your business, and that knowledge may in time be the means of saving you thousands of dollars.

Thousands of young men have received promotion through their knowledge of Bookkeeping and Shorthand. Many of them have secured this knowledge by attending evening schools and showing that they were willing and eager to seize the oportunity that presented itself. Our evening classes in Bookkeeping, Shorthand and Typewriting have been in session for three months. Why not spend your spare time there? Do not think that opportunity will give you a warning before presenting itself. Be prepared when it calls. No time like the present. Do it now.

Life is a real thing. Don't play it away. Some day you will wake up to find that it is impossible to make the right start. Every one is architect of his own fortune,—at least to a great extent. Begin to draw your plans early. On those plans erect the structure of your character, strong and indestructable.

Gentlemen:

As a former student of your school, I take pleasure in saying that the education I received there is of inestimable value to me. I am now holding a good position due to your able and thorough instruction. Any young man or woman who wishes to change vocation could do no better than to secure a knowledge of Bookkeeping and Shorthand in your school.

Wishing you continued success, I am

Dear Friends:

It is a pleasure for me to say that the instruction and treatment I received at your school was the very best anyone could wish for.

Through your aid I secured a position five months after beginning my course and your excellent instruction enabled me to easily do the work required.

I feel grateful for the interest you have taken in my welfare and assure you that I will always be interested in the growth of the Commercial Normal School.

Wishing you success the coming year, I remain

Your friend,
Eleanor Boyce.

Dear Sir:

We have your letter of the 11th, inst., regarding one of your former students, Miss Eleanor Boyce. Miss Boyce was with us for several months as Billing Clerk, and we are pleased to state that her work was entirely satisfactory.

She is a competent stenographer and makes an excellent office assistant.

Yours truly,

Business life does not unfit woman for an after or intermittent domestic life. In an office, woman sees man at his best and worst. She is better able to judge him generally or as a domestic companion.

The School that "Makes Good"; Every teacher a "Specialist"; "Every student a satisfied customer", is the motto we live up to.

Congressional Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 22,1910.

The issuing of the call for a Progressive Republican convention to be held in Minneapolis, Jaunary 4, has resulted in considerable discussion here in Washington among the members of Congress, especially among the progressives. The meeting is attracting so much attention that the Washington Times, in a recent issue, discussed the convention quite at length. The article is in part as follows:

"Progressive Republica in Congress, as an evidence that the insurgent or progressive movement in their party is gathering strength rather than dying out, point to the fact that in Minnesota the progressive Republicans are planning on a State convention".

"This convention will be held January 4th, at Minneapolis. The purpose of it will be to form a State organization and enunciate a platform of principles. The convention will wind up with a banquet in St. Paul. at which speeches will be delivered by leading progressives. The call for the convention has been signed by prominent progressives in every part of Minnesota. A large attendance is promised. Senator Moses E. Clapp is expected to attend and progressive Republicans of prominence from other States will attend".

"It is believed by the progressives that this Minnesota convention is going to mark an important event in the politics of the State. They avow their intention or rescuing the State from machine control. They charge that the politics of Minnesota has been dominated by the special interests, such a sthe railroads, street railroads, the steel interests, brewing interests and others."

"Progressives in Congress think it may prove to be the beginning of an important movement in tha tit may encourage the progressives in other States to assemble, enuciate their principles and organize. So far as Washington is concerned, the Minnesota meeting will be watched with close attention and interest."

In the call, which has recently been received here by progressive Republicans in Congress, it is stated at the outset that the progressive brand of Republicans are waging a vigorous fight within their party for clean government and popular rule. It is further declared that "this is an uprising of the people that is spontaneous and not the result of any prearranged leadership or plan. It springs from causes that are deepseated and common to the whole State. The voters of Minnesota are driving special interests from the control of the State gevernment. They are driving business out of politics and politics out of business. They are restoring to themselves the power guaranteed in the State Constitution."

It is avowed in the call that it "is deemed wise and necessary that progressive Republicans from all parts of the State shall convene for careful consideration of the best means of securing these desirable results."

Of the Minnesota delegation in Congress who have received copies of the call and who are urged to attend the meeting, for the purpose of giving aid and encouragement to the movement are Senator, Clapp and Representatives Davis, Lindberg, Volstad and Steenerson. It is not known that the other members of the Minnesota delegation here in Washington received copies of the call and invitations to attend the Minneapolis meeting. Congress will reconvene after the holidays January 4 or 5, so that it would not be convenient for any Minnesota member who felt so inclined to attend.

Steenerson and Volstad are not very enthusiasitc over the prospect of the progressive meeting. The former is quoted in this connection as saying that it was inopportune and unnecessary. Volstad does not endorse the convention plan.

Davis and Lindberg will give the meeting their support and co-operation, although they will not be in attendance. They are both of the opinion that nothing should be done at the convention which would in the least savor of a third party movement. This is the thing to be guarded against, so these progressives assert. The leaders among the Progressive Republicans in Congress take the position, as a rule, that the progressive movement should be confined to the Republican party and that it would be a misfortune should a situation develop that might give rise to a third party. They want to remake the Republican party along progressive lines, using the available party machinery, which would be lacking in case a new party was organized.

Senator Clapp left for Minnesota December 17th, to be gone over the holidays, but it is not likely that he will be able to remain for the Minneapolis meeting, although his sypathies are in that direction.

Representative Lindberg who had planned on launching the first issue of his progressive magazine in February has found it necessary to postpone the date of the first publication until April. This has been necessary owing to a large amount of Congressional work which he has on his hands which will interfere with his personal supervision of the publication of the initial number. The name of the magazine is to be known as "A Better Deal."

Representative Burleson of Texas who led the fight at the last session of Congress for the repeal of the oleomargarine tax law is authority for the statement that the fight will be renewed in dead earnest at this session, with a fair prospect of enacting some legislation that would be advantageous from the stand-point of the oleo interests, but detrimental to the butter and dairy people. Mr. Tawney is of the opinion, however, that there is no danger of this subject coming dangerously to the front at this session, nor does he think that the oleomargarine manufacturers will secure any advantage at this time.

The agitation over the possible repeal of the liquor clauses in the Minnesota Indian treaties is causing no end of comment here in Washington, among Minnesota members. Those representing northern Minnesota districts are receiving bundles of letters daily from constituents whose interests lie one way or the other. This will be a live topic before the close of the session.

Election Is Contested

On Friday evening of last week Ed Healy of Red Lake Falls filed a notice of contest of election in the office of the clerk of court with 56 specific counts upon which he seeks to overthrow the returns of the recent election.

One charge made is that the ballot did not name the new county that it was proposed to organize. Another is that no legal notice was given that such a question was to be voted upon at said election and another is that there is no provision made for the transfer of ditch bond indebtedness of a county in cases of division and the ditches or part of the ditches are in the new county.

Besides these there are a number of fictitious charges of illegal voting and incorrect counting of votes in almost every precinct in Pennington county but no mention is made of any irregularties in the south end nor of the missing official reports from the one Ward of Red Lake Falls.

OLD CROOKSTON STORE GOES BANKRUPT.

A new turn of affairs developed in the business arrangements of the New York Store this morning. Since opening over a year ago the business has been in the hands of trustees with Mr. Chabot still at the head of the business management, its indebtedness being paid to the creditors in dividends made at certain periods This arrangement has been satisfactory to all until recent developments presented themselves. It now will be necessary to wind up this business at once. Mr. Chabot has turned over the stock and management to the creditors of the concern and retires from the store. A sale of the stock and fixtures will at once be begun and continued until the goods are entirely closed out,

We regret to learn of this decision on the part of all concerned, as in the passing out of the New York Store one of the largest and oldest establishments of Crookston will be a thing of the past.—Crookston Times.

The man who "makes a business of farming" should have a business card; some printed letter-heads, with the name of his farm home thereon; and should pay his bills with checks on his bank. All these little things not only "make business," but help to dignify his calling, improve his social standing and enhance his credit.

Mara's Voice.

Mme. Mara had a voice that extended from middle C to E in alt and was one of the most facile and flexible ever known. She delighted in the florid music of Hasse, Graun, Benda, Jommelli, Pergalese, Porpora, Sacchini and others of that school and with the utmost ease executed passages that are now consigned to solo instruments, such as the violin and flute. She held the stage from 1771 to 1802, with an occasional appearance after the latter date.

His Bedtime.

"When do you wind your watch," asked the man with the bulging brow—"morning or evening?"

"Generally in the morning." answered the man with the bulbous nose.

"I always wind mine just before I go to bed."

URGES SWEEPING CHANGES

Minnesota Superintendent of Banks Files His Report.

St. Paul, Dec. 20.—J. B. Galarneault, state superintendent of banks, has filed with Governor Eberhart his annual report, which is the first since that office was created by the legislature of 1910. The report covers a great variety of subjects and makes many recommendations of sweeping changes in the laws.

The superintendent of banks, he believes, should be given discretion by law to grant or refuse applications for charters for state banks. There is a craze for the establishment of such banks, he says, often where there is no demand for them. He thinks the department should have authority to investigate local conditions and act accordingly, the same as the federal controller of the currency enjoys, and thus prevent the establishment of too many banks.

PARENTS LIVE IN ST. HILAIRE-SISTER TOOK REMAINS HOME TODAY.

When the proprietor of the St. Paul hotel at Fargo went to the room of Arthur W. Pederson yesterday morning to call him he was horrified to find Mr. Pederson dead in bed. It is said that Mr. Pederson suffered a fatal hemorrhage during the night. He had been a sufferer with tuberculosis for some time but was working Saturday.

The remains were taken in charge bu Undertaker Gaard and this morning arrived in Crookston and were taken on to the home of Mr. Pederson near St. Hilaire, for burial. Deceased was 25 years old and leaves a father and mother near St. Hilaire and one sister, Alida, in Fargo, who accompanied the remains home .

He was employed by the Singer Sewing Machine company at Fargo for a number of years and was a young man well thought of by his employers and his friends.

Deceased is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pederson, the family residing ten miles west of St. Hilaire, where they have made their home for many years and have a wide acquaintance. The young man was well known to many in Crookston who deeply regret to hear of his sudden taking away and who join in extending sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

The funeral services were held Thursday.

Many a habitually muddy road running east and west can be helped a lot if the trees to the south shading it are removed entirely or thinned enough so that the sunshine can get a chance at the highway. It is not quite so bad on north and south roads, but bad enough so that the majority of the trees might well be removed.

A little stack of clover or alfalfa should be included in the winter food supply of every flock of hens from which eggs are expected during the winter months. It provides protein in a form which they greatly relish.

Straw is not only a more economical feed for horses than rich hays when they are not working hard, but is preferable from the standpoint of their health. A good deal of bright straw will be thus fed the coming winter.

The class of people who squander the most money on get-rich-quick schemes are not much better nor a great deal worse than the sharpers who fleece them, for both are playing the same game—getting something for nothing—the latter successfully, the former unsuccessfully.

Where the current is available there is no light for use in the barn that is so safe and convenient as the electric. It is always on tap, and there isn't a continual expenditure for broken chimneys, while the danger from fire as a result of the cow kicking the light over is reduced to a minimum.

With pure bred fowls selling at prices ranging from $2 to $2,000 it is perhaps unreasonable to expect all around perfection in an individual for which the owner asks but $4 or $5.

JOEL COOK.,

Congressman Succumbs Following Stroke of Apoplexy.

CONGRESSMAN COOK DEAD

Philadelphia Representative Expires Following Apoplectic Stroke.

Philadelphia, Dec. 16.—Congressman Joel Cook of the Second Pennsylvania district, comprising part of this city, is dead here. Mr. Cook was stricken with apoplexy in Washington last Saturday and, failing to show any improvement, he was removed to his home here.

Last summer Mr. Cook suffered a light paralytic stroke, but recovered sufficiently to resume his congressional duties. He was sixty-eight years old.

MEDIATOR MAKING LITTLE PROGRESS

Railroads and Engineers Firm in Their Positions.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—No results are expected from the effort of Mediator Charles P. Neill to adjust the differences between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the sixty-one Western railroads from whom the brotherhood is asking incerased wages.

Mr. Neill held two conferences with the railway managers and one with the engineers, but it was announced the effort so far had been in vain and both railroad managers and engineers declared the chances of the mediation resulting in settlement appeared very unfavorable.

ALLEGED TO BE BUCKET SHOP

Officers of Chicago Investment Company Raided.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—United States secret service officials raided the offices of the Capital Investment company as a bucket shop. The main office and four of its branches were visited and papers and records confiscated. Sidmon McHale is said by federal officers to be chief owner of the company. He is believed to be in Florida.

DISCUSS LID WITH PRESIDENT

Minnesota Governor and Five Congressmen Call.

TAWNEY ISSUES STATEMENT

Declares Prohibition Order of Secretary Ballinger in the "Indian Country" Amounts to an Invasion of the Police Rights of the State—Eberhart Declines to Discuss Visit.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Governor Eberhart and five members of the Minnesota delegation discussed with President Taft conditions in the state growing from the enforcement of the Ballinger prohibition order in the so-called "Indian country."

Governor Eberhart did not go to the White House with the Minnesota representatives. He went there alone, talked the subject over with the president and returned to his hotel.

"My conversation with the president was of a confidential character," said the governor. "Therefore I do not care to make any comments on it."

Asked whether he protested against the further enforcement of the Ballinger order, the governor said: "That is a question for the federal government to determine. I do not care to discuss it."

Five members of the Minnesota delegation, Representatives Tawney, Stevens, Miller, Volstead and Nye, put in an appearance at the White House. They saw the president and discussed the liquor case with him. Mr. Tawney made public a statement in which he spoke for himself and his colleagues.

In this statement there is outlined arguments that have been made heretofore against the enforcement of the treaty law. Representative Tawney declared it was the belief of Minnesota members who were at the White House that the order of the federal government amounts to an invasion of the police rights of the state.

As illustrating the sweeping effect of the Ballinger order, carried to its logical conclusion, Mr. Tawney declared that it would result in the closing of the Mayo hospital at Rochester. For, Mr. Tawney declared, the order is aimed at medicines that contain alcohol as well as straight alcoholic drinks.

KNOTTY PROBLEMS TO SOLVE

Annual Report of Minnesota Railway Commission.

St. Paul, Dec. 20.—Important problems are put up to the new legislature by the annual report of the state railroad and warehouse commission, advance sheets of which are given out.

Two important recommendations are consequences of the railroad rate litigation and the recent decision of Judge C. E. Otis, as master in chancery. The commission says that under the Otis decision the power of the commission to make a general investigation and revision of rates is questioned. Judge Otis seems to hold that the commission has no right to act except in a specific case on complaint. The commission recommends that the law be amended so as to leave no doubt of the commission's power to review the whole subject on its own initiative.

A new law is also asked to require railroads to make a change in their reports to the state. It has become necessary in the rate litigation to find out the cost of doing business local to the state.

TO HELP DEVELOP THE STATE

Minnesota May Have Department of Agriculture.

Washington, Dec. 20.—One of the leading chapters of Governor Eberhart, forthcoming message to the Minnesota legislature will be a discussion of measures to further develop the agricultural resources of the state. The governor made this known during the course of conferences with members of the Minnesota delegation and officials of the department of agriculture.

The governor intends to ask the legislature to consolidate all the activity of the state in the line of agriculture under one head, the official to have charge of this work to bear the title of commissioner of agriculture.

AMEND THE PURE FOOD LAWS

New Measure to Serve as Model for the States.

Washington, Dec. 20.—As the result of a conference with a delegation of New York and Chicago business men, Representative Mann of Illinois, chairman of the house committee on interstate commerce, will introduce a substitute for his bill amending the pure food law relating to the branding of packages of foods, drugs, medicines and liquors.

The substitute, which is designed to serve as a model, provides that if the net quantity of the contents of the package is not plainly and conspicuously marked on the outside the article will be deemed to be misbranded.

Dr. F. H. Gambell, of Thief River Falls, has sold the George Hare quarter, which he has held at $2,000 to Christ Norbeck, a man who has lived on that section of the country for the last eight years and knows the value of ThiefLake land. The doctor states that he has another quarter in the same section, known as the Dick Edmunds place, which he will sell for $1,700. All good dry land with small house, barn and granary, good well, 25 acres broken. Also a tract of 173 acres, the finest, best drained land in the Thief Lake country, known as the Evans Quarter, lying just north of Mike Polausky's which he will sell for $2,000. Both of these quarters are well worth the price asked.—Middle River Pioneer.

LORIMER GIVEN A CLEAN BILL

Report of Senate Sub-Committee on Elections.

HOLD ILLINOIS MAN INNOCENT

Investigators Believe He Was Ignorant of the Distribution of Money Among the Legislators.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Senator Lorimer of Illinois was given a clean bill of health by the sub-committee of the senate committee on privileges and elections, which investigated the charges of bribery made in connection with his election to succeed Senator Hopkins. The report of the investigation was to the full committee on privileges and elections, which then adjourned until Tuesday to give the members opportunity to study the evidence and the sub-committee's report.

Evidence that there was money passed between certain members of the Illinois legislature was not ignored by the sub-committee, but it was declared that if the votes of members charged either with receiving or paying money had been eliminated Mr. Lorimer still would have had a majority of three votes.

The sub-committee was a unit in ascertaining that the evidence did not show that Mr. Lorimer had been connected with the alleged distribution of money to influence the legislature.

Burrows Heads Committee.

The sub-committee was composed of Senators Burrows, Bulkeley, Gamble, Heyburn, Frazier, Paynter and Johnston.

It had been expected that the report would be printed and copies furnished to the entire membership. The investigators, however, were so desirous of maintaining secrecy that the report was prepared in typewritten form and read to the full committee.

In discussing the question of bribery it is understood that the sub-committee was content with incorporating in the report all of the testimony affecting individual members of the Illinois legislature. No effort was made to determine the truth or falsity of this testimony, but it is asserted that evidence was not found that Mr. Lorimer had initiated by witnesses who told of the alleged distribution of a "jack pot" at St. Louis or elsewhere.

NET GAIN OF ONE SEAT

Liberal Coalition Has Majority of Ninety-two in Commons.

London, Dec. 16.—Only sixty-four seats in the new parliament remain to be filled and the coalition parties already have a majority of ninety-two, although the Unionists, as a homogeneous party, still have the largest number, with a total of 257 members elected to date. The supporters of the government are made up as follows: Liberals, 236; Irish Nationalists, 64; Independent Nationalists, 9; Labor members, 40; an aggregate of 349. The Laborites thus far have secured the same number of seats that they held in the last parliament.

Two Liberal and one Unionist gains in the latest returns give the Liberals a net gain of a single seat in the 606 constituencies now polled.

The sheep killing dog is not unlike some men you now and then run across, seemingly pious and well behaved by daylight, but raisin' the devil o' nights. Both need chaining up twenty-four hours of the day.

Now that the leaves are off it will be a good idea to cut the grape or other vine from the apple or shade tree unless it is the intention to sacrifice tree to vine. If the tree is already done for it may well be left as a trellis for the vine.

Figures recently compiled show that in some way or another, by hook or crook, and many are disposed to think by the latter method chiefly, the corporations of the country have acquired possession of 164,000,000 acres of land in the United States, while small holders own but 105,000,000 acres.

The man who is continually acting the fool has no license to get mad if he should be sometimes mistaken for the genuine article.

A subscriber once received a dun through the Post-office and it made him mad. He went to see the editor about it and the editor showed him a few duns of his own one for paper, one for fuel and several others. Now, said the editor, I did not get mad when these came because I knew all that I had to do was to ask several reliable gentleman like you to come and help me out, and then I could settle all of them. When the subscriber saw how it was, he relented, paid up, and renewed for another year.

How cheap some people can be.

Some farmers from Rudell were in Plummer about two weeks ago, while staying here they had a few drinks and in the evening they started for home with a little in the head, while driving home an unusual case happered which may be of interest for some people, to see how cheap some people can afford to be. One of these men had a couple jugs of alcohol on his load, after driving about seven miles this man looked after his jugs and found that they were not there and asking his partner for them who got mad and told him he was not a thief but after teaching him the seventh commendment and then some he told him he took them of the load about 80 rods behind and put them on the grade, he turned around and found the jugs in a good shape, this fellow must have been short of alcohol and still shorter of any sign of honer and self respect.

RIOTING RENEWED

Serious Disturbances Occur in New York City.

DRIVERS' STRIKE MAY SPREAD

Express Companies Refuse to Deal With Employes' Organization in Effort to Settle Trouble.

New York, Nov. —With the word that all hope of settling the strike of the express drivers had "gone by the board" there was a renewal of rioting all through the central section of the city. Wagons driven by strikebreakers were attacked, the men pulled from their seats and beaten and harnesses slashed from the horses. Police guards were doubled and both sides prepared for trouble that will make all previous street fighting appear mild when it starts.

During strike disorders at Seventy-fifth street and Broadway Patrick F. Roach, twenty-eight years old, an American Express helper, was wounded in the side by a revolver shot. A priest administered the last rites of the church to the dying man on the sidewalk.

Christian Kelkenvenner of Brooklyn, while loading a truck, was struck and sustained a bad scalp wound. J. Dealor, a driver found asleep on a truck in front of a store, was rolled onto the sidewalk and received a bad scalp injury. George Snuff, an American Express driver, was also assaulted and badly lacerated about the face. The two latter victims had to be taken to hospitals.

In addition the rioting resulted in numerous runaways in which half a dozen persons, mostly pedestrians, were injured.

That a general strike which will include all the organized teamsters of the city and surrounding towns will be declared appears certain. The union officers have been in conference regarding it ever since the word was received that the companies refused to deal with the unions and the order declaring it may come at any moment. That the situation is considered serious was shown by a hasty conference of higher police officers, after which it was announced that all leaves of absence have been cancelled and the entire reserve force will be held in the stations until further notice.

A Reformer

By SARAH BRICE VAUGHAN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Ticket for Buffalo," said a young lady, opening her satchel and hunting for her partemonnaie. Then suddenly she exclaimed: "Oh, heavens! I've been robbed!"

"Two tickets to Buffalo," said a young man next in line.

The tickets were handed out, paid for and one of them slipped into the girl's hand before she had time to recover from the effect of her loss.

The young man caught up a suit case the girl had set down beside her and hurried her off to the train. Having found her a seat and racked her suit case, he was about to leave her when she made room for him beside her.

"Please let me know who you are and the price of the ticket," she said, "that I may send you the amount."

The young man took an old envelope from his pocket, wrote on it John Sparkline, with his address, and gave it to her. Then they fell to talking of how the thief could have got the pocketbook.

"There was but one moment," she said, "that it was out of my possession. I was sitting in the waiting room and a candy boy came along. I had small coins inside my glove, and I laid my bag down on the seat beside me while I paid for some candy."

"A candy boy is the most dangerous thing a girl can meet," said Mr. Sparkline dryly. The girl looked up at him, but as his face was perfectly serious she continued:

"A man sat in the seat next the one in which I had the satchel."

"What did he look like?"

"I haven't an idea."

"Complimentary."

"What do you mean?"

"You evidently weren't attracted by the man's appearance."

Again she looked at him.

"Are you sure you wouldn't recognize him again?"

"No, I wouldn't."

The couple talked for three hours, which seemed but one, and when they were within a short distance of their destination the young man turned to the girl and said impressively:

"Did you ever take the first step in crime?"

"No," she replied in astonishment.

"I have."

"Oh, heavens! Are you a criminal?"

"I stole your pocketbook."

"You stole my pocketbook?"

"Alas, I must confess it."

"But you have loaned me half as much as it contained."

"That came from remorse."

"But it seems to me the remorse came very quickly."

"I couldn't bear to see you troubled."

She looked at him sidewise.

"I don't believe a word you say."

He took the portemonnaie from his pocket and handed it to her.

"Please don't have me arrested," he pleaded. "I am the child of poor but dishonest parents, who taught me to steal when I was a little boy."

"I thought you said something about a first crime."

"Did I? They taught me to lie too."

"Poor child!"

"When I saw you lay your bag on the seat between you and me I could not resist the temptation. Oh, why did you leave it there?"

"I'm so sorry. I didn't know I was tempting any one. Why don't you reform?"

"I haven't any one to reform me."

"But is it necessary that you should have some one for that? Can't you do it yourself?"

"No; I'm too far gone."

"What do you want any one to do to help you?"

"Why, I think that if I could see you once a week and you would encourage me I might pull through to a permanent reformation."

She thought awhile, then said:

"If you really think I can help you I shall be very glad to have you come every Saturday to tell me that you haven't picked any one's pocket during the week."

"Oh, how I thank you! I know you can save me and make an honest man of me."

"The only thing that troubles me," she said thoughtfully, "is that I must tell father, and I'm afraid he'll object."

"Tell him to go to Mr. William Evans, — Locust street. He is interested in me and knows something to my advantage."

When they reached the station the penitent handed the girl out to a carriage, and she drove away, giving him an encouraging smile and promising to let him know the decision in his case. She told her father about it, and he gave her a scolding. But she forced him to make the inquiry of Mr. Evans. When he had done so he said to his daughter:

"Sis, the fool killer is coming this evening to carry you away."

"What do you mean, papa?"

"Evans, whom I have long known, tells me that this man is Jack Sparkline, his nephew, worth half a million and full of the Old Nick. I've given permission for the young rascal to call."

"But he did steal my purse."

"Of course he did, and with a view to making your acquaintance."

"Oh, my goodness gracious! And I told him he might come on Saturdays to assure me he hadn't picked a pocket during the week!"

BEGINS HIS EIGHTH TERM

Porfirio Diaz Has Ruled Mexico for Many Years.

City of Mexico, Dec. —Porfirio Diaz has completed his seventh term as president of Mexico and today began another term of six years.

Harrassed by revolutionists who seek his overthrow and bowed down under the weight of eighty years it is doubtful if the great statesman and soldier will live to complete the new term upon which he has just entered.

The grim, determined spirit of his Indian ancestry is yet in evidence in the drastic measures he has taken to put down the revolts of his disloyal subjects—for subjects they are, since Diaz, with the name of president, rules as a king.

GARMENT STRIKE MAY END

Terms of Settlement Are Put Up to the Workers.

Chicago, Dec. —Terms for the settlement of the garment workers' strike were tendered to the council settlement committee and Mayor Busse by representatives of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, chief of the employers affected, and were tentatively accepted by representatives of the workers to the conference called by the mayor.

The end of the strike now depends upon acceptance of the terms by the strikers.

The Burglar's Prayer.

Sir Herbert Risley, speaking of the castes of eastern Bengal at a meeting of the Royal Anthropological institute, said a curious system of religious worship prevailed among a caste who were professional burglars. They made a space in the ground, and a man then cut his arm and prayed to one of the earth gods that there might be a dark night and that he might succeed in obtaining great booty and escape capture.—London Standard.

OVER A SCORE OF FIREMEN PERISH

Twenty-four Meet Death at a Fire in Chicago.

CRUSHED BY FALLING WALL

Chief Horan and Twenty-three Men Killed While Fighting Flames in Stock Yards District.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Twenty-four men, including Fire Marshal James Horan, lost their lives at the stock yards, crushed beneath a brick wall that fell while fire was destroying the meat storage house of Morris & Co. By midnight nineteen bodies, including that of Chief Horan, had been dug from the ruins. Six others were supposed to be buried under a huge mass of debris.

Twenty of those killed were firemen, Chief Horan losing his life five minutes after reaching the scene. Three of the known dead were stock yards employes. Twelve persons were injured.

Following is a revised list of the recovered dead:

James Horan, fire marshal; William J. Burroughs, second assistant fire marshal; Herman Brandenburg, lieutenant; Patrick E. Collins, captain; Thomas Costello, pipeman; Nicholas Crane, truckman; Edward J. Danis, lieutenant; Nicholas Doyle, truckman; Andrew Dymuran, fire watchman; Stephen Leon, clerk Chicago Junction railroad; Charles Moore, truckman; Albert Moriarity, truckman; George Mauraski, pipeman; Edward Schonsette, truckman; William F. Weber, pipeman; George Enthof, pipeman; W. G. Sturm, lieutenant, and two unidentified firemen.

The buildings destroyed include two warehouses full of dressed meat, hemp, etc., a tallow house and other structures.

The fire started from the explosion of an ammonia pipe at 4 a. m.

How the Men Met Death.

Several hours after the fire started a wooden canopy fell from the beef house of Morris & Co., carrying with it tons of red hot bricks and debris upon two companies of firemen and the chief, crushing them to death and encasing their bodies in a veritable furnace, into which their comrades were unable to dig for several hours, so that practically all those who were not killed outright when the walls fell were roasted to death before help could come to them.

Assistant Chief William Burroughs and Lieutenant Fitzgerald were with the marshal under the fatal canopy when it fell and went down to their death with Marshal Horan.

Other firemen, witnesses of the disaster which met their chief, for a brief time deserted the other parts of the blazing structure and, rushing to the pyre, sought with their bare hands to drag apart the glowing bricks and debris to bring the body of their chief and his ill fated comrades to what safety remained for them. Finding this a vain effort they obeyed again the direction of Assistant Marshal Seyferlich and redoubled their efforts to shut in the spreading area of destruction.

An explosion occurred on the top floor of warehouse No. 6 and the roof was blown into the air. Flames shot skyward and half a dozen companies of firemen who had stationed themselves on the further end of the roof narrowly escaped being struck by flying debris. They managed to clamber down fire escapes in time to escape.

TWO DEAD; $2,000,000 LOSS

Entire Block in Cincinnati Factory District Destroyed.

Cincinnati, Dec. 22.—Fire in the factory district here resulted in the death of two persons, the injuring of several firemen and property loss estimated at $2,000,000. One of the dead is Fireman Robert D. Grear, who was crushed beneath a falling wall. The other is Walter Morris, eighteen years old, who was fatally hurt by a falling trolley pole. Buildings comprising an entire block were consumed.

The block from Ninth and Sycamore streets to Broadway was swept by the flames. The firms burned out are:

Krippendorf & O'Neal Shoe company, Taylor-Poole Leather company, Cahill Shoe company, Twinlock company, Sycamore Street Stable company's barn, Griess-Pfleiger Leather company, Victor Safe and Lock company, warehouse of the A. & J. Nurre company, picture frames and holdings; E. O. Duncan paper box factory and the Wildberg box factory.

ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Prominent Young Montana Man Arrested.

Helena, Mont., Dec. 27.—D. W. Raymond, secretary of the state board of live stock commissioners, swore to a warrant for the arrest of S. W. Langhorne, Jr., assistant secretary of the board, charging wholesale forgery of checks made out to shippers of cattle from Montana to the Eastern markets. Langhorne was later arrested. He has returned $3,000 and admits the taking of $15,000 in this manner, but the state examiner's inspection shows double this amount improperly accounted for.

Langhorne is the son of a prominent Montana pioneer, and with his wife, moved in the ultrafashionable set of the city. He accounted to his friends for his opulency by referring to a well paying mine which he said he owned. It was thought at first that others were implicated, but Langhorne has shouldered the responsibility.

His plan was to extract from letters checks covering estray shipments which usually amount to $150,000 annually. He would then forge the signature of the payee and destroy the letter, cashing the checks at local establishments.

A Spanish Ship Treasure.

In 1762 the largest bulk of treasure ever taken from a ship at sea was brought into London. It was the whole of the cargo of the Spanish ship Hermione, captured on May 21 by H. M. S. Active. The Hermione surrendered to the Active without an action, and the treasure was landed at Portsmouth and conveyed to London in twenty decorated wagons, with British colors over Spanish and an escort party of sailors. The strange procession reached London on Aug. 12, the day on which George IV. was born. On being sold the treasure realized £519,705 1s. 6d., and the share of the officers and men of the Active was as follows: The captain, £65,053 13s. 9d.; three commissioned officers, each £13,004 14s. 1d.; eight warrant officers, each £4,396 8s. 2d.; twenty petty officers, each £1,806 1s. 8d.; 158 seamen, each £485 5s. 4d.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Jury Penalties.

Nowadays no penalty is enforced when the twelve men chosen to form the jury are unable to agree upon a verdict. Formerly, however, a refractory juryman was committed to prison and the verdict of the eleven was taken. In the reign of King Edward III. the judges decided that a verdict given by a majority was a nullity and recommended that the judges should carry the jury about with them in a cart till they should agree. The old custom that jurors should fast until they had agreed in their verdict prevailed long, but was mercifully relaxed somewhat in Tudor times, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful party to a suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

When the Hen Crows.

Willsford in his "Nature Secrets" (1658) writes:

"Beasts eating greedily and more than they used to do presages foul weather, and all small cattle that seem to rejoyce with playing and sporting themselves foreshews rain. Oxen and all kinds of neat, if you do at any time observe them to hold up their heads and snuffle in the air or lick their hooves or their bodies against the hair, expect then rainy weather. Asses or mules rubbing often their ears or braying much more than usually they are accustomed presages rain. Hogs crying and running up and down with hay or litter in their mouths foreshews a storm to be near at hand. The little sable beast (called a flea) if much thirsting after blood it argues rain. The cock if he crows in the daytime very much or at sunsetting or when he is at roost at unusual hours, as at 9 or 10, expect some change of weather and that suddenly, but from fair to foul or the contrary. But when the hen crows good men expect a storm within doors and without."

Lured Into Bathing.

In a railway carriage chat the other day a London medical man told a good story which had come within his own experience. A mother was frequently bringing her child to him for treatment, but the doctor could discover nothing amiss except its need of a good wash. She was certain the infant was suffering from some terrible complaint and begged the doctor to do his best. He prescribed a daily wash with the water in which potatoes had been peeled. Never suspecting that this was merely a ruse to get the child washed, the mother followed the instructions to the letter. Rosy cheeks appeared, and a clean, healthy looking child gladdened the mother's heart. She sounded the doctor's praises everywhere and advised other mothers to test the efficacy of potato water. It never occurred to her that precisely the same result would have followed the daily application of soap and water.

Senator Knute Nelson's stand in the Ballinger "white washing" makes one wonder if the Senator has outlived his usefulness.

Mrs. Crane discovered a number of thing which the citizens were not proud in nearly a score of thriving cities in Minnesota, and notwithstanding the fact that Minnesota cities are the most healthy in the world, perhaps owing to Minnesota's unrivalled climate.

If you raise fine fruit or vegetables for the table, why not let thepeople in your market town know it, by means of a card? You may thus sell many a wagon-load direct to consumers, and at a much better price than when the middleman is your only customer.

A woman in Pennsylvania, convicted nine years ago of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged, is still awaiting punishment because no governor will fix the date for the execution of a woman. Now, you suffragists, who believes in equality of the sexes, why have you overlooked this chance to see that women receive the same treatment as men would under the same circumstances. Go to it, get "justice."

Conservation of human life as the most important thing was emphasized in the State Conservation Congress and at the National Conservation Congress in September, both Congresses being held in St. Paul. In spite of the emphasis laid on the fact that human life and health were of more value to a nation than natural resources conditions that menace the citizens of the Twin City were permitted to remain uncorrected.

An observation of newspaper head lines impels one to ask the following questions,

"Who wants to come back, Taft or Teddy?"

"What brand of white wash will be equally effective for Ballinger, Cook or Lorimer?"

"Who's afraid now, Clapp or Eberhart?"

"If Saugstad is Senator pray what is Andy Stephens?"

"Did Knute Nelson get cold feet when he thot of Ballinger?"

Fergus Globe is Suspended.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 27.—The Fergus Globe, which has been published here for the past twenty-five years, has suspended publication. Former Congressman Haldor E. Boen, who has been its editor, does not feel equal to the task of continuing editorial work, as his health is failing, and the Socialists, who took hold of it a few months ago, have now established a paper of their own. Mr. Boen announced that he would-turn the paper over to his sons, but they did not care to take it, and it is understood that the publication is to be discontinued. The Globe was a vigorous paper in the days when the Populist wave carried everything before it in this part of the state and when Mr. Boen was elected to Congress by that party.

A MEDICAL PIONEER.

Early in the seventies of the nineteenth century, a young doctor came out of the East and settled in the city of Minneapolis. He set up in practice within the future heart of the city; he contributed a large share to the free social service which every good physician renders; he made some modest investments in city lots; and he earned, among his neighbors and business associates, a good reputation for public spirit, fair dealing and professional industry. With the ultimate failure of his health he moved to the California coast and died. It is said of him that continually his thought returned to the home of his early adoption.. To the medical associates among whom he had modestly moved and, with especial interest, to the great University of the state , of which he had been particularly proud. He left a moderate fortune and when his estate and that of his widow came to settlement, it was found that he had empowered his executor to bestow a substantial share of his property upon the University of Minnesota, in such a form and for such a purpose as should best serve its existing needs and best contribute to the development of those interests which his quiet but effective life had shared.

His executor assigned his bequest to the building of a hospital pavilion as a memorial to his name and the Elliot Memorial Hospital, which is rapidly approaching completion upon the new University campus, is the result. It has already done more than to perpetuate a worthy memory and to furnish forth the urgent clinical needs of the school of medicine in generous measure. The good thought of this pioneer in his profession has already served as the mustard seed of the Master's story and has become the germ of hospital-system which is destined to form the great teaching laboratory of scientific medicine in the state of Minnesota and to answer to a vital need of the state in the application of the best results of medical science and the highest order of care and treatment to those, throughout the entire state, who need them most are least able to secure them, through either private means or public provision.

The late Dr. A. F. Elliot, of the city of Minneapolis, is the pioneer who has offered to his state this notable monument and has rendered to his profession this signal service.

The University of Minnesota ranks today among the first half-dozen educational institutions in the country. Amid her many activities, she has taken a recent step in which her priority is significent. She is the first University, in this or any other country, to organize, as a department of teaching, under her control, a Training School for Nurses.

In the field of preparation for all forms of social service, the State University fills a very important place. In this field, she makes a direct contribution to the welfare of the commonwealth whose greatest teaching agency she is. Among social service callings, the profession of nursing, by virture of the genius and consecration of the women who have devoted to it and by the intimate relation it bears to the health and the the fostering care of the University. It is, like that of medicine, a profession in the practice of which the public may be safeguarded not only by state license, but by state supervision of the education of the nurse.

The training schools of the past have been too numerous and of insufficiently high grade. They have been, too often, exploited for the benefit of the hospitals to which they are attached. The fit education of their pupils has not always been their prime consideration.

No better impetus toward higher standards of teaching can be given than the State University school. Fair preparatory culture, physical fitness, a preliminary course of instruction in the elements of the sciences relational to medicine, and a graded course in her profession as possible—are the principles upon which the University Training School has been established

With the opening of the Elliot Memorial Building next spring, the limits of numbers, admitted to the training school classes, will be enlarged.

Not the least among the favorable conditions which this University adoption affords is the direct alliance of the school with a teaching hospital in which the highest educational ideals have been set.

Sanitation with all its wealth of scientific achievment would never have made such rapid advances without the aid of an aroused public sentiment. Education in sanitary science shows that the stamping out of epidemics, disposal of sewage and investigation of water supplies make towards the prevention of unnecessary misery and disease. But if the country is to have real sanitation, the great problems in the science must be solved by experts and the question is, what will the schools do for the people in this direction. The one great thing in the power of the medical schools is to furnish the state enough real experts. In Minnesota, the medical department of the State University, one of the conceded best medical schools in the United States is the only place where a medical education can be obtained. This school cannot measure up to its full power of good, without an appreciation of its value by the citizens. Economy in health matters is the poorest kind of economy, and sometimes, if not generally, is born of ignorance.

Politics must be driven out and kept out of every health department, National, State or Municipal, if the efficiency of the department is to be maintained.

TYPHOID IMMUNITY.

Successful vaccination against typhoid fever is one of the recent victories of the United States Army. There have been 31,000 inoculations in the army with no serious injury to any of the patients, so it may be said with certainty that the procedure is safe. Statistics available at this time show that the immunity conferred by vaccination lasts for at least three years. Typhoid fever has been the scourage of armies in canpaigns in every war of recent years. The American Army in the Spanish War was crippled to a greater extent by this disease than by all other conditions that tend to decrease the fighting ifficiency of an army. During that short campaign there occurred 20,738 cases of typhoid fever among 107,973 men, with 1,580 deaths. Laboratory investigations have shown that 3 per cent of those recovering from typhoid fever continue indefinitely to excrete typhoid bacilli capable of infecting others. It is obvious that some adjunct to the usual sanitary measures is necessary to reduce still further the typhoid morbidity. This would seem to be supplied by this new discovery if future experiments verify the results attained in the army.

CORN & CO.

The firm of "Corn & Co." is fast becoming a dominant factor in the progressive agriculture of the Northwest. Great as may be the value of Corn, considered apart from its farm relationship, its highest importance comes from the fact that, above all other products, it enters most readily into partnership with other agencies for the promotion of agricultural prosperity.

A study of the "Minnesota Farmers Institute Annual" for 1910, just issued, shows how corn adapts itself, among other things, to the following "usefulnesses;"

1. The cultivation necessary for its profitable growing destroys the weeds and leaves the ground in fine condition for almost any other crop in a rotation.

2. Ground on which corn has been grown does not need plowing, the next spring, to fit it for wheat or any other grain crop.

3. It enters the home as a leading staple in the farmer's bill of fare.

4. In associations with pasturage, it is practically an all-sufficient feed for fattening beeves. A herd fed on bundle corn needs nothing else, from the time when it enters the feed-lot until it is shipped for slaughter.

5. Corn is the backbone of pork-production. Pasturage and Corn, in partnership, will produce pork more economically than any other feeds.

6. Turn the hog into the corn-field and he will save the wages of a harvester, while feeding himself, and will get more out of the crop than if the corn is fed to him on the feeding-floor, with better results to the farmer.

7. Corn, since it invites its own consumption on the farm, as more profitable than its sale on the market, stands in the front rank as a conservator of the wealth of the soil. So, in partnership with cattle and swine, with horses, sheep and poultry, it continually boosts the value of the farmers' acres, and shows itself unexcelled as a real-estate promoter,

And the farmer himself, who fails to become a progressive member of the firm of "Corn & Co.," is missing a golden opportunity.—C. R. Barns, University Farm, St. Paul.

IMPROVING THE FARM HOME.

Few things will contribute more to the comfort and "sanitation" of a home than an ample supply of running water. This is one of the substantial attractions of the city home. That it is found in comparatively few farmsteads is a reproach to the thrift of the owners, as well as to their characters as husbands and fathers. For a supply of running water is not only a household convenience, but it is a money-saver in numerous ways. In the mere matter of watering cattle, it will not only make a large saving of labor; but, in connection with some simple apparatus for warming water in the winter, it will increase the flow of milk in dairy cattle and cause fettening beeves to lay on far more flesh than when their drink is limited and when such as they have is given them icy cold.

The economies it will effect on even a moderate-sized farmstead will amount to a good deal more each year than the interest on an investment of $500; and only rarely would the outlay for its installation amount to so large a sum as that. Forest Henry, in a recent article, figures that—a well being already available —the cost may be kept within $200; which includes a $100 windmill; 100 feet of 1 1-4 inch pipe, connecting with house and barn, and cost of laying same below the frost-line; the building of a cistern; a small stock-tank; float valves and sundries. The interest on $200 at 6 per cent is only $12 a year. It is safe to say that any farmer, with an ordinary "bunch" of cattle, loses several times that amount in butter uct alone, from the limitation of the amount of water which is inevitable where much labor is involved in watering the animals. All this without taking account of the grain which comes from slightly warming the water given the cattle—something very easily done by setting a coil of the supply pipe inside a small stove —or of the conveniences, the improved healthfulness, and the saving of labor in the house, which accompany the introduction of running water.

The question with most farmers is really not whether they can afford an equipment for running water, but whether they can afford to go without it. Those who have installed such an equipment are usually prompt in answering this question with an emphatic negative.—C. R. Barns, University Farm.

WINTER CARE OF BROOD SOWS.

Succes in pork poductrion is largely affected by the attention given to the health and comfort of thebrood sow. She should always, especially in winter be housed in a warm, comfortable place. Preferably this will be a cot well supplied with straw, and having a door which swings both ways, always closing when the sow passes in or out. This cot may well be located at some distance from the feeding place, so that she will get the necessary exercises in running to and fro.

Her food should consist largely of bulky foods, such as milk, roots and clover hay, which will keep her in good condition without fattening. As farrowing time approaches the bulk should be cut down, less water should be given, andmor e protein and oily feeds should be fed, so as to keep the sow in a laxative condition. She should be disturbed as little as possible. If she is allowed to get nervous or excited, the effect may be seen upon the litter, in an excitable temperament which lessens the rapidity of their growth. Extension Bulletin No. 7 of the Minnesota Farmer's Library, from which this paragraph is condensed, will be found to contain many other suggestions of value to the porkraiser.

In considering the efficiency of brood sows, Henry Wallace gives the following advice. "Go over those that have had pigs the present year and ask them the following questions: How many pigs did you have this year? Were they even in size and form? Were they all good ones, or did you have two or three choice pigs and were the rest quite inferior? How did you take care of these pigs? Are you agood suckler? Are you good natured? Are you a good mother, or are you one of the nervous, fidgety kind, always worring and fretting for fear somebody will hurt you and your precious piglets? If the brood sow on being interrogated, cannot give satisfactory answers to these questions it is not worth while to scold her or give her a moral lecture. Just turn her into the fattening pen; for there is where she belongs."—From Coburn's "Swine In America."

It is stated that over ten thousand swine have been immunized, against hog-cholera, by the Ohio Department of Agriculture, since Jan. 1, 1910. The Minnesota Experiment Station is satisfied that "hog-cholera can be prevented; and, in recent cases, it can even be treated with a reasonable prospect of cure." The methods will soon be published; and it is believed that the long-sought discovery will be the means of preventing attacks which have cost Minnesota farmers, every year, from a few thousands to over a million dollars.

Dr. Michael Bockman has given up his practise here and, Thursday evening left for Mpls. where he has accepted an appointment as school inspector in the city of Minneapolis.

GOV. EBERHART IN WASHINGTON

Gossip to His Senatorial Aspirations. Possible Bearing on Indian Lid Question.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29, 1910.—The interesting feature accompanying Governor Eberhart's recent flying visit to Washington was the rumor that the Minnesota chief executive was anxious to secure Clapp's senatorial toga and that to accomplish this purpose he was seeking the job in all seriousness. The Washington Star gave publicity to the rumor in part, in the following language:

"A prominent member of the Minnesota delegation is authority for the statement that Gov. Eberhart, during his brief stay in Washington, gave certain friends to understand that he would like to succeed Moses E. Clapp in the United States Senate not six years from now, but March 6, 1911, when Mr. Clapp's present term expires."

"That the Governor has senatorial aspirations he would like to have gratified without delay is intelligence that has created a good deal of stir in the Minneosta colony. Members of the Minnesota delegation saw that lively developments may be looked for after Gov. Eberhart returns to Minnesota."

The article in question goes on to state that "there are forces in Minnesota, it is said, that would be glad to see him retire from the office of governor in order that Lieut. Gov. Gordon might be elevated to the posi

In the opinion of some, the language last quoted would seem to indicate that the county option forces are responsible for the story in the Washington paper. The anti-saloon league has its national headquarters in Washington, and any move which might land Lieut. Gov. Gordon, a friend of county option, in the governor's chair, would be encouraged. The defeat of Clapp and the election of Eberhart to suceed him in the Senate, would accomplish this very thing. The story goes that the coming of Eberhart to Washington furnished the anti-saloon people with just the opportunity necessary.

The friends of the governor down here appear to be very much put out and assert that there is absolutely no foundation for the alleged "senatorial intentions" of Governor Eberhart. A. M. Hayes, of Hastings, the newly selected executive clerk to the governor, who has been in Washington until within a few days ago, made the statemetnt that the newspaper story was a myth, pure and simple.

Just what transpired between Gov-er Eberhart and the President at their conference in regard to the Minnesota Indian treaties no one seems to know. This is certain: The governor kept away from the Capitol and did not make the rounds of the Minnesota delegation, as he usually does. It is not even known that he called upon Senator Nelson, with whom he is usually very chummy on the question of his Washington visits.

The question of the final disposition of the Minesota Indian treaties in relation to the liquor traffic in restricted Indian territory is becoming a live topic among Minnesota members. In the districts affected this question is fast becoming a live wire, which must be handled with insulated gloves. Public opinion is so sharply divided that members are at a loss what course to pursue.

Congressman Volstad has discovered in looking over the several Indian treaties which affect Minnesota that in the territory included in the 1855 treaty Congress alone can abrogate or modify any of its provisions. This territory includes practically all of the following counties: Hubbard, Norman, Cass, Wadena, Becker, Crow Wing, Aitkin and Itasca. In the territory comprised within the other treaties the provisions in reference to the instruction of liquor may be medified or repealed by Congress or the President, but in the territory indicated above Congress alone can repeal or modify.

Some of the Minnesota members have returned home for the Holidays to get in touch with the local point of view on this question. Lindberg is interested in the problem. He returned to his home in Little Falls just before the holiday recess. Tawney, Volstad, Stevens and Nye also spent the holiday vacation in Minnesota.

There is a possibility that reapportionment will be deferred until the next Congress and that no action in the matter will be taken at this time. It is understood that the Republicans would prefer to wait. The Democrats on the other hand, want reapportionment now, so as to have the representation of each State fixed under the new census in order that in cases where States have been turned over to Democrats the legislatures can proceed to gerrymander in the districts and possibly add to Democratic strength in the House. Of course, Republicans in States affected by such situations are trying to avoid the dangers of a gerrymander.

New York Republicans such as Representative Dwight, Calder and others who were re-elected, are oppossing reapportionment legislation. They say the moment a reapportionment bill is passed the Democratic legislature would proceed to redistrict the State and gerrymander so as to weaken the Republicans.

WINCHER GETS COMMISSIONER

Joel G. Wincher of Crookston, one of the federal inspectors in the dairy division, has been appointed Dairy and Food Commissioner by Gov. Eberhart to succeed Mr. French.

Mr. Wincher was at one time the Butter-maker at St. Hilaire and it is more to his individuality than to that of any other that our neighboring creamery has stood so high in this state.

This is one case where a good, sensible, hard working fellow gets what he has justly earned, the head of his department in the state.

This is one more example where a common soldier has by sheer perseverance risen to become Commander in Chief.

THE CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL.

The idea of substituting one first-class graded school for existing groups of one-room district schools is one that finds wider and wider acceptance the more it is studied, and as practical experience verifies the correctness of the theory. The consolidated school is the school of today, in sections where men have been far-sighted enough to discern its advantages, and enterprising enough to overcome the difficulties to be faced. The chief of these diffculties—that of the distance of the school from the homes on the outskirts of the "consolidated" district—has been met by the expedient of employing wagons or automobiles to call for children living in such homes, and to return them at the close of school. The cost of this service has proved insignificant in comparison with the benefits gained.

The consolidated school wipes out at once every assumed advantage of the city over the country school, and thereby removes one of the strongest motives which have prompted the migration of families from the country to the town—the bettering of the educational advantages of the children. Indeed, it does more than this; for in and around the consolidated school may be grouped facilities for vocational training, particularly in pursuits allied to the farm, for which it is difficult to find sufficient room in the cities. Add to this the superior healthfulness, the purer democracy, and the more wholesome social atmosphere which surrounds the country as compared with the city school, and the greater attractiveness of the former is manifest. The probability is that ere long, when the consolidated schools shall have "come to their own" in development, city people will covet their advantages for their children, as country folks have heretofore coveted those of the city schools Here is another influence added to those which are to reverse the human current which has been setting from country to city.

That the best results may be reached, and at the earliest moment, it is important that there should be no division or "scatteration" of effort by taking up movements which, while they parallel the consolidated school idea, are non-essential as separate propositions, and which will weaken the resources which, for the present, are needed to make that idea effective. Among these parallel movements is the "Country Life Hall" proposition now being exploited in the vicinity of Spokane and elsewhere. This looks to the erection, in every consolidated school district, of a "Country Life Hall" for use of the farmers in social gatherings, for meetings of the Grange, Farmers' Unions, etc.; and to be used also asthe office of a salaried "Country Life" secretary.

It would seem that a room in the consolidated school building, used out of school hours, could be easily made to serve, for the present, the purposes of the proposed "Hall," and that the building of the latter can very well be postponed until the larger and more essential work of the school shall have been fully provided for.—C. R. Barns, University Rarm, St. Paul.

NET GAIN OF TWO SEATS

Coalition Has 126 Majority in New House of Commons.

London, Dec. 22.—The government party will have a coalition majority of 126 in the new parliament as a result of the elections just closed. This is two more than the combined advantage over the Unionists in the preceding parliament. The status of the parties is as follows:

Unionists, 272; Liberals, 271; Irish Nationalists, 73; Independent Nationalists, 11; Labor members, 43.

News of The State.

St. Paul, Dec. 29, 1910.—The keenness of an Indian's eye demonstrated a few days ago at the state capitol in St. Paul when a committee of five Sioux called to present a petition to Governor Eberhart.

Among the many handsome paintings in the building is one portraying a scene connected with the Sioux treaty of 1851. The old braves were sure they recognized the face of Sitting Bull in the picture and in truth they did but the great chief had no right in the picture. Sitting Bull was not at the pow wow but his picture is in the scene just the same. The artist who painted the picture, according to R. I. Holcomb of the Minnesota Historical society had a photograph of Sitting Bull and as he regarded it as a particularly strong Indian face drew it into the picture. The visiting Indians who had followed the old chief on the warpath could not be deceived. They remembered him, but if any of them recalled that he was not present when the pow wow depicted by the artist was held they held their tongue as is commom with an Indian.

The Indians came to St. Paul to reassert their claim to land along the Minnesota river. They claim ten miles on either side of the stream from Redwood Falls to the Dakota line. Mr. Holcomb says the title to the lands has long since been settled and the Indians no longer have any claim on it. Mr. Holcomb says the land on the north side of the river was sold by the Indians in 1858 and paid for. The government confiscated the land on the south side of the river in 1863 by act of Congress because of the Sioux outbreak in 1862.

More than $250.000 worth of automobiles will be on display at the St. Paul automobile show in the armory on January 10 to 14. Owing to the great value of the machines special insurance for the five days will be taken out by the exhibitors. The premiums will cost several hundred dollars. One dealer who has a mathematical mind has done a little figuring. He says if all the tires were taken off the machines, cut through the center and spread out they would cover a space eight feet wide and a mile long. In the machine to be shown is enough steel and brass to equip a Dreadnought. The tires, he declares, would hold enough gas to float twenty-five baloons from New York to London.

Letters from more than 200 persons outside of St. Paul have been received by the management and it is believed that automobile enthusiast will be here from Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and Montana. Several letters were received from Winnepig and six from Duluth.

Governor Eberhart is spending his mornings at his home writing his message to the legislature. He is in the office at the capitol from 2 to 5 o'clock each afternoon.

Senator Clapp has opened headquarters at the Merchant's Hotel where he is receiving members of the legislature as they arrive in the city.

Firemen and Policemen Perish Under Falling Walls.

Philadelphia, Dec. 23.—Fourteen known dead, twelve firemen and two policemen, and more than fifty injured, of whom twenty-five are still in hospitals, is the record of the fire at the leather factory of Daniel Friedlander in this city. These figures were given out by the police and the city officials believe they have accounted for all the men who were at work at the fire when the several walls of the five-story building fell in on them.

Of the injured several are in a critical condition and may die.

What is believed to be the last body in the ruins was taken from the ice-coated mass of debris sixteen hours after the fire started.

Two firemen were taken out of the ruins alive after having been pinned under the great mass of twisted iron and broken bricks for twelve hours, but one of them, Thomas Pass, died on the way to a hospital.

The work of digging into the ruins was exasperatingly slow to the policemen and firemen who had been on duty all night. This was due principally to the extreme cold weather, which froze the wet ruins into an almost solid mass. It was one of the coldest mornings of the present season and the rescuers suffered keenly in the wintry weather.

IN A BRUSH WITH ARABS

Fourteen British Sailors Killed or Wounded.

Bushipe, Persia, Dec. 27.—A landing force from the British cruiser Hyacinthe had a serious brush with Arabian gun runners on the southern coast of Persia. Fourteen of the British were killed or wounded. The Arabs lost forty.

JACOB M. DICKINSON.

Secretary of War Will Not Leave the Cabinet.

DICKINSON WON'T RETIRE

Sets at Rest Rumor That He Intends to Resign From Cabinet.

Washington, Dec. 24.—Secretary Dickinson has set at rest the rumor that he is to retire from the cabinet because he and President Taft did not agree on the question of the military unpreparedness of the United States. He is not to retire and he says so with a degree of emphasis that leaves no room to doubt that he speaks by the card. Nor is Secretary Ballinger to retire, notwithstanding the fact that he and the president have differed regarding several phases of the public lands question, as shown by Ballinger's annual report and the president's message to congress. If either leaves the cabinet hereafter it will be for causes which do not now exist.

THREE HUNDRED MINERS ARE DEAD

Result of an Explosion in a Colliery in England.

Bolton, Eng., Dec. 22.—More than 300 colliers lost their lives in an explosion in the Little Hulton colliery of the Hulton Colliery company, which is located a little distance outside this city.

The explosion occurred early in the morning, soon after the miners had entered the pit to begin work. Its force was terrific and later investigation showed that the lower passages had been blocked. Heroic efforts were made by rescue parties all day long, but a fierce fire which followed the explosion prevented the rescuers from penetrating beyond 400 yards into the workings.

The explosion resulted in the temporary disablement of the machinery whereby the cages are lowered and some time elapsed before the first rescue party could reach the bottom of the pit. Eight men in all were rescued, but the majority of these were in a serious condition from the noxious gases. Ten bodies also were removed and twenty more were found partly covered by heavy falls of coal.

BIRDS MAY SUFFER.

New York, Dec. 29, 1910.—Declaring that the new year of 1911 is to mark the fiercest struggle in recent years to save American bird life from its human enemies, officers of the National Association of Audubon Societies are to-day perfecting plans here to combat the commercial interests that are plotting to break down protective laws in many of the legislaturers of forty states. Men and money are to be used without limit by powerful groups of milliners and market supply men to rob their feathered prey of the scant legal protection that has been given them, according to advices that are being received from all over the country. Unless sportsmen, farmers and bird lovers rally against this well organized force of bird butchers, it is predicted, incalculable harm will be done in depleting the nation's game birds as well as the flocks of insect-eaters that protect the crops from pest.

In states where spring shooting laws now save migratory flocks from slaughter at the hands of professional pot hunters, the men who stock the market are reported to be determined to work the repeal of these statutes that were made to shield the breeding birds. Already the game dealers, whose army of spring shooters out on Long Island almost drove to extinction the ducks that flew north along the eastern coast, are known to be plotting the death of the law that checked their activities. In Massachusetts and many other states similar license to raid the resources of game birds is to be sought. For the benefit of the palates of wealthy epicures all laws restricting the storage and sale of game are to be attacked by the market interests, the Audubon officials have been informed.

Most powerful of all the monied interests to war on the welfare of the nation's birds, the milliners are today known to be organizing a campaign to break down laws that protect the wild flocks that they formerly butchered for their plumage. Since a ban was put upon their traffic in aigrettes and the plumage of useful wild birds in New York State last year, it is acknowledged that the sales of these trophies of wholesale bird butchery have been cut down to a quarter of their former volume. To lay hands once more upon the mother heron and the birds that guard the country's crops, it is said the feather dealers are ready to expend a vast amount of effort and money.

Calling upon the farmers, sportsmen, orchardists, planters and ranchmen of the whole country to take the part of the birds that save theirfields and forests from destruction by insect pests, the National Association of Audubon Societies to-day is preparing to meet the commercial bird killers before every legislature in the land. Special funds are being raised to send ornithological experts to answer the lawyers hired to break down bird protective laws in many states. Organizations of sportsmen tion of Minnesota's chief executive." as well as bird lovers throughout the country are already offering active co-operation in this campaign.

"The birds of America never needed the help of everyone interested in them for economic or sentimental reasons more than they do this year" Said T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies at its headquarters, 141 Broadway, to-day. "The monied interests that fatten on bird slaughter are alive to their opportunities to shake off the legal restrictions that have been put upon their greed. We are also alive to the emergency, and with the support of the people will fight to the last ditch for American bird life."

MORE FLESH AND EARLY MATURITY IN MEAT ANIMALS.

If the fat stock shows have shown anything, they have shown, by the premiums awarded and the decisions of butchers, that the thick-fleshed animal that finishes up as quickly as possible is the one that is in greatest demand by the meat world.

Both in sheep and cattle, breeders have striven, first of all, for size, regardless of the thickness of flesh and the case with which these animals fatten into prime condition for slaughter. Awards seem to indicate that this has been a great mistake. Size, of course, is important; and, where economical growth is made, a certain amount of this quality is essential; but what is equally or more essential, is that the animal be covered with thick flesh; that it be "meaty," and that when cut it shall give satisfaction. With this thickness of flesh has been and is usually associated comparative early maturity. It is possibe, of course, to get the animal too small and to have the maturity come too soon in life; but, on the other hand, it is possible to do just what people have been doing when they have selected for size, without regard to thickness and early maturity. A medium-sized animal, that shows these desirable qualities, is rather to be preferred.

Whether it is a mutton sheep or a beef animal, the entire top part is a general indication of what the animal is. It should be of equal width through the chine, through theribes, through the loin and through the rump, from side to side. This sort of an animal indicates that the thick muscle runs from one end of the animal to the other. Those that are narrow over the rump, wide over the loin, narrow in the chine, long in the neck, are not heavily-muscled. If they are wide in front and narrow behind, they are not thick-muscled. Those that have protruding rear ribs arenot thick-muscled, they are not early-maturers either. Of course, with thickness through the top part of the body, we like to see an animal that stands near the ground and that has the curved rib extending from the top of the body to the bottom. This formation usually goes with thick muscles and with the early maturity which we are looking.

That improvement is being made in the direction of thickness of flesh and early maturity is evident, now that feeders are talking of discontinuing the two-year-old class, in which the show rules permit an animal to be from 36 to 39 months of age when shown. This is being talked of by leading showmen because the proper type of an animal will reach the prime stage in life, as regards fleshing and finishing, and economy of production, about 12 months before the regular two-year-old show class is reached. Keeping them to show in this class is simply doing something that has no economic value, and is misleading to the public in so far as this is concerned. The move is a wise one; and we hope to see it carried out, and the thickness of flesh and early maturity, which are now held up as points to be sought in cattle, encouraged by all meat producers.—D. O. Gaumnitz, University Farm.

The pitiful story was told, in a St. Paul paper, a few days ago, of an industrious and capable farm laborer, who had answered several advertisements of farmers in need of just such experienced services he was able to render; but whose application was rejected, in each instance, because he had a wife and two small children. The farmers wanted neither women nor children about their farms. So this competent farm worker was obliged to accept employment in a city stable.

It is to be feared that this is by no means an isolated instance. Human kindness has been so far eliminated, in many cases, from the relationship between the farmer and his hired help, and that relationship has been put so exclusively on a hard business basis, that the complaint is common that "the farmer cares more for the comfort and happiness of his cattle and hogs than he does for the well-being of his men."

Under healthier conditions in rural life, the married workman would receive the same preference that he generally does from employers in mercantile and manufacturing pursuits; as being more reliable and less likely to seek a change, if fairly well treated, than the single man. Aside from this, however, there is a moral and social obligation, resting at least as strongly on the farmer as on any one else, to encourage family life among workers, and thus to promote stability in rural population and to discourage the nomadism among laborers which is the bane of our agricultural enterprises.

It is altogether probable that the actual decline in population, shown by the last census to have taken place in extensive agricultural areas—notably in the State of Iowa and in southern Minnesota—is due to the discouragement of marriage among farm workers, and the refusal of employment to men with families.

That way lies the decline of states and the ruin of democracy. If we want growth in population, and the perfect working out of the democratic ideas underlying American institutions, we must reverse our methods, welcome rather than repel the man with a family, and be wiling to share with him some portion of the opportunities of the farm.—C. R. Barns, Extension Division, University Farm.

MEAT FOR FARM USE.

Bulletin No. 11 of the Minnesota Farmers' Library, just issued by the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture, is devoted to "Dressing and Curing Meat for Farm Use." It contains very complete but simple directions for killing and cutting up of beeves, hogs, sheep and calves; also for curing and packing beef and pork, the smoking of hams and bacon, and the making of sausage; together with suggestions for the forming of cooperative Meat Clubs. A study of its pages should satisfy any one that there is seldom any reason why the farmers' table should not be well supplied with meats, in good variety, at all seasons of the year. A postal card, addressed to "Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul," will secure the mailing of the bulletin to any one wanting it.

Jack's Return

By OLIVE EDNA MAY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Maggie was a fisher lass—that is, she belonged to fisher folk—on the Maine coast. Her work was digging for clams and selling them. One day a boat from a ship that had just entered the port came up to where Maggie was digging for clams. It was commanded by the third mate, a young fellow of twenty, and when Maggie stopped work and turned to look at the party stepping ashore, shading her eyes from the sun with her hand, her hair falling down on her white neck, her shapely feet, without shoes or stockings, the young officer rejoiced at the sight. There was a certain native grace about her that struck his fancy. And he was equally comely.

When Jack Winslow sailed away he left his heart behind and carried a heart with him. He would not be at that port again for three years, and Maggie's friends all said: "He's time enough to get a dozen sweethearts. Sailors have one in every port." But no one said the same about Maggie. They all knew that her innocent heart, having once been caught, would not swerve from the handsome sailor boy who had captured it.

Letters were not frequent between them. The young man was always moving, and communication was not easy. But when a letter came to Maggie it was all the more precious. She would hide it sometimes for a day or two, that she might revel in the anticipation of what there was in it. And when, touching at some foreign port, Jack received one from Maggie he would go up in the foretop to read the misspelled words over and over again.

One day Maggie opened a letter from Jack after an interval of silence that had lasted three months. This was fully a month longer interval than any that had occurred. Maggie ran away to the top of a dune and sat herself down in the sage grass that was quite long enough to conceal her to read her letter. It told her that something had happened to Jack which would surely kill her love for him. He did not tell her what it was, and the poor girl was in an agony both of sympathy and of disappointment. Jack told her that he would never write her again, but he assured her that he loved her the same and would never have another sweetheart. Indeed, he added, no girl would be his sweetheart. Maggie concealed the bad news she had received, keeping it in her own innocent bosom. But those about her saw plainly that some misfortune had happened to her, and all shook their heads and said: "I told you so. A lass who loves a sailor is always to be pitied. He's deserted her doubtless for a half civilized creature that he has met in some port on the other side of the world."

This happened about a year after Jack had sailed away. One day Maggie's little brother Ben was throwing stones on the beach where Maggie was digging for clams. A large stone he threw with great force accidentally struck her in the temple. Maggie was laid up for a few days, when she was again at her work. But one day soon after this upon closing one eye to get a better focus on a ship that was coming into the offing she discovered a blur before the eye that remained open. It was not long before the sight of this eye—it was on the side of her head that had been hit by little Ben—was completely lost. Then it began to affect the other eye, and within eighteen months of the time the accident occurred Maggie was entirely blind.

Grave as was this calamity, it was nothing compared with Maggie's disappointment in her love. She felt that trouble as keenly as the day she received Jack's letter. She began at once to get used to her blindness, but she could not get used to the loss of her lover.

Her only comfort was that she believed Jack was sincere in saying that

Trial of a Dead Man.

Mr. Christopher Hare's book on "Charles de Bourbon, High Constable of France," mentions the strange trial which succeeded the close of that turbulent career. He had died in conquering Rome, which his leaderless soldiers straightway sacked. For this crime it was necessary to find a scapegoat, so "on July 26, 1527, in the presence of King Francois I., on his seat of justice, assisted by the peers of France and the assembled chambers, Jean de Surie, first usher of the court, called Charles de Bourbon three times—at the bar of the parliament, at the marble table and at the marble steps—and then reported that the said De Bourbon had not appeared. The sentence was drawn up, then solemnly read out: 'The connetable de France, dead, was condemned, his goods returned to the crown, and the door of his palace by the Louvre was painted yellow.'"

Private Brainard's Ruse

By DOROTHY R. MURRAY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Tom Brainard was always full of Old Nick. He was at the bottom of all the mischief done at school, and when he was at college got into so many scrapes that at the end of his sophomore year the president informed him he needn't come back the next term.

Tom's father put him into a business concern, but the boy soon proved that he was as unfit for business as for study. Sitting on a high stool all day adding columns of figures was not to Tom's taste. He soon got discharged for inattention to his work, and then his father was at his wits' end to know what to do with him. Tom said he'd like to be a soldier, so his father went to Washington to try to get him a commission, but was told there that if his son wanted a commission he had better enlist and work his way up from the ranks.

Tom enlisted and, though he took to soldiering better than anything else, was constantly transgressing the army regulations and consequently getting himself into trouble. He enlisted in the cavalry and was sent out with his regiment to a two company post in the west. The only people to fight were Indians, and at the time of Tom's arrival they were peaceful.

Fort B., where Tom's company was stationed, was near a hamlet that has since become a large town. The fort was intended as a point of observation for a tribe of Indians whose reservation was but a few miles away. Tom served a year at the fort, one-third of which was spent in the guardhouse. He was known by the officers to be a gentleman and his offenses were not serious; indeed, he was rather an annoyance than otherwise. So finally his captain told him that if he would leave the army he would guarantee his discharge. But Tom declined. He said he had come into the service for a commission and intended to stay there till he got one.

Soon after this the Indians broke loose from their reservation and went about murdering settlers wherever they could find them. The savages numbered several thousand warriors, and the troops in the fort numbered sixty-two. The "great father" had put a force down near the Indians just big enough for them to eat up when they got ready.

One day there was consternation in the fort. The Indians were coming to attack it, and if they did they would doubtless take it and kill everybody in it, including women and children. Besides, many of the people from the little town or settlement near by had come in, the merchants bringing their stocks of goods and all bringing their household belongings.

As the Indians approached the soldiers went out to meet them, the major in command hoping to pacify rather than to fight them. Six hundred Indians attacked him, and after a scrimmage several redskins, including their chief, were killed. When the chief fell the Indians drew off, though it was known that they would renew the fight with redoubled fierceness. After dark the troops withdrew to the fort and shut themselves in.

That night was a fearful one in the inclosure, death staring every one in the face. It was known that re-enforcements had been sent from Leavenworth, but it would require several days for them to make the march. Tom Brainard told his captain that he had a plan. He was conducted to the major commanding and proposed it. The major had no confidence in it, but permitted Tom to try it.

A stock of cigars and tobacco had been brought into the fort, including a wooden Indian that an enterprising tobacconist had brought from St. Louis. The Indian was sitting with a calumet in his mouth. Tom bored a hole through the back of the neck and put a real pipe in the Indian's mouth. Then he introduced a tube into the hole he had bored, so that by sucking on the tube the Indian would appear to smoke.

Tom told his commander what his plan was and asked him as soon as it was light the next morning to convene all the officers at the fort on the parapet, put the wooden Indian in the circle and have some one concealed pull on the tube at the back of his head, the pipe having been lighted. He wished them all to appear to be in council.

This being understood, Tom rode out with an escort and a white flag. The Indians met him, and he told them that the spirit of their chief had come into the fort and made peace. The Indians were incredulous. They had the chief's body. Tom offered to show him to them at the fort smoking with the officers. They rode with him to the fort, arriving early in the morning. Tom would not permit them to come within a quarter of a mile of the post, but this was near enough for them to see the wooden Indian sitting on the rampart in a circle of officers blowing clouds of smoke. The Indians, astonished, rode away and spread the news to all the tribe.

That was the end of the uprising. Soon after Tom's ruse the new chief came to the fort and ratified the peace made by his predecessor.

Tom, in recognition of his services in saving the lives of the garrison, was promoted to be a commissioned officer, and a very good one he made too.

FOR PROJECTS IN THE WEST

President Taft Approves Report of Engineers.

LARGE SUM IS APPORTIONED

Twenty Million Dollars to Be Spent on Reclamation Enterprises in the West and Northwest—Engineering Structures of Various Projects Are Well Designed and Well Built.

Washington, Dec. 2[illegible].—President Taft approved the report of the special board of army engineers, recommending the apportionment of the new $20,000,000 fund provided by congress among the following projects in the West:

Salt River, Ariz., $495,000; Yuma, Ariz., and California, $1,200,000; Grand Valley, Colo., $1,000,000; Uncompahgre, Colo., $1,500,000; Payette-Boise, Ida., $2,000,000; Milk river, Mont., $1,000,000; North Platte, Wyoming and Nebraska, $2,000,000; Truckee-Carson, Nevada, $1,193,000; Rio Grande, New Mexico, Texas and Mexico, $4,500,000; Umatilla, Ore., $325,000; Klamath, Ore., and Cal., $600,000; Strawberry Valley, Utah, $2,272,000; Sunnyside Yakima, Wash., $1,250,000; Tieton Yakima, Wash., $665,000. Total, $20,000,000.

The $20,000,000 is to be spent within the next five years and the interest on the loan is to be charged against the projects.

The following projects, completed or nearing completion, carry a recommendation for funds from the general reclamation act sufficient only for maintenance and operation:

Orland, Cal.; Carlsbad, N. M.; Hondo, N. M.; Garden City, Kan.; Kittitas, Waputa and Benton units of the Yakima, Washington, project.

For the following existing reclamation projects the board of engineers, in the report approved by the president, recommends allotments from the general fund:

Missouri Pumping, N. D.; Belle Fourche, S. D.; Shoshone, Wyo.; Minidoka, Ida.; Huntley, Mont.; Sun River, Mont.; Lower Yellowstone, Mont.; Okanogan, Wash.

In his letter to the secretary of the interior approving the report, President Taft says in part:

"I hereby approve the report of the board of engineers concerning the reclamation projects to which they have made allotments from the $20,000,000 loans; but this approval, so far as the amounts of the allotments are concerned, is not final and absolute, but is subject to change by adjustment of the amounts as may be necessary for the intelligent prosecution of the work.

May Call Upon Treasury.

"You are authorized to call upon the secretary of the treasury to issue the certificates of indebtedness needed to furnish the funds, in accordance with the allotment recommended by the board and approved by me, as the same shall be needed from time to time.

"The remainder of the report, which was for my consideration, I hereby approve. When congress reconvenes in January I shall submit a message to the two houses urging the adoption of the enabling legislative measures recommended."

In its report on the reclamation work the engineers' board says in part:

"The engineering structures of the various projects are, as a whole, well designed and well built. Some of them, as the Pathfinder dam, the Shoshone dam, the Roosevelt dam, and the Gunnison tunnel are monuments reflecting great credit on both designers and builders.

"Modern irrigation, being a relatively new art in this country, much freedom was allowed in the design of minor structures. Standard designs of the simplest, satisfactory type should be adopted in future for all minor structures.

"The most uncertain feature of nearly all the projects is the water supply. This is under state control. Where the water rights have been adjudicated, the rights of the United States are well defined, but elsewhere they are uncertain.

"It is recommended that, wherever possible, steps be taken to secure an early adjudication of water rights.

"The actual cost of completed work has almost invariably exceeded the original estimates, and in some cases being two or three times as large. This increase has been the cause of much of the discontent among the settlers. It was partly due to a general increase in the cost of labor and materials and partly to underestimates. Under existing regulations the construction charges must be returned to the reclamation fund in ten equal annual payments.

"This, it is said, is regarded as a hardship by the settlers on some projects, who express a desire for a series of graduated construction payments."

TAFT AND TEDDY GOOD FRIENDS

If Ever There Was a Break It Has Been Healed.

FOR SEVERAL WEEKS PAST

The President and the Former Chief Executive Have Been In Close Communication—Their Relations Said to Be as Close Now as Ever in the Past.

Washington, Dec. 27.—According to statements made here by persons close to the administration President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt have been in close communication for many weeks past. The president, according to friends, has received and sent many letters to the colonel and has in other ways communicated with him almost daily for a long time and if there was any break between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt those who ought to know say it has geen healed. Their relations now are said to be as close as ever in the past.

The letters and other messages that have passed between Messrs. Taft and Roosevelt have not been confined, it was said, merely to friendly exchange of the news of the day. They have touched upon questions of domestic concern, international affairs and party politics. Since the November elections Mr. Taft has seen William Lloyd, Jr., Lloyd Griscom, Herbert Parsons and other New Yorkers who are close to the colonel and who are also friendly to the administration.

Instead of a widening breach between Taft and Roosevelt friends of the president see coming a closer alliance between the two men. Instead of a dispute as to who shall control the New York delegation in the national convention of 1912 politicians here say the forces of the president and the colonel will be brought together in an effort to swing that delegation to the former.

No Line of Distinction.

The information that President Taft has kept up correspondence with Colonel Roosevelt is taken by many here to indicate more clearly the position he assumed recently to look with kindly eye upon the house and senate progressives. There has been of late no line of distinction between those who follow the banners of Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon and the smaller contingent who think and act with Senators Cummins, Bristow and others in the senate, and with Representative Norris and the other house progressives.

That the president has decided to consult all Republican leaders with a view to healing the differences which a few weeks ago seemed to make the election of a Democratic president in 1912 the foregone conclusion, is the opinion of his friends here.

Both the president and Colonel Roosevelt, those close to the former say, know the effort to tighten party lines must be begun at once if there is to be a favorable result in 1912. President Taft has said he is not seeking renomination. He has indicated clearly enough, however, that if the people desire him to run again he will do so. The president foresaw the defeat of last November. Months ago he predicted the result, but he has never shown any intention of quitting, and now he is said to be convinced there is a good chance of retrieving the defeat of Nov. 8.

Progressive Republicans look with some degree of suspicion upon the reports emanating from persons close to the administration that a better understanding now obtains in the relations between Messrs. Taft and Roosevelt.
